AG-2000: Agricultural Legislative Agenda Proposed

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Efforts are being made by three state senators to make things easier for what is seen as the future of Pennsylvania agriculture.

A multiple-proposal agenda package called AG-2000 was revealed Tuesday during a press conference in the state capital held by three state Republican senators known for their activity with agricultural issues — Sen. Edward Helfrick, Sen. Noah Wenger, and Sen. Roger Madigan.

The package of ideas and proposed programs to help farmers wishing to make a transition to alternative farming or nutrient management carries a futuristic name — AG-2000: A Legislative Agenda For Pa. Agriculture.

The three objectives of the package are to address sustainable agriculture, ground and surface water protection, and farmland preservation, while not negatively affecting production farmers.

There are six proposed actions or initiatives in the package that the senators said should make it possible to reach those three goals:

• Expand the scope of the Chesapeake Bay Protection Program to the entire state and boost its funding.

• Create a Bureau of Sustainable Agriculture within the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture (PDA).

• Encourage participation in demonstration projects of sustainable agriculture to see if they can really work as opposed to relying on academic research results.

John and Cindy Batchelder stand with one of their star Jersey cows, 8-year-old My-T-Fine MMC Grace, a 1988 Pennsylvania Farm Show grand champion. She classified Excellent 93 as a 6-year-old, and when she was 7-years, 6-months started a lactation that, after 354 days, produced 18,890 pounds of milk, with 920 pounds of fat and 757 pounds of protein.

PSU Advisory Council Topics: Cows Of Color, Funding, And New Building

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.)—The recently announced decision that colored breeds at Penn State would be displaced in favor of an expanded Holstein herd received the major discussion at the Penn State Advisory Council meeting here Wednesday. But state funding cuts and a tour of the newly completed Agricultural Science and Industry building were also included in the day's activities.

"The Jersey people are very offended because Penn State is going to discriminate against the beautiful minority Jersey cow," said Sam Williams, elder statesman, Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club. "This is like doing research on peaches and then you only do it on apples. Holsteins and Jerseys are entirely different propositions.

"Another thing I don't like," Williams said in his dry, humorous sort of way. "Lancaster Farming talks about 'colored breeds.' That's an insult. I don't like the term colored breeds. You should call them cows of color. Or better yet, cows of vivid quality.

Starpoint Farm: Young Rural Professionals Get Back To The Farm

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HENSEL (Lancaster Co.) — The Batchelders went looking for the land of milk and money.

They now live in southern Lancaster County.

John and Cindy Batchelder and their Jersey and Holstein herds have recently relocated from Chester County to Lancaster County. And although it was a move of only a few miles, they said it appears to have taken them a long way toward reaching their goal of having a place of their own.

The young couple, both 30, are former rural young professionals, in that they worked for other people. Within the last several years, however, they returned to the profession of choice — dairy farming.

Southern Lancaster County may not be an area with guaranteed profits for dairying, but, according to John, who is orginally from Kentucky, there are very few places he's ever seen that have the dairy support services available.

And the milk check, in the area in which they now live, is generally a little higher than the rest of the country.

The couple is well known in certain circles. Perhaps they are more recognizable by their herd name, "Starpoint."

The name should be familiar to those who check Dairy Herd

Chester-Delaware Farmers Review Issues At Banquet

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

ATGLEN (Chester Co.) — "If your grandmother wanted to bequeath the farm to you, you couldn't afford it, because to pay for the real estate tax, you'd have to sell the farm," said Bob Lange, a member of the board of directors of the Chester-Delaware County Farmers' Association.

Lange, head of governmental relations for the association, spoke to about 150 members of the organization at their annual spring banquet last week. The organization is an affiliate of the Pennsylvania Farmer's Association (PFA) and American Farm Bureau Federation.

Lange and other committee members spoke about current issues at the county, state, and federal levels that affect members of the local PFA organization.

In particular, Lange spoke about several bills, particularly the Schulze Bill introduced in 1989. He discussed the impending introduction of a new federal estate tax bill for the family farm inheritance that may soon go before the federal House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate. The bill would require farms to have a conservation easement placed on them to make them exempt from the real estate tax.

Farm can benefit

Every farm in the area can benefit from the laws if the bill is passed, according to Lange. The new bill will exempt farmers from the estate tax so those who inherit

220 Head Compete At Md. Holstein Show

The O.C. Smith Family of Jefferson dominated the calf classes and was junior champion and reserve in the Junior Show, along with winner of Junior Best 3 Females. Gay Ridge Holsteins, with Kingstead, had the open junior champion and reserve.

The cow class winners were spread out. Matt lager was pleased to be grand champion and best bred & owned of the Junior Show, while Gay Ridge, along with Kingstead and George Debnam, won the Open Show with a 4-yr. old bred by Sam Davis. Reserve was Clay Smith and David Ifert's aged cow, a "Phil" daughter. In fact, all but one of O C S Dairy's show winners were either sired by or out of one of his daughters.

The Smith Family of My Ladys Manor Farm, Monkton, was both premier breeder and premier exhibitor again this year.

The first 3 placings in each class are as follows:

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

APR. 22-28, 1991

Fast Day, New Hampshire, April 22.

April 22, 1793, President George Washington attends the Ricketts' Circus in Philadelphia April 24, 1833, Jacob Ebert and George Dulty patent the soda fountain April 25, 1898, Congress declares war on the government of Spain April 26, 1865, John Wilkes Booth, President Lincoln's assassin, is shot and killed near Bowling Green, Va April 28, 1789, Mutiny breaks out on the Bounty

We knock in jest and it is opened in earnest

Ask the Old Farmer: I have an old weather-beaten wooden store sign I d like to clean without destroying the antique look Is this possible? D S , N J

Mix one cup ammonia 1/2 cup vinegar and 1/4 cup baking soda in a gallon of warm water This should clean it without dulling the finish but try it on a small section first you may want to cut down on the ammonia This solution does not need to be rinsed

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Showers begin the week and increase to rain,,locally heavy Milder temperatures for the second half of the week The weekend is sunny and warm

Greater New York-New Jersey: Partly cloudy and cool as the week begins By midweek sunny skies bring warmer weather The weekend has seaonable temperatures

Middle Atlantic Coastal: The week begins with a couple days of sunshine, but cool weather Midweek brings temperature swings to warm, then cool, with rain north

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Sunny and clear through midweek, then turning cloudy and cool, with rain in the east Clear and hot to end the week

Smooth Running Swine Herds With Quality Oil By Insta-Pro

Many fat and oil products available to pork producers are a "blend" of ingredients with important nutritional factors removed.

The oil found in INSTA-PRO extruded soybeans contains all the tocopherols (antioxidants) and lecithin naturally found in the bean. Additionally, INSTA-PRO extrusion ruptures oil cells resulting in increased digestibility.

Extruded soybeans, Triple "F" Base Mixes and grain supply hogs with all the key nutrients necessary for optimum performance and profit.

OPINION

Dispersal Is Discomforting

Dairy farmers and Penn State University administrators seem to have at least two things in common — their businesses are regulated to an extent by government and neither is doing exceptionally well these days.

To the dairyman suffering from low milk prices, the college offers the advice (via cooperative extension service), "Be a better manager. Cull unproductive cows. Become more efficient."

It is the same advice everytime the milk price plummets.

So now the university isn't getting the state or federal dollars it once received.

And administrators are apparently taking their own advice.

In the university's College of Agriculture the cutbacks include the elimination of certain breeds of species from its inventory. Thus, the dairy cattle colored breeds are slated for dispersal this year.

Whenever a dairyman analyzes his own operation he must consider the results of his actions — Will a cut in overhead cause a cut in income?

The university must do similarly.

Three of the four major reasons for dispersing the colored breeds and keeping Holsteins do make sense — there are limited facilities, not enough of a colored breed herd for good research projects, and negligible use of the colored breeds in teaching judging skills.

The fourth reason makes sense too. The dispersal would mean $30,000 more a year in milk and meat sales income from a Holstein herd.

It is a nice benefit, but it is a troubling reason for dispersing the herd, because, after all:

• A college is not a museum, but college's frequently have museums. Museums do not make money.

• A college is not a library, but all colleges have libraries. Libraries do not make money.

• A college is not an athletic field, but most colleges have some sort of athletic field. And even though athletic fields can generate lots of money for some colleges, the majority of athletic fields are for educational reasons.

• A college is not a commercial farm. A college farm should not be expected to make money.

A college sells education. And to offer a good education, and be competitive, a college must offer access to information.

And not just book information which contains "facts."

A student needs both experience and facts in order to get an education with understanding and skills at real problem solving. A good education allows the student to question the "facts" his entire life. Only then does any education become meaningful.

That's because facts change.

When facts change, that's called academic advancement.

Without the colored breeds available to dairy science students, there seems to be a justifiable fear that students will graduate without any experience to go along with the "facts" of colored breeds.

Without that, aren't we in danger of eliminating academic advancement?

With the help of breed organizations and individual dairymen, perhaps the possible lack in education on colored breeds to the state's dairy students can be averted.

There is one other thing that causes trouble in accepting the dictum.

What if the breed of the future is not the Holstein?

What if the current situation — with Holsteins comprising 95.5 percent of the cows on test with the Dairy Herd Improvement Association — is really just the peak in a trend?

For various reasons, what if the Jersey, or another breed, because of efficiency, protein production, health, behavior and size, is really the cow of the future?

Penn State University has more of a role in all of Pennsylvania's economic, social and cultural aspects than merely providing a mirror of our image.

In many ways, Penn State provides the images that we adopt.

Farm Forum

Editor,

I write to you concerned over Penn State's decision to disperse of the color breed herd. I have to question several reasons that have been presented in their paper.

Penn State claims they need 40 animals of a breed to do research but have been awarded a $6,000 grant to do a nutrition study using 4 cows.

Penn State claims they can not house integrated breeds together

NOW IS THE TIME

To Prepare For Corn Planting

We are fast approaching corn planting time and if your planter is not "ready to go" then put this high on your list for jobs that must be done. If you plan to change the row width, be sure to calibrate your planter to the plant population you desire. This should be done well ahead of time, so if you need new plates, they can be picked up and installed. Also your pest control program should be worked out.

This year in particular, you need to be concemed about the Western Corn Rootworm. If you had injury on your farm, or if your neighbor had an infestation of Western Corn Rootworm in 1990, then use a soil insecticide. Treat at planting time with either Counter or Lorsban or Furidan or Force. Follow label directions. We know that Lancaster and nearby counties had a bad infestation last year, so beware this year.

A word of caution from John Yocum, Research Agronomist; if you have Shattercane or Johnsongrass and you plan to use Accent or Beacon herbicide for control... DO NOT use Counter soil insecticide.

To Feed For High Production & Profitability

When it comes to feeding cows for high production, there are no magic ingredients that can do the job alone. According to Glenn Shirk, Extension Dairy Agent, concentrate first on the basics.

The first goal should be to maximize dry matter intake. That will require good quality forage, a properly formulated grain mix, proper feeding techniques, healthy cows and a comfortable cow environment.

Good dry matter intakes also depend upon limiting the amount of NDF (neutral detergent fiber or indigestible fiber) to keep the rumen functioning properly. The goal is to maximize microbial activity in the rumen and the flow of microbial nutrients to the intestines.

Once the dry matter intake is maximized, and determined, the next goal is to formulate a nutrient-dense ration, focusing first on energy... this may also involve the use of roasted soybeans and bypass fats, while also regulating the intake of starchy feeds which are beneficial for feeding the rumen microbes.

The next concem is to provide the proper amount of rumen degradable protein and bypass protein.

Once these basics are met, our final concern is to balance the ration for vitamins and minerals.

To Evaluate Sewage Sludge Before Using

Many farmers are being approached to have sewage sludge applied to their land. Several things must be evaluated before considering this step. First of all, many of our farms are presently producing more animal and poultry manure than they have land to apply it on, so we just don't have the acreage. You should also be aware of potential pitfalls in sewage sludge.

Sludge is a by-product of wastewater treatment and can contain many different elements and compounds from municipal and industrial sources. The wastewater goes through several stages of treatment, but the sludge that is removed from the effluent may contain heavy metals and trace elements such as copper, zinc, lead, nickel, chromium or cadmium. These elements can be toxic to plants at low levels and some may represent a hazard to the food chain.

To Develop Safe Habits

Farming is the most hazardous occupation in the U.S., yes passing mining which held that position for many years. In fact the average farm worker can expect that once every four years he'll be injured so severely that medical treatment is needed. Farmers have a work-accident rate that's two and a half times greater than the average for all industries. The problem is, that unlike industry, farmers work with minimal amount of supervision and they may not be properly trained for the job. We urge farmers, during this busy season, to take time to be safe.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE GREATEST GIFT

April 21, 1991

Background Scripture: I Cornthians 13:1-13.

Devotional Reading: John 3:16-21.

There are some passages of the Bible that can be lifted out of context without losing their power to inspire and instruct us. Lots of people read or hear I Corinthians 13 without any thought whatsoever of the context from which this beautiful passage comes. Paul's great hymn to Christian love can stand all by itself.

At the same time, reading it within its context can enlarge and expand our appreciation of this passage. I Corinthians 13 is the climax of all that Paul has been discussing: factions in the church, marital and family concerns, food offered to idols, divisions in the Lord's Supper, the question of spiritual gifts — all of these must be seen in the context of Christian love. There is nothing wrong with the Corinthian Church that love cannot solve.

GIFTED PAGANS

Apparently, the ecstatic worshippers in Corinth believe that, because their gifts are the most spectacular, they are the most gifted. So Paul strives to show that without the gift of love, their ecstasy means nothing. All the gifts in the world do not make us a church unless those gifts are motivated by love. Otherwise, we are just gifted pagans.

The key to I Cor. 13 is to be found in the last of chapter 12. Having listed all the various spiritual gifts in the church — tongues, prophecy, healing, miracles, teaching, administration, and so forth — Paul goes on to say: "And I will show you a still more excellent way"(12:31b). His next words are: "If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love..." Tongues, prophecies, and martyrdom are impressive gifts, but without love they are nothing at all.

If one has the gift of tongues, that is pretty obvious. So are the gifts of healing and prophecy. But how do we know if we have the gift of love? Note that all the gifts Paul speaks of are divided among Christ's followers. Some have this gift; some have that gift. But love is the one gift that all of us have. The question is not whether we have it, but whether we will use it.

WHAT LOVE IS

In 13:4-7 Paul gives us a checklist that every Christian needs to apply daily to his or her own life. "Love is patient and kind, " says Paul. There was a lot of proud and arrogant behavior in the Corinthian church that was not patient or kind. "Love is not jealous or boastful," says Paul, but that's what was so evident among the Corinthian Christians. "Love does not insist on its own way" — evidently Paul had never attended many church business meetings! "It is not irritable or resentful, " he maintains. "It does not rejoice at wrong, but rejoices in the right " — so how come Christians love to gossip? "Love bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things" — why then are Christians often so cynical?

All the other gifts are fleeting and perishable — tongues, healings, prophecies, miracles — but love alone endures and lasts. Love that doesn't last isn't love. It may be affection, passion, sympathy, or good intentions, but unless it endures, it isn't love.

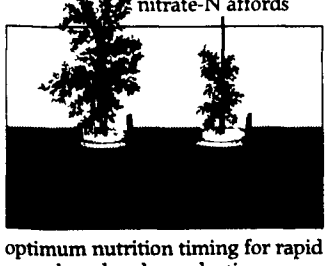
Viking Ship® Calcium Nitrate

15.5-0-0-19Ca

The fertilizer to start with ...the fertilizer to stay with

GROWTH

Nitrate nitrogen is the fast-acting, controllable N-source for fruit trees. Unlike ammonium nitrogen (NH_4), nitrate-N affords optimum nutrition timing for rapid growth and early production. Calcium Nitrate supplies 14.5% nitrate nitrogen.



QUALITY

Calcium availability, at adequate levels, is essential to early and sustained production of high-quality tree fruit. Young trees, as well as mature, producing orchards never outgrow their need for calcium.

Specifically, root vigor, reduced fruit disorders, optimum color and size and storage quality of fruit are directly related to adequate calcium levels. With Calcium Nitrate as your orchard fertilizer, trees and soil receive 19% water-soluble calcium.

YIELD

Heavy production of high-quality tree fruit has been achieved—for more than 40 years—by growers using Viking Ship Calcium Nitrate fertilizer.

Use Calcium Nitrate in your fertilizer program. You will be pleased by the predictable response—the growth, quality and yield improvement possible with Calcium Nitrate's combination of essential orchard nutrients. For the life of your trees...Calcium Nitrate...the fertilizer to start with, the fertilizer to stay with!

As with any fertilizer application, consult your extension office or other advisory service for recommended practice that meets local crop and soil conditions.

Starpoint Farm

After all, Starpoint is one of the top 10 Jersey herds in the nation for its size.

According to AJCC reports, Starpoint nationally ranks fourth for milk, fifth for protein and eighth for fat among herds with 10 to 29 lactations.

On a straight comparison among Pennsylvania's Jersey herds, Starpoint isn't as strong, but statewide rankings don't take into account comparisons between herd sizes. However, their Jerseys are among the best.

And, as of last month, the couple's Holstein herd ranked top in rolling herd average production in Chester County.

Dairy farming for a little less than four years, and married for four this June, John and Cindy recently went into partnership with Bill Ulrich who owns a 174-acre farm a couple miles north of the border between Chester and Lancaster counties.

The Batchelders are mainly responsible for the maintaining the dairy herd and milk production and raising calves. Ulrich's primary jobs are forage production and raising heifers.

The plan is to help each other out as work dictates. A dairy science professor from Cindy's alma mater at Virginia Tech, Bill Etgen, helped the couples with forming a partnership plan, in that he gave them ideas about how to go about setting it up.

"He's consulted quite a few partnerships in getting set up," Cindy said. "Basically, Bill didn't want to sell his farm, but he didn't want to keep milking by himself."

She said that for she and her husband, the partnership offered an "opportunity to farm without having a large cash reserve."

"I'm not crazy about debt," John added.

The Batchelders own the herd, and it is the animals which attract attention.

How the two got such a good herd in such a short time goes back to the qualities of the Batchelders.

John was exposed to the Jersey breed since 1967, while growing up on a farm in Kentucky.

"Dad bought the bottom cow from the University of Kentucky Jersey herd and she kept having heifers. She had six heifers and they had heifers." His father milked about 35 cows. They also worked with thorobred horses.

John worked for four years as a classifier for the American Jersey Cattle Club and traveled all over the nation.

Because of the population of the Jerseys, the AJCC classifiers don't have restricted regional responsibilities. Thus, John got to travel extensively; even to Central American once. He traveled a lot during those years, he said.

Meanwhile, Cindy grew up on a large dairy and dairy store in Montgomery County and she became exposed to Jerseys there.

She said her father's operation, no longer in existance, was in Collegeville. It was called Walebe Farms. He had 1,500 acres and a 400-head milking herd.

With a master's degree in animal science from University of California at Davis, where she did her thesis research on sexing embryos.

With both of them having the backround, skills and experience to work for decent money for other businesses, the decision to run a small farming business had only been a dream that each held for a long time before they met, they said.

"If we wouldn't have met, neither of us would be doing this. Not on our own," Cindy said.

But they met and fell in love and decided that because of their relationship and the dreams they shared, they should try to run and eventually own a farm.

Cindy said it's as romantic as that.

"A good mariage has helped business," Cindy said. "We make a good team."

She handles the artificial insemination, he handles deciding which bull to use.

"John's really good at marketing. I seem to have a knack for the day-in, and day-out.

"He's concerned with the forage quality, and I work with the nutritional balance in the cows rations," she said.

The couple started off on a farm in mushroom-growing region around Avondale, near the Pennsylvania-Delaware border. They spent part of a year renting there.

For the past three years, the two had been renting a farm in Oxford in Chester County.

It was through the physical proximity of the Ulrich farm and the Chester County farm, and through mutual interest shows and activities in the Jersey Cattle Club that the Batchelders met up with the Ulrichs.

Bill Ulrich, whose son joined the Marines and didn't show an interest in taking over the farm, dispersed his Jersey herd last November. He had been milking 115 Jerseys. (Ulrich's 1990 end of year DHIA data shows his past milking herd at 105 animals with a rolling herd average of 14,187 pounds of milk, 709 pound of butterfat and 551 pounds of protein.)

The Batchelders milk about 50 Jerseys and 45 Hoslteins. The bulk tank shows a 3.8 percent to 4.2 percent butterfat test and a 3.4 percent to 3.6 percent.

Their goal is to maintain both herds. The Jerseys help with the bulk tank test and provide them premium money for milk solids other than fat. The Holsteins provide volume.

The goal is to have a farm with a 50-50 split.

"It seems to balance out well, with milk and protein," John said.

The Holsteins, while they don't get overlooked when it comes to breeding to good animals, are primarily for making milk and money. They also carry Jersey embryos which makes for extremely easy deliveries. And Cindy said it seem to her that Holstein cows delivering Jersey calves maintain better body condition, deliver larger Jersey calves, and breed back a lot faster than normal.

The profits from the operation are being reinvested and the couple has specific goals and direction for their operation.

Right now, about 10 percent of their annual income is attributed to selling of Jersey genetics — bulls for A.I. and embryos. The goal is to achieve an income percentage closer to 30.

John said they have enough head of cattle right now for milking. So the concentration has to go toward genetics in order to expand business opportunities.

Right now, with the barn up and running and a total mixed ration feeding system just starting up, the two are beginning to squeeze time in to unpack more of their personal items.

Their intent is stay for the long haul, in the quiet little valley with the spring-fed stream, stone farmhouses and willow trees in the pasture, barely within earshot of the constant traffic on Rt. 272.

They are working toward a dream they share.

And for the first four years of their marriage, the two have been lucky, they said. "But I think you make some of your own luck," Cindy said.

Cindy checks the condition of two young calves, one a Holstein, the other a Jersey. Several of the Batchelder's young bulls have been targeted for purchase by artificial insemination organizations.

Cindy Batchelder's duties include feeding the herd and raising the calfs. Here she gives milk to a several-day-old Jersey heifer calf.

Fastidious about herd health, John Batchelder performs predipping.

Reproductive Management Of Cattle Depends On Good Heat Detection

MICHEAL O'CONNER
Penn State Dairy Specialist

During times of low milk price, it is critical that herd managers reduce their losses by maintaining an optimum calving interval and avoid wasting semen.

Effective heat detection along with timely insemination are important to achieving reproductive efficiency.

Heat detection has always been a challenge to dairy producers because it requires time to get the job done when cattle are most likely to express mounting and standing behavior.

There is also a certain amount of skill involved in accurate detection of heat.

All too often herd managers become so anxious to detect a cow in heat that there is a tendency to inseminate cattle on almost any secondary sign of heat. Conception is much more likely to occur when cows are inseminated based on the primary sign — standing to be mounted.

It's important to realize there are two components to the heat detection equation. These are the efficiency and accuracy of heat detection.

Efficiency is expressed as the percentage of cycling animals that are identified to be in heat during a certain period of time. This may be a 21- to 24-day breeding period or a DHIA test period. Inefficient heat detection is the result of too many missed heats.

Accuracy refers to the percentage of cows identified to be in heat that are truly in heat. Heat detection errors or inaccuracy can be costly. For example, if 70 percent of the open cycling cows in a herd are detected in heat using various signs of heat during a 21- or 24-day period, but only 70 percent of these cows are in true physiological heat, then the overall effectiveness of heat detection is only 49 percent, and 30 percent of the services are wasted.

Another scenario would be a herd where only 50 percent of the eligible cows are detected in heat, but all of them are in true heat when inseminated (100 percent accuracy). In this case the effectiveness of heat detection is also only about 50 percent similar to the first herd situation. However, one would expect a higher conception rate in this second case because of the higher accuracy and thus more timely insemination.

In both cases only 50 percent of the cycling cows have a chance to conceive if everything else — including herd fertility, AI technique, environmental conditions, and bull fertility — were optional.

Not until the introduction of cow-side milk progesterone analysis did we have a tool to help dairymen evaluate their accuracy of heat detection.

Various studies have shown that greater than 5 percent, and as many as 30 percent, of cows inseminated are not in heat because they have high milk progesterone levels at time of AI.

Here are some suggestions to improve the accuracy of heat detection.

- To ensure accurate heat detection, allow cows to interact so that mounting and standing behavior can be exhibited.
- Use standing to be mounted as the prime indicator of true estrus.
- In larger herds, misidentification can be a problem. Use large visible ear tags, freeze brands or other methods to clearly identify cows so the correct cows are sorted out for insemination.
- Using heat detection aids as the only source of information that cows are in heat will generally result in inaccurate estrous detection.

DHIA Appoints Amick Field Ops Director

Dean Amick of State College has been appointed Director of Field Operations for Pennsyivania DHIA. In this position, he will oversee the services provided by approximately 250 field employees.

Dean is no stranger to PA DHIA, having worked as a supervisor in Lancaster County from 1954 to 1970, where he built an outstanding circuit of 90 herds.

Dean came to the Service Center at State College to manage the newly formed Central Milk Testing lab in 1970, one of the first centralized and electronically equipped DHIA labs in the world.

During the nearly 20 years he spent in that capacity, Dean was instrumental in organizing the North American Lab Managers Association, served as president for 3 years and received recognition as the foremost DHIA lab manager in North America.

Most recently, in the capacity of manager of Support Operations for PA DHIA, Dean successfully developed a sample transportation system, a vial recycling system and introduced a one-of-a-kind liquid preservative dispenser.

Dean and his wife, Shirley, have two children and one grandson. An avid sports fan, Dean also serves as district commissioner for the Amateur Softball League.

Good Heat Detection

• Provide an area for heat detection where there is good footing.

• Observe for estrus when cattle are not distracted by feeding, milking or other farm activities.

• Set a schedule for twice daily observation for estrous behavior.

• During warmer months, observe the herd during the cooler hours of the day or evening.

• Record all heats so future heats can be anticipated.

• Research has shown that the majority of mounting of cows in heat is performed by cows in proestnus or estrus. Very few mounts are exhibited by cows in midcycle. Thus allow all cows to interact so as to increase the chance of having a "willing" animal available to mount the cow in heat.

• Establish a foot care and hoof trimming program so that sore feet don't hinder mounting activity.

• Use heat detection aids to supplement visual observation.

Since estrous detection takes time, use your time efficiently. Observe for heat on a routine basis at times and in areas where cattle are likely to exhibit heat.

This should improve both the efficiency and accuracy of heat detection and thus result in less semen wastage and a more profitable calving interval.

RCMA Members Elect Directors, Delegates

BATAVIA, N.Y. — Pennsylvania's independent dairy farmer members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) elected representatives to the Board of Directors during regional meetings conducted throughout the state.

Elected were:

Gary Rickard of Honesdale, representing Region 12, Bradford, Susquehanna, Wayne, Pike, Lackawanna, Wyoming, Sullivan, Luzerne, Carbon and Monroe counties. Rickard is in partnership with his brother, Chester, in the operation of Clearfield Farms. Their sister, Sandra, manages the herd of 120 milk cows. They have a total of about 240 head. Gary is president of Sire Power and is a member of the Wayne County Bank and Trust Board of Directors.

Don Fetterolf of Aaronsburg, representing Region 13, McKean, Potter, Tioga, Lycoming, Clinton, Cameron, Elk, Clearfield and Centre counties. Fetterolf, who has been farming 17 years, operates a 300-acre farm with 55 cows and a few hogs. He is a director for the Soil Conservation Service, is past president of the Centre County Pennsylvania Farmers Association and served on a number of PFA state committees.

Carl Wenger of Pleasant Hill, representing Region 14, Cambria, Blair, Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata, Perry, Cumberland, Adams, Franklin, Fulton, Bedford and Somerset counties. He has been farming for 19 years and operates a 350-acre farm with 100 cows. He is a director of both the Crop Management Association and the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. He and his wife, Susanne, have five children, all of whom help around the farm.

Carl Brown of Pine Grove, representing Region 15, Union, Snyder, Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, Schuylkill, Lebanon and Dauphin counties. He and a son, Kevin, operate a 600-acre farm with a milking herd of 50 cows. He is chairman of the Schuylkill County Dairy Committee of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. He is a former member of the Milk Promotion Board, DHIA Board, Cooperative Extension committees and the Wayne Township Planning and Zoning Boards.

Donald Duncan of Robesonia, representing Region 16, Berks, Lehigh, Northampton, Bucks, Montgomery, Chester and Delaware counties in Pennsylvania, plus southern New Jersey. Duncan is a member of RCMA's Executive Committee. He, his wife, Anne, and a son, Donald Jr., operate a 130-acre farm with a herd of 110 registered Holstein cows. They also raise some dairy steers. Duncan is a director of the Pennsylvania DHIA and the NEBA Division of Sire Power. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Grange and Farmers Union and is former chairman of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

Joe Hess Jr. of Mt. Joy, representing Region 17, Lancaster and York counties. In partnership with his father, Hess operates a 300-acre farm with a milking herd of 120 cows. They also raise 50 acres of processing tomatoes. He is a board member of the Kraybill Mennonite School and is Bible school superintendent of the Mt. Joy Mennonite Church. He and his wife, Linda, have four children.

RCMA's directors meet monthly in either Syracuse or Albany to set policy for the organization, which has 22,000 dairy farmer members throughout the Northeast. RCMA has led efforts to establish higher milk prices throughout the Northeast, including the Rogers-Allen Act hearing that began this week in Albany, N.Y., to consider minimum milk prices for New York farmers. RCMA plans to establish minimum milk prices for New York farmers. RCMA plans to establish a similar over-order premium program to enhance dairy farmer income for farmers in the states surrounding New York.

Region 12, Edwin Jonas of Pleasant Mount; Kenneth Teel of Meshoppen.

Region 13, David Martin of Bellefonte; Donald Lepley of Williamsport.

Region 17, Thomas Zartman of Ephrata; Christian Becker of Elizabethtown.

RCMA collected over-order premiums for dairy farmers from 1987 through 1989 and distributed approximately $70 million to its members during that period. It charges no dues or fees. Farmers seeking more information about RCMA may call their regional director or delegate or the RCMA office, toll-free, at 1-800-634-3723.

ADADC Kicks Off June Dairy Month Promotions

SYRACUSE N.Y. — "Get Mooovin' with Milk" is the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council's (ADADC) theme for this year's June Dairy Month retail promotion.

A cow with a glass of milk on a skateboard will dominate the point-of-sale materials retailers will display at the dairy case.

These displays will include flags, banners and mobiles designed to attract shoppers' attention. Front window signs in neon orange and black are also available from ADADC to retailers who participate in the promotion.

In order to reach as many consumers as possible, milk processors will be encouraged to participate in a June Dairy Month "side panel" contest.

The side panels will feature a "Fruit Spangled Cooler" recipe, encouraging consumers to use dairy products for summer refreshments. All retailers will be provided with artwork for side panels for their store brand milk.

To further enhance retailer participation, ADADC has developed an ad manager contest, encouraging the use of milk artwork in retail ads that appear in newspapers during June.

Through this promotion, ADADC hopes to increase the sales of milk which have climbed slightly over the past year. Consumers have a "real" choice when it comes to buying a nutritious beverage.

The full family of milks — whole, 2 percent, 1 percent, skim and chocolate — is available in the dairy case in half-pints, quarts, half-gallons and gallons catering to customer needs.

The June Dairy Month promotion will be supplemented with an ice cream promotion in July and an August "Back to School" promotion making it a complete summer of dairy promotions.

The American Dairy Association and Dairy Council, Inc. conducts dairy marketing programs on behalf of dairy farmers in New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania.

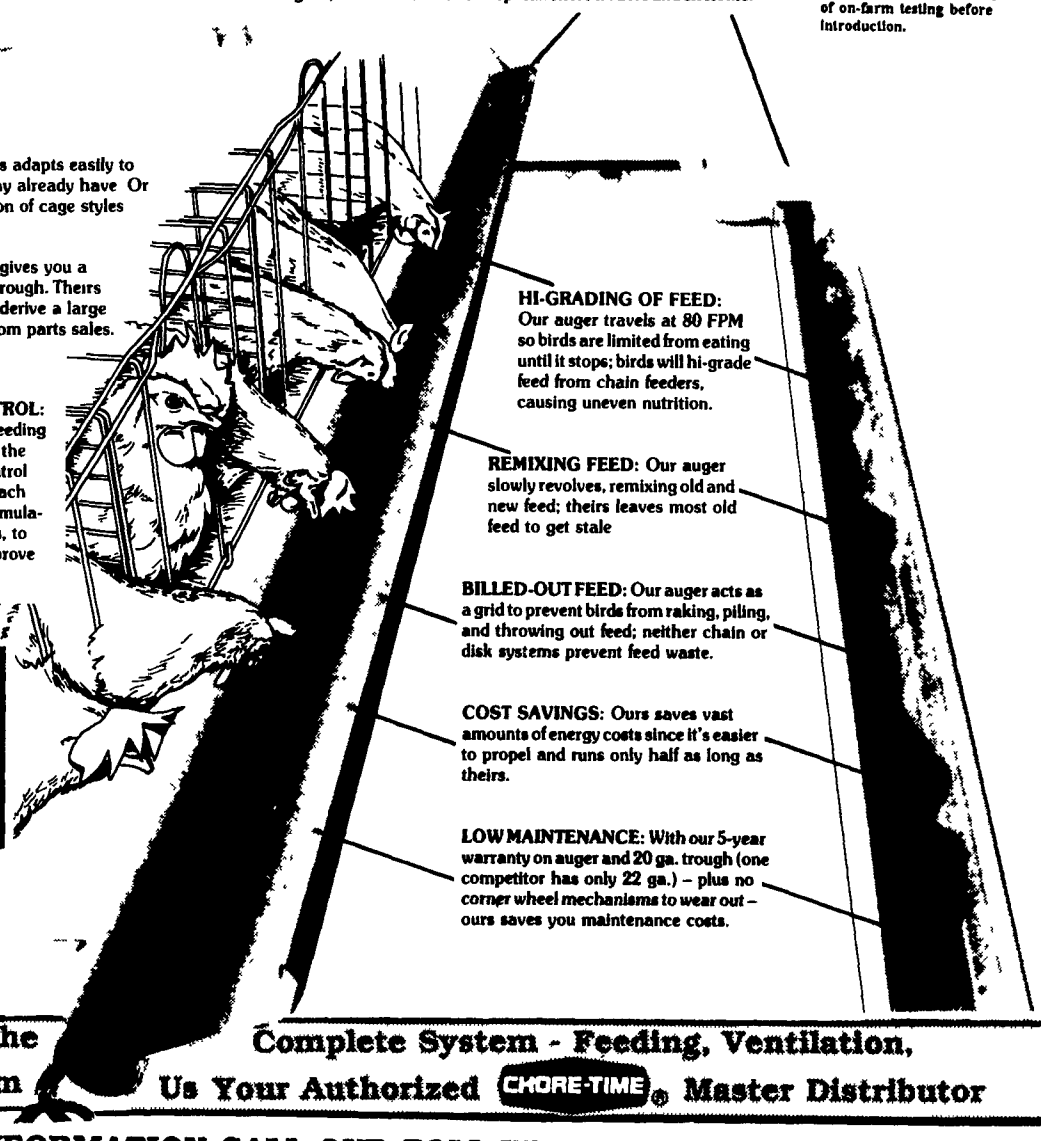
Over 50 Million Birds In 6 Years Prove It
Chore-Time's ULTRAFLO® feeder for layers, pullets and breeders
We have probably been too modest up to now about the merits of our new generation ULTRAFLO® cage feeder vs. the old style chain feeders some of our competitors are still trying to sell you. In fact, the only negative comments about our feeder come from our competition, not our customers. So we would like to point out the bare facts:
FEED SAVINGS: On-farm results show a feed savings of ½ lb. per 100 birds per day – over $10,000 per year savings on a 100,000-bird house. Year after year
TROUBLE-FREE DESIGN: Our feeder has only two moving parts – the one-piece auger plus each drive wheel; their chain has more. Our corners are heavy 12 ga. zinc plated tubing for long life; their corners have a reputation for trouble and short life.
PROVEN DESIGN: Over 45 million birds are already on our feeder worldwide. Also, it was proven in 5 years of on-farm testing before introduction.
EASY ADAPTABILITY: Ours adapts easily to existing cage systems you may already have Or choose from our wide selection of cage styles
5-YEAR WARRANTY: Ours gives you a 5-year warranty on auger and trough. Theirs doesn't. In fact, their dealers derive a large percentage of their income from parts sales. Ours don't.
MICROPROCESSOR CONTROL: Our control lets you program feeding time to the second, to match the exact time of one circuit. Control number of feedings, time of each feeding – also 10-second "Stimulation Cycles" between feedings, to minimize separation, and improve your birds' feed intake.

SIMPLE OPERATION: "Push-pull" Power Units with ⅓ or ½ HP motor are located in a cage, have hardened steel gears for trouble-free operation.


HI-GRADING OF FEED: Our auger travels at 80 FPM so birds are limited from eating until it stops; birds will hi-grade feed from chain feeders, causing uneven nutrition.
REMIXING FEED: Our auger slowly revolves, remixing old and new feed; theirs leaves most old feed to get stale
BILLED-OUT FEED: Our auger acts as a grid to prevent birds from raking, piling, and throwing out feed; neither chain or disk systems prevent feed waste.
COST SAVINGS: Ours saves vast amounts of energy costs since it's easier to propel and runs only half as long as theirs.
LOW MAINTENANCE: With our 5-year warranty on auger and 20 ga. trough (one competitor has only 22 ga.) – plus no corner wheel mechanisms to wear out – ours saves you maintenance costs.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — Farm milk prices continue to drop but are declining at a declining rate.

That's the economic term meaning the free fall in prices that you felt the last half of 1990 is over and more traditional seasonal drops expected this time of the year will be the trend.

The parachute has opened and the ground is in sight. Looking at the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series, that free fall the last half of last year took you from $13.43 in July to $10.19 in December for a drop of $3.24 or 55 cents a month.

Since then, from January to March, the M-W went from $10.16 in January to $10.02 in March for a drop of only 14 cents in three months, or about five cents a month.

No question there's still a difference, but the drop has flattened out considerably in advance of the spring flush.

The pattern is the same for the uniform or blend price in Order 2. The last half of 1990 saw a drop of $3.20 from $14.43 to $11.23 in December — about 60 cents a month. So far this year it has dropped only 21 cents in three months from $11.11 in January to $10.90 in March.

That $10.90 in March is only nine cents less than February, but a sickening $2.35 less than last March. It's better than the $4.24 difference in December.

Certainly you can argue that prices can't get much worse with the support price at $9.90 and the M-W at $10.02 but it can happen. There have been times in the past when the M-W fell below the support price because milk supplies were so excessive.

I don't believe that will happen this year and I'm guessing that the drops from now to June will be minimal before prices start going up this summer. The worst of the price drops are about over and if you can manage to survive the cuts of last year you can make it for the year ahead.

Decreasing Increases

Along with prices declining at a declining rate, milk production is increasing at a declining rate.

After increases nationally of 3 and 4 percent since last fall, February production increased only 2 percent.

Even more significant were the receipts in the three northeastern federal orders where increases fell from nearly 6 percent in December to only 2 percent in February.

Nearly all the increases nationally have come from higher production per cow rather than increasing cow numbers. In fact cow numbers have been dropping since last fall and in January and February were below the same months a year ago.

With feed prices showing no relief and milk prices dropping below last year the milk-price to feed-price ratio is down close to the break even point.

These are reasons enough for declining milk production, but if you factor in a declining number of cows you have a scenario for an anything-can-happen situation.

You don't need a disaster like the drought in the upper midwest in 1988 (that was a factor in providing the higher milk prices in 1989 and 1990). Just the normal problems of making ends meet on the average dairy farm may be enough to continue declines in milk production.

Suspension

One thing that will help a little this spring is the suspension of your Louisville Plan payments in Order 2 and Order 1 in New England. These are payments many producers are unaware of, but were voted in by them in a referendum many years ago.

They are part of an incentive to encourage more milk production in the fall months from August to November and less in the spring from March to June.

Payments of 20 cents in March; 30 cents in April and 40 cents in May and June are deducted from your milk check and returned to you with the earned interest from August to November.

This year however, after a petition from the northeastern cooperatives — including RCMA and the Milk Producers Voluntary Agricultural Association that combined represent 80 percent of the Order 1 producers and 32 percent of the Order 2 producers — the USDA has agreed to suspend the producer payments this year.

Of course, that means that you won't get any payments in the fall months, but the reasoning was that you need the money now for planting expenses and hopefully milk prices will be better in the fall to cover harvest expenses.

Emergency Legislation

I guess by now that every milk producers is aware of what has commonly been called the Leahy Bill that was an attempt to raise fluid milk prices this year to increase dairy farm income.

In the original form it would have meant $3 per hundred more on fluid milk in all federal order markets.

With varying Class I utilization in different markets it would have meant increases in the uniform or blend price to farmers from 50 cents in the upper midwest to nearly $3 in the southeast, with the northeast in at around $1.50 a hundred.

In an effort to make it more equitable and get enough votes to pass it, an amendment was made to give everyone the same increase or about $1.25 a hundred. This upset other areas who had to give up some of their $3; so the support was by no means unanimous.

There were other parts of the bill

RCMA Farmers Elect Representatives

BATAVIA, N.Y. — New York State's independent dairy farmer members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) elected representatives to the Board of Directors during regional meetings conducted throughout the State.

Elected were:

James Sullivan of Hammond, representing Region 3, St. Lawrence, Franklin, Clinton and Essex counties. Sullivan and two sons operate a 650-acre farm with a milking herd of 85 cows. He is a volunteer firefighter and has been a member of the Hammond Central School Board of Education for 20 years.

Fred Goodnough of Mannsville, representing Region 4, Jefferson and Lewis counties. Goodnough and his wife, Janet, the Jefferson County Farm Bureau president, operate a 600-acre farm with the help of their two oldest sons. Goodnough is a councilman for the Town of Ellisburg. He is a volunteer firefighter and served on the South Jefferson Central School Board for 15 years.

Paul McGeoch of Argyle, representing Region 5, Columbia, Greene, Rensselaer, Albany, Schoharie, Montgomery, Schenectady, Washington, Saratoga, Fulton, Herkimer, Hamilton and Warren counties. McGeoch is the fourth generation of his family to farm the 250 acres that was first settled by his ancestors in 1854. Now he and his wife, Barbara, have been joined in the operation by their sons, Raymond and Russell. They have a herd of 70 registered Holsteins. McGeoch is a member of the Holstein Association, Farm Bureau and Cooperative Extension.

Bill McCracken of Hamilton, representing Region 6, Oswego, Oneida and Madison counties. McCracken started dairy farming in 1968, when he purchased a calf as a 4-H project for one of his sons. At the time, he was working for Guiding Eyes for the Blind in Yorktown Heights, an organization that trains guide dogs. The family's interest in dairy animals grew as more 4-H calves were added to the herd. In 1976, McCracken bought a farm in Hamilton where he and his son, Chris, now milk a herd of 130 cows.

Bill Nedrow of Lansing, representing Region 7, Cayuga, Onondaga, Cortland and Tompkins counties. Nedrow and his brother, Jon, milk 500 cows on their 1,300-acre farm. Also involved in the operation are Bill's two sons, Jeffrey and Andrew, and Jon's son, Steve. Bill served 11 years on the Tompkins County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service board and 20 years on the county Farm Bureau Board.

Anne Livingston of Whitney Point, representing Region 8, Broome, Chenango and Otsego counties. Mrs. Livingston and her husband, Rensslear, farm about 600 acres and have a herd of 90 cows. John, one of their three children, has joind them in the farming operation. Mrs. Livingston is a member of the Broome County Farmers Home Administration Committee and served on several Cooperative Extension committees. She is a member of the Farm Bureau, the town Assessment Review Board, the county Agriculture District Committee and the Countryside Christian Chapel.

Arlan Button of Cohocton, representing Region 9, Wayne, Ontario, Seneca, Yates, Schuyler, Steuben, Chemung and Tioga counties. Button has been a dairy farmer for 14 years. He operates a 360-acre farm with 45 cows and 400 sheep. He served on the Avoca Central School Board of Education for 11 years and is a former member of the Steuben County Cooperative Extension Board. He and his wife, Carol, have five children.

Roger Cardot of Cassadaga, representing Region 10, Wyoming, Livingston, Allegany, Cattaraugus, Chautauqua, Erie, Niagara, Orleans, Monroe and Genesee counties in New York and Erie, Crawford and Warren counties in Pennsylvania. Cardot and his sister, Nancy McVaugh, operate a 225-acre dairy farm that has been in the family since 1866. After the death of their father, the brother and sister operated the farm for their mother, then purchased it in January 1989. They have been expanding the operation and currently milk 55 cows and have approximately 45 young stock.

Bill Murphy of Prospect Farms, Stamford, representing Region 11, Delaware, Dutchess, Orange, Ulster and Sullivan counties in New York, Sussex, Warren, Hunterdon and Passaic counties in New Jersey. Prospect Farms was started by Murphy's family in the early 1800s. Bill's son Doug is the seventh generation to operate the farm, which now features a milking herd of 750 cows in six confinement barns. Murphy, a former executive of Grolier publishers, is a director of the Stamford National Bank and president of the Farmers Preservation Alliance, which is working to promote a strong rural influence in matters affecting the Upstate New York community.

Murphy is a member of RCMA's Executive Committee and is secretary of the organization.

RCMA's directors meet monthly in either Syracuse or Albany to set policy for the organization, which has 22,000 dairy farmer members throughout the Northeast. RCMA has led efforts to establish minimum milk prices in New York State, including the hearing scheduled to begin April 16 under the Rogers-Allen Act. The hearing, which is open to the public, will be conducted at the Polish Community Center, 225 Washington Avenue Extension, Albany. It is expected to last about two weeks.

Each RCMA region is represented by delegates at the annual meeting in December, when important membership issues are discussed. Regions with large independent membership have two delegates and two alternates. Delegates and alternates elected include:

Region 3, John Wilson of Hammond; Kevin Acres of Madrid.

Region 4, David Porter of Adams Center; Thomas Whitmore of Adams Center.

Region 6, Richard Engelbrecht of Madison; Harlan Jones of Cazenovia; Larry Taylor of Cassville, John Gilbert Jr. of Clayville.

Region 7, Robert Hill of Memphis; Thomas Abend of Marietta.

Region 11, William Inman of Bovina Center; Mark Mattson of Downsville.

RCMA collected over-order premiums for dairy farmers from 1987 through 1989 and distributed approximately $70 million to its members during that period. It charges no dues or fees. Farmers seeking more information about RCMA may call their regional director or delegate or the RCMA office, toll-free, at 1-800-634-3723.

Chester-Delaware Farmers Review Local, Federal Issues At Banquet

farms won't be driven from farming.

Also at the meeting, issues brought up at the recent PFA Harrisburg Legislative Tour were discussed, including a review of the Milk Marketing Board budget cuts, returnable containers, nutrient management, right-to-farm laws, wetland regulations, labor act regulations, and other issues.

The nutrient management bill, according to Harold Kulp, is "coming down the pike. Farmers have to be aware of" the program, he said.

Kulp urged the members to keep their "eyes and ears open and feed the information to me" regarding nutrient management issues.

William G. McCoy, president of Union Stockyards, spoke about his recent visit to China at the Chester-Delaware Co. Farmers' Association meeting last week.

Membership goal

Roy Romberger, regional organization director, announced the PFA statewide membership goal of 5,951 members (Membership as of the meeting date was 5,904).

Changes to the organizations by-laws were also reviewed, which included an increase in the annual dues and other matters.

In addition, awards were presented at the meeting. A special recognition for the best county insurance program in the state was presented to Melba A. King, PFA insurance agent, by Harold Bryson, Chester-Delaware County Farmers Association treasurer. Also, Charles Wollaston, membership chairman, was honored for his efforts with the Kingpin Award by Roy Romberger, regional organizational director.

Near the meeting's conclusion, William G. McCoy, president of Union Stockyards, spoke about his recent visit to China. A delegation is trying "to develop a beef cattle industry there with ruminant animals and convert inedible protein into edible protein, also to foster goodwill and understanding among our respective peoples," said McCoy.

Md. Set To Battle Moths

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Gov. William Donald Schaefer recently announced Board of Public Works approval of six contracts totalling $1,162,220 to help Maryland battle mosquitoes and gypsy moths this year.

Chaired by the governor, the Board of Public Works also is comprised of Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Treasurer Lucille Maurer. The board is authorized by the General Assembly to approve major construction and consultant contracts, equipment purchases, property transactions, and other procurement actions.

"The approval of these contracts demonstrates the state's continuing commitment to battle these pests," said Gov. Schaefer. "Three of the contracts will allow the Department of Agriculture to conduct aerial spraying to control gypsy moths in several areas of the state. The other three provide for aerial spraying against mosquitoes, mainly in the four lower Eastern Shore counties.'

Winning the major contracts for spraying gypsy moth sites were Bob Ruhe Ag Service of Ohio and AgRotors, Inc. of Pennsylvania; while Bunting's Dusting, Inc. of Berlin, Maryland; K & K Aircraft of Virginia; and East Coast Helicopter of Pennsylvania were awarded contracts to spray for mosquito control.

The gypsy moth and mosquito control programs in Maryland are cooperative efforts involving federal, state, county, and local agencies which cost share the expenses for the programs.

There are more than 50 known species of mosquitoes found in Maryland and, depending on the weather conditions, mosquito control work spraying is done using ground application equipment or from the air using aircraft.

A variety of aircraft are used for mosquito spraying. Helicopters are used for spraying small areas and near towns and cities. Single-engine aircraft are used for areas up to 500 acres and twin engine planes are used for spraying areas that can be as large as 3,000 acres.

The Maryland Gypsy Moth Cooperative Suppression Program uses mainly helicopters to apply an insecticide to protect trees from defoliation and damage by the gypsy moth. During 1990, the program sprayed more than 1,100 separate sites. In 1991, the program will spray more than 160,000 acres in 21 counties and Baltimore City.

Right Eating Habits Equal A Healthy Child

NEW YORK — Placing inappropriate pressures on children about their food choices can retard growth and cause distorted body image, eating disorders and other emotional and psychological problems, according to the Coalition for Healthy Children.

The Coalition for Health Children is a panel of childhood experts from a variety of disciplines, including pediatric medicine, behavior, nutrition, fitness, anthropology and education.

Sponsored by National Dairy Council (NDC), the coalition convened to advise parents and care givers of children ages 2 to 10 on the range of objectives that contribute to a healthy total child. They challenged many widely believed misperceptions about children and childhood.

Coalition member Ellyn Satter, M.S.W., R.D., of the Family Therapy Center of Madison, maintained that attitudes about eating are becoming too negative and punitive.

"Children should be nurtured," she said. "Eating disorders begin early in life. Parents should take responsibility for the food they offer their child and let their child regulate how much he or she wants to eat."

For example, Satter said, parents or care givers should never force children to eat, nor restrict children's food intake at meals.

"Children who are restricted from eating certain foods at mealtime will become preoccupied with eating and probably overeat when they get a chance. These children are fearful that they will never get enough food," she said.

And, according to a recent article in "Teacher Magazine," children as young as 5 years of age fear being fat and often diet with adverse health effects.

The article notes that children pick up health messages geared toward adults, distort them, and inappropriately apply them to their own eating habits.

This spring, influential national health organizations are expected to recommend that all Americans over age 2, regardless of health status, consume no more than 30 percent of total calories from fat.

Such recommendations often are interpreted by parents to exclude many foods children enjoy, such as ice cream cones, hotdogs and pizza.

"Nutrition should be driven by balance, variety and moderation," said Tab Forgac, M.S., R.D., vice president of Nutrition Education and Public Affairs for NDC.

"Our objective is to educate parents that all foods fit into a healthy diet and to remind them of the valuable role, like enjoyment, foods play in a child's life."

"A Generation Under Pressure--Growing Up in the 90s," was a health and education forum sponsored by the National Dairy Council, it's local affiliate Dairy Council Inc., and other affiliated units from around the country.

New fiberglass chute features deep-sided design to increase throwing ability. Durable, yet light in weight and easy to handle.

New auger shroud, made of 12-gauge galvanized steel, resists corrosion Features bolted construction for easy service.

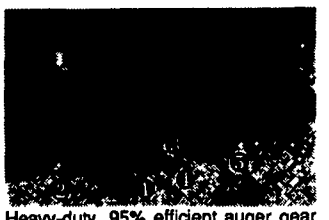
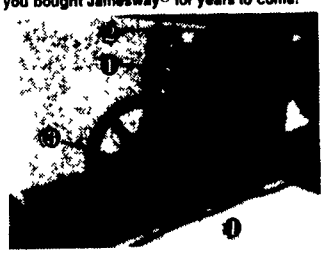
the REAL ring-drive unloader with the performance features that will make you glad you bought Jamesway® for years to come!



Heavy-duty, 95% efficient auger gear box (1), with new vent design, features new protective sealing lip on output shaft. New casting design features enclosed input and output shaft bearings for added dependability. New 3-bolt flange design (2) prevents auger from rusting to auger gear box output shaft. Also shown are: sight glass (3), new easy-fill piping (4) and new flex line shaft connection (5).*

Quality-built collector ring provides proven trouble-free performance. Features 11-in. diameter, ¼ -in. wide copper alloy rings for reliable transmission of electrical power. Rings are stacked vertically, not horizontally, for big "no arc" spacing. A self-cleaning opening prevents dirt and dust buildup.*



Removable and adjustable 950 R P M impeller (1), available with rigid or swinging self-cleaning paddles, and new adjustable shear plate (2) provide optimum unloading performance New impeller bearing cover (3) and new polyethylene shroud cover (4) protect against corrosion from silage acids *

- Large Tri-Suspension frame provides proper balance for even silage cutting.
- 2"x2"x¼ " angled steel frame has greater strength
- Forged ½ " steel eye-bolts allow for individual cable adjustment and proper balance.
- Three, strong, ¼ " aircraft-type cables provide high-tensile strength and dependability.

- Auger knives are sharpened, hardened and curved. Result: augers and chipper wheels maintain proper wall pressure for better cleaning and more aggressive cutting and digging of hard-packed or frozen silage.

Honey Bees Must Be Mite-Free

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — The supervisor of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's (MDA) Apiary Inspection Program reminds individuals purchasing packaged honey bees or queens from out-of-state firms that all packages must have a valid inspection certificate issued in the state of origin stating that the bees are free of diseases, including varroamites.

Only shipments of varroa mite-free honey bees produced inmite-free areas will be allowed entry into Maryland. All shipments of packaged bees or queens, with the exception of those bees shipped from Alabama, must contain Apistan (miticide strip/queen tab), which provides insurance that the bees or queens will be varroa mite-free upon arrival in Maryland.

Alabama is the only major packaged bee-producing state that has not detected varroa mites. This makes Alabama exempt from Maryland's requirements for including Apistan package bee strips and queen tabs in shipments to Maryland beekeepers.

"We need to be strict in the matter of importing disease-free packages and queens in order to protect Maryland's honey bee population," said Bart Smith, of MDA's Apiary Inspection Program. "Last year, three shipments of honey bees to Maryland contained varroa mites. These shipments did not contain the Apistan package strips that would have killed the mites."

Packaged bees can be used not only to establish new colonies, but also to replace those bees lost during the winter or to strengthen weak and queenless colonies. A typical packaged honey bee shipment contains about 10,000 honey bees (three pounds) in a screened cage which is shipped through the U.S. mail.

Any questions on Maryland regulations regarding the purchase of packaged honey bees should be addressed to Bart Smith, Apiary Inspection, Maryland Department of Agriculture, 50 Harry S. Truman Parkway, Annapolis, MD, 21401, (301) 841-5920.

but there are more dairymen doing it every day without problems.

Economics: A university that will be spending 5 million dollars to renovate their dairy facilities thinks they can make $30,000 more per year by selling 55 color breed cows and adding 60 holsteins no matter how many students they will lose or contributions from research funds or private individuals. With the implementation of multiple component pricing in federal milk market orders color breeds are competitive. I think they are not properly looking at all the figures. There are jersey dairymen in Pa. making more than that in protein premiums per year. I have been told the most efficient and profitable herd the Penn State dairy science club visited in California was a Jersey herd.

Education: With more dairy students without dairy backgrounds, it seems important to me to have alternative breeds at Penn State and especially for 4-H and FFA judging contests.

The Jersey breed has increased 11.5% in the last 5 years while holsteins have increased only .8%. Jersey registrations were up 42% in the 80's as opposed to the 70's. Pa. ranks #1 in the nation with Jersey transfers. Contrary to what Dr. Curtis indicates holsteins represent 91% of cows on DHIA and we feel 10% deserves a voice.

As the fastest growing dairy breed we feel we deserve to be represented and to have input into our land grant institution advisory committees not just hear from some robot who cannot listen to any feedback or concerns.

Eastern Shore Showcase Sale Big Success

FAIR HILL, Md. — The Eastern Shore Showcase Sale held March 23 at Fair Hill, Md., was another tremendous success, with 38 calves and heifers averaging $944.

The rain did not keep the large crowd away, as the barn was filled to overflowing with Holstein people who came to admire the super quality at this year's sale.

Top seller at $1,900 was Gallantry Wayne Mae, a bred heifer by Wayne Spring Fond Apollo. She was consigned by Charles Moore, North East, Md. She was bought by Melvin Stoltzfus, Cochranville, Pa.

Interestingly, Charles Moore purchased this heifer as a calf in the same sale series 2 years ago.

Second high seller was a fine heifer by Trifecta, consinged by John Hubschmidt, Bridgeton, N.J., and struck off to Memmus Forrest, of Rising Sun, Md., for $1,550.

Two baby December calves consigned by GAry and Gail Thoman, of Dallastown, Pa., brought $1,300 each. One was sired by Leadman and the other by Vanguard.

Calves were sold to buyers from Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland.

Kent Ferrel and Bud Debnam were the auctioneers with Don Welk assisting. Bob Knutsen read pedigrees.

Representatives of the participating Holstein clubs from Cecil, Harford, Kent, Queen Anne, Baltimore, Delaware and York said they were thankful for the support by consigners, purchasers and all club members who helped set up and clean up.

AGWAY ANSWERS YOUR NEEDS

Legislative Agenda Proposed

• Create financial incentives rather than mandates for participation in the programs.

• Create a system for certifying organic foods so that standards are established and consumer confidence can be built in.

• Prepare Pennsylvania for possible participation in the federal Farms For The Future Act, a federal pilot program of the 1990 Farm Bill. The future act provides for federal funds to be used in securing development easements on farmland. The pilot program is currently restricted to Vermont, home of U.S. Sen. Patrick Leahy, chairman of the U.S. Senate ag committee.

To make each of those six initiatives work, the senators have identified nine problems, and analyzed each, with recommendations of solutions, costs and possible implementation.

Each of the three Pennsylvania senators has worked on different issues within the entire package. Eventually, proposed legislation can be expected to emerge with all three senators endorsing each other's bills.

However, each senator is to have their own particular legislation which will carry their name as prime sponsor. Exactly who will propose what, is yet to be decided.

Explaining some of the need for the entire package, state Sen. Helfrick said, "One of the goals of AG-2000 is to preserve farmland for the future. Pennsylvania has an effective farmland preservation program in place, but additional funding is needed to broaden the scope of this program and purchase more conservation easements.

"Although more than one million acres of farmland are now eligible for the program, easements cost between $700 and $10,000 an acre, and only a limited number can be protected.

"However, there is federal assistance available — if Pennsylvania takes advantage of it," he said.

Sen. Wenger, who had been the impetus behind the current farmland preservation legislation, said that it is important for Pennsylvania to ready itself for the possibility that the Vermont pilot program will succeed and federal assistance will become available through Congress.

Wenger's farmland preservation efforts have spanned years and he has sponsored laws, which, taken separately, have little effect in showing change, but when placed together, interact to create whole effective programs.

He said legislation to prepare Pennsylvania for eligibility for federal funds is such a program. It could possibly be used to affect possible nutrient management legislation.

Sen. Helfrick apparently agrees with the approach to creating effective legislation.

"The 1990 Farm Bill offers states access to a program called 'Farms for the Future,'" Helfrick said. "The farm bill provided a program to help states purchase conservation easements, and Pennsylvania, with its reliance on agriculture, should be among the first states to take the necessary steps to obtain this federal financial assistance."

Helfrick said he is also proposing legislation to cost-share federal crop insurance premiums so that Pennsylvania farmers can afford to be protected.

"With increased revenues invested each year in cash crops, this insurance could give farmers protection against loss due to adverse weather, insect infestation and plant disease. State assistance with premiums would encourage more farmers to purchase coverage.

"In order to take advantage of the program, farmers would have to establish management plans, to ensure that their crops are established with sound conservation and nutrient practices.

"By encouraging more farmers to purchase crop insurance along with management plans, we can help them protect themselves from financial loss in the event of a flood or drought."

Helfrick is also planning to be involved with legislation that would support testing the practicality of certain unused technologies, especially as it concerns manure handling.

"My final bill provides for the use of anaerobic manure digesters, which allow manure to decompose and have the added benefit of producing methane gas that can be used to generate electricity for the farm.

"State assistance would help Pennsylvania take the lead in building several demonstration manure digesters to enable farmers to see how they can put livestock manure to work in generating the electrical power they need to operate their farms.

"All of these proposals would help farmers continue their role as caretakers of the land and water, while continuing to make farming a viable industry in Pennsylvania for generations to come."

Sen. Wenger said he would also like to see legislation create demonstration plots on farms to determine the practicality of some of the sustainable agriculture methods.

According to Wenger, results of research are not enough and shouldn't be enough to convince a farmer to risk everything for something that the general public desires.

He said his legislation would creat grants and loans for such uses.

"I think it's appropriate to have a small amount of money to use for those types of things," Wenger said.

The complete package of AG-2000 would be paid for with a $12.5 million revolving loan fund. An additional $10 million would be needed as an outright expense, he said.

And of the $10 million, more than half of that would be used to boost an expanded Chesapeake Bay program.

He said that with additional money and an expanded Chesapeake Bay program, more funds would be available to farmers who wish to participate in nutrient management and need to make some capital improvements, such as manure storage facilities.

According to Wenger, the agenda package is currently in circulation among other senators. He said it's too early to gauge reaction to the proposals.

"My goal is to get some of this passed this session," Wenger said. However, he said he wasn't going to stand behind something that would not be well-forged.

"I think it's like a lot of the other farm issues we worked on for a number of years. We're not going to rush it, but we are serious, very serious about it."

FOR THE WEEK ENDING APRIL 14

GOOD WEEK FOR FIELDWORK: A very warm start for the week caused temperatures to be above normal, allowing 5 days for field work according to our respondents. Activities for the week included: repairing fence; hauling manure; spreading fertilizer; maintaining machinery; spring plowing; planting crops; and caring for livestock.

SOIL MOISTURE: Topsoil moisture, across the Commonwealth, was rated short by 5 percent of our respondents, adequate by 82 percent, and surplus by 13 percent. Three percent of our respondents in the northern region, rated soil moisture as short, while 84 percent rated it adequate, and 13 percent rated it surplus. Six percent of our respondents in the central region rated soil moisture as short, 76 percent rated it adequate, and 18 percent rated it surplus. In the southern region, four percent of our respondents rated it short, 92 percent rated it adequate, and 4 percent rated it surplus.

PLOWING: Spring plowing was 35 percent completed, that's 2 percentage points behind last year's 37 percent. The five-year average for this date was 31 percent. Twenty-two percent of spring plowing was complete in the northern region, compared to 41 percent in the central region, and 39 percent in the southern region.

CORN: None of the Commonwealth's corn crop was planted by the end of the week. Last year at this time none was planted, and the five-year average was one percent.

OATS: By week's end, 37 percent of the Commonwealth's oats were planted. Last year that figure was 32 percent. The five-year average was 30 percent. In the northern region, 21 percent was planted. The central region had 33 percent planted and the southern region had 63 percent. The oat crop was rated 15 percent excellent, 67 percent good, 9 percent fair, 1 percent poor, and 8 percent very poor.

POTATOES: Across the Commonwealth, 20 percent of the potato acreage was planted according to our indications. This is ahead of last year's 17 percent and the five year average of 13 percent.

BARLEY AND WHEAT: Barley was 99 percent pre-boot and 1 percent boot, while last year's and the 5 year average was 100 and 0 respectively. Wheat was still in the pre-boot stage of development. The wheat crop, across the State, was rated 20 percent excellent, 52 percent was in good condition, 22 percent fair, 4 percent poor, and 2 percent very poor.

FRUIT: According to our respondents, 57 percent of the peaches were in the pre-pink stage, 30 percent were in the pink and 13 percent was in the full bloom or past stage. Last year at this time 57 percent of the peaches were in pre-pink, while 29 percent were pink and 14 percent were full bloom or past. Cherries were 63 percent pre-pink, 25 percent pink, and 12 percent full bloom. Eighty-four percent of the cherries were in pre-pink at this time last year. Thirteen percent of last year's cherries were pink and 3 percent were full bloom or past. Apples were 90 percent pre-pink, 10 percent pink, and none full bloom or past. Last year apples were 91 percent pre-pink, 8 percent pink, and one percent full bloom or past.

HAY AND PASTURE: Our reporters rated alfalfa hay stands 55 percent as good, 40 percent rated alfalfa stands as fair, and 5 percent rated alfalfa stands as poor. Clover-timothy stands were rated good by 60 percent, fair by 36 percent, and poor by 4 percent. The quality of feed being obtained from pastures was rated good by 5 percent of our respondents, fair by 12 percent, poor by 45 percent and very poor by 38 percent.

-The Kirkwood Community 4-H Club held its regular monthly meeting in the Bart Colerain Elementary School, Bartville, last Tuesday.

For the program, which began at 8 p.m., a demonstration on sweet corn growing was presented.

The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday, May 9 at the Kirkwood Odd Fellows Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Reporter for the club is Martin Greenleaf, Jr.

-Miss Mary Kathryn Keene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Keene of Christiana R1, was named Miss Lancaster County Milkmaid Tuesday night.

The 20 year-old ex-farm girl, who is now a junior at Pennsylvania State University, won the crown in competition with Miss Joanne Bixler, Marietta R1; Miss Joyce Kreider, Quarryville R1, and Miss Sylvia Emenheiser, Mount Joy R1. .

Miss Keene, who was crowned by the 1960 milkmaid, Miss Barbara Keener, Manheim R3, will represent the county in the state contest at Bedford Springs next month.

Miss Keene has lived all her life on a dairy farm, but says she has had more experience exhibiting sheep. Her grand champion trio and single fat lamb winnings at the 1957 amd 1958 Pennsylvania State Farm Shows are evidence of her experience.

-Carl G. Troop, Quarryville R3, an eleventh grade student of vocational agriculture at Solanco High School, has been named winner in the annual truck essay contest sponsored by two Quarryville firms. Second prize went to Richard Kenneth Geyer, Quarryville R1.

-Lancaster County Future Farmers swept the first six placings in the York-Lancaster Area Land Use and Management contest Wednesday.

Winner in the contest, in which 45 FFA members from the two counties particpated was 15 year-old Martin Wenrich, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wenrich, Denver R2. He is a 10th grade student at Cocalico Union.

His closest competitor was Harold Lefever, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Lefever, Quarryville R2. He is in the 10th grade at Solanco High School.

-by Winthrop Merriam- Lancaster County will be represented at the National 4-H Conference by Darvin Boyd, Ephrata R1. This annual affair opens April 22, with four club members from each state in attendance.

"My dairy farm is located on rolling terrain in Reedsburg, Wisconsin. After the first cutting, I used the Aer-Way on my thinning alfalfa stand to get the fertilizer and water into the ground. The second cutting was noticeably better with thicker and leafier alfalfa. I would recommend the Aer-Way to other dairy farmers."

PSU Advisory Council Topics

The Penn State Advisory Council visits the new Agricultural Science and Industry building.

(Williams was talking about the headline on Vernon Achenbach, Jr.'s, article on page one of last week's issue of Lancaster Farming that broke the news to the dairy industry.)

"I'm torn between two loves," Williams said. "As a Penn State educated man, I graduated in 1931, I love Penn State. But I have also made my livelihood from Jerseys for 58 years and that makes me sad. I'm concerned about Penn State's image. Selling the Jerseys is like teaching only English. No Russian, no Chinese, no Japnese, French or German.

"It's like having only football; no baseball, track, lacross or hockey; like an all white student body or like cutting one leg off the Nittany Lion.

"I'm sorry for the students because they will only see black and white cows, those big cows, and they will not know there is anything else. Most of all, I'm sorry for the professors with only black and white watery milk to drink and no good ice cream.

"So, I beg you to reconsider this decision and keep the cows of vivid quality," Williams said. "Diversity is the strength of America and has been a very profitable influence on our history. Remember to think about Penn State's image. The Nittany Lion is more than dollars and cents."

Dean Lamartine Hood said his background included the remembrance of when in 1952 the "new" dairy center was completed. There were five dairy barns, a barn for each breed.

"But over time, as we have tried to make sure our reserarch and teaching programs were of the quality they need to be, the number of animals we have been able to maintain in the colored breeds has been reduced," Hood said. "We have not been able to keep enough animals for research purposes, and also the animals we were retaining for teaching purposes were not very representative of their respective breeds.

"We did a thorough anaylsis and concluded that for long range programs the industry would be better served by our concentrating on the Holstein breed," Hood said. "This way we will have enough cows to do research. And we will rely on herds in the region for our teaching purposes in the colored breeds."

Harold Kulp, Pennsylvania Ayrshire Breeders, said he wanted to back up what Williams said. "If they had a real problem with whatever breed, there should have been a little more communication between us to explain the problem, and maybe we as a breed could have helped them out."

Someone asked if black and white was not a color. Others were concerned that breeds in cattle, sheep and hogs would also be eliminated. At no time was the discussion heated. And with everyone's opinion, you could sense a love for Penn State and for the dairy cow that provides so many benefits to society.

Darwin Braund, director of research, Agway, provided a summary. "I may be one of the few people here who has worked directly with the herds of this university both in the old barns and in the new barns," Braund said. "I would suggest that we are facing issues in agriculture that are unprecedented, and we are going to do things differently than we expected to do.

"When I came (as a student) from Bradford County, I had never seen a Brown Swiss or Ayrshire cow until I set foot on this university campus. However, I have a distinct opinion that land grant universities have to change with modern and commercial agriculture. I believe land grant universities must develop centers of excellence. They cannot continue to have programs for all areas.

"I can see the concern of the breeders expressed, that they were not consulted much ahead of time, and I can see this as a challenge in communication that may be an important lesson for follow-ups. But maybe the breeds would do well to take advantage of herds of excellence that are already in existence where they have enough critical mass of animals of high quality that they can do milk composition studies, nutrition studies or physiological studies. Some of these herds are already in existence. For example, North Carolina State has a very excellent Jersey herd. And the University of Tennessee has a superior and very high producing Jersey herd.

"I personally am disappointed Penn State will not have these representatives in our dairy herd. However, I suggest this can be a positive turn around so that we can now get the university faculty and students off campus into the real world of high quality commercial breeder herds around the state for teaching and judging," Braund said.

On budgetary issues, Hood said the College of Agriculture had made significant gains in 1987 and 1989 in terms of funding for extension and research. This was critical to rebuilding Penn State extension but also to build research efforts.

"But what has happened in the past year has significantly eroded the gains in those earlier years," Hood said. "In the current budget year, the university requested a nine percent increase for ag research and extension. This was calculated strictly on the basis of what it would take to keep our programs going on at the same level. We got three percent and therefore down sized the college. We have five fewer county staff and seven fewer faculty. This is done by attrition.

"In addition, we were notified in early January that we would need to return three and one-half percent of our moneys to the state," Hood said. "When you get notification half way through the year, it effectively doubles the figure. This means a seven percent reduction of moneys for the balance of the year, translated to be $1,060,000.

Hood said their request for a nine percent increase for next year has been met with a zero percent increase for extension and a 10.4 percent reduction for research in the governor's budget. "This would be absolutly devastating and would almost negate any progress we made on the research side and significantly impact the extension programs," Hood said.

In other business, the council members toured the new Agricultural Science and Industry building, and John Rodgers, representing the National Ayrshire Association, presented two national awards to Dr. Larry Muller for work with Penn State's Ayrshire herd. The PSU Ayrshire herd has 100 percent home bred and owned animals and had the second highest productiomn record in the nation for herds of 15 to 24 cows. The award was based on average production of 17,219 lbs. of four percent milk.

Pat Schlusser, Pennsylvania Nurserymen's Association and council president, chaired the meeting.

PCCEA Elects Officers

UNIVERSITY PARK, (Centre Co.) — John O'Brien of Mt. Bethel was elected to a 2-year term as president of the Pennsylvania Council of Cooperative Extension Associations (PCCEA) in voting by the council's two-member administrative board. Betty Woodruff of Montour County was elected vice president.

The PCCEA is a statewide group of more than 1,200 volunteers who provide guidance and support for Penn State Cooperative Extension programs. Members serve on their respective county extension boards and include business people, farmers, retirees and homemakers, among others.

"As president, I will work hard to promote agricultural research and extension," said O'Brien. "It also is important that PCCEA attract more lay volunteers who believe in the land grant philosophy of extension education."

O'Brien, a 35-year veteran with Agway, is a construction manager in the company's building division. He has been active for 20 years in 4-H programs and on the Northampton County Fair Committee.

O'Brien succeeds Faye Cauffman of Millerstown as PCCEA president. Cauffman cites the establishment of leadership development programs and an enhanced PCCEA role in advising the College of Agriculture's extension administration as highlights of her 4-year tenure.

Soviet Agribusinessmen Study U.S. Farms

DOYLESTOWN (Bucks Co.) — Thirty high ranking Soviet agricultural experts on Monday traded their Siberian lifestyles for that of American college students when they began a 3-week study of modern agriculture in the United States at Delaware Valley College.

The program is part of a 5-year, larger effort designed to provide 1,300 Soviet senior executives and middle managers with a crash course in capitalism.

The program was initiated and developed by U.S.S.R. government officials and two American firms: Vectors International (VI), a Narberth-based firm specializing in Soviet and Eastern European trade arrangements, and Educational Advisory Services (EAS), a Philadelphia-based consulting firm specializing in scholarships and other academic programs.

VI and EAS determined that Delaware Valley College's (DelVal) agricultural expertise and global farming contracts made it an ideal site for course studies in agribusiness.

The visiting group includes directors of agribusiness complexes, collective farm heads, leaders of expermimental farms, as well as managers from academics and governmental institituions specializing in farming.

Dr. John C. Mertz, DelVal provost, said he was pleased the the college's faculty members and facilities were chosen to update the Soviets on the latest developments in agricultural, scientific and economic areas of interest.

According to Mertz, the international status comes to DelVal on the celebration of its 95th year.

The goups toured Kreiders Farms, Penn Field, Sprout-Bower and Huber Farm Machinery yesterday. Their intinerary includes visiting a number of working farms, food processing plants, farm equipment centers and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's research facility in Beltsville, Md.

They will be touring every other day.

The 3 week course is the second offered this year. Two months ago, a miliar visit was arranged for Soviet electric power executives to the Philadelphia area for comprehensive studies.

Also a group of Chinese agribusinessmen is scheduled to visit the college April 29.

that also drew agreement and disagreement, like the 50 cents a hundred to producers of manufacturing grade milk; $32 million to the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) for administrative costs; rising costs to consumers and welfare programs; and, most importantly, changing the minimums requirements of solids-not-fat in all fluid milk products.

The bill was introduced in early March and after amending was attached to an appropriations bill for Desert Storm expenses that had to go to a conference committee on appropriations for the House and Senate.

It barely made it, but was eliminated by the conference committee who had to get the appropriations bill passed before Congress adjourned March 22 for their Easter recess.

So what did we learn?

Lessons From Leahy

Mainly what we already knew — that it's tough to get all segments of the dairy industry to agree on changes no matter how bad the situation may appear.

Also, we learned that drastic changes, such as those proposed, need more time for discussion and compromise and the best time to develop "emergency" legislation is before the emergency occurs, while heads are cool and minds are open.

Perhaps we should have settled for price relief only, without adding other provisions like the minimum solids.

Increasing the Class I price was tried, because it avoided reopening the 1990 Farm Bill. But uniform payments to all producers nationally sounded to some like the first step toward one national marketing order and that will take more than the two-week debate that went into the Leahy Bill.

If you learned anything, it should be that agreement on changes in the present pricing and marketing system are going to take time, and lots of it, for discussion and compromise. It's tough to keep everybody happy and in business.

Back To Work

With Congress back in session, perhaps there will be another effort at "emergency" legislation, but I doubt it.

Mainly the heat will be on USDA to fast track their proposals for a supply management — excuse me, "inventory management" program — that's due by August 1, but Congress would like to have by June 1.

That's unlikely, considering the number of proposals made and the vacant positions in USDA, but maybe they'll settle on something in between.

While they're waiting, the House Agriculture Subcommittee started hearings to review farm-to-retail dairy product pricing for evidence of price gouging.

However, with the competitiveness in the dairy industry — especially in milk — prices don't stay out of line for long. In fact, by the time you read this, the hearings will be over, with no evidence of processors taking advantage of the low farm prices to make excess profits.

"Kiddin' Around" 4-H Goat Club

Children ages 8 through 19 can become members of the new York Co. "Kiddin' Around" Club. Parents also can participate, but only the children are required to have a project.

The objectives of this 4-H club are to provide learning experiences through educating about the dairy goat industry, to encourage leadership in youth, to promote fellowship through social and recreational activities, and to support the greater York County 4-H program.

Club activities include field trips to dairies and shows; youth shows; workshops; and lots more. Club meetings are held the second Tuesday of each month. The meetings rotate between member's homes, to encourage family fellowship. In December, a Christmas party will be held at the 4-H Center.

For more information about the Kiddin' Around 4-H Club, contact Jennie Hess at the extension office at (717) 757-9657.

WE NEED MORE WHITE SOYBEAN GROWERS AT $12.00 PER BU. CONTRACT. GROWING MARKET NEEDS THEM FOR SOY FOOD AND MILK. OUR ORGANIC GROWN MAKES BETTER QUALITY. WE HAVE YELLOW SOYBEANS FOR SEED THAT TEST 47.75% PROTEIN

They should transmit their superiority. Price $18 per bu. Parent stock has made 90 bu. per acre.

ALSO 40% PROTEIN YELLOW BEANS GROWN ON OUR GOOD NUTRI-CARB FERTILIZER

which produces very low or non-toxic feed, then the livestock do considerably better in health, production and weight gains. Farmers pay $8.00 per bu. for them if they are toxic free, because they are worth it. You should grow them on our Nutri Carb too and receive the better price, while at the same time your soil improves because of many more soil microbes and earthworms which puts life in your soil and the earthworm castings are the best fertilizer in the world, and it is free. Therefore we are practically weaning farmers off of fertilizer purchases. They are really happy. So we need more customers. How about weaning you off?

Ladies Day Blends Historic Fashions, Current Issues

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.)— Fashions from a century ago and front-burner agriculture issues shared center stage at the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association regional ladies day out program, held April 10 at Wisehaven Hall.

About 100 member women from the southeastern area of the state attended the PFA region 1 gathering, hosted by the York County Farmers' Association's women's committee.

The historic fashion show was in honor of this year's celebration of York's 250th birthday. Tamara Funk, educational coordinator for the York Historic Society, spoke on the significance of clothing in helping to trace historic development and on how to most safely store garments.

"When you learn to 'read' clothing, you can learn so much about social history, technological, social and moral changes," Tamara said of the study of fabrics and costuming. "Construction details change, hand to machine construction changed; you can see economic and trade history in clothing."

"Museum collections tend to be skewed though," she notes. "Women's clothing was saved more than men's. Small peoples' clothing survived more readily than that of larger people, which was re-used or restyled for others. Wealthy people saved clothing more than poorer people, and those fabrics were the more expensive."

Because the average and large-sized items are the ones that have tended to survive intact. Thus, earlier generations were often assumed to have been smaller-built than today's generation, a theory disputed by recent studies, says Tamara.

And, as a show of hands among the audience attested, special garments - like wedding dresses - are what was, and still is, preserved. Everyday items, when they were completely worn out or beyond remaking, went for rags, leaving few work clothing items for collectors and museum display.

Museums use some special techniques for garment preservation, but some are just careful methods of storage that are adaptable for home use, says the museum costume specialist.

Garments should be kept out of light to avoid fading. When not on display, museum fabric items are kept in total darkness. Temperature and humidity should be maintained at as constant a level as possible, since changes can cause swelling and shrinkage of fabrics, hastening deterioration of fibers.

Style from a gold brocade-like fabric, this late 1890's top of an evening gown survived for posterity. Special occasion garments are primarily what have survived the decades, rather than everyday and work clothing.

Leslie Shelburne, museum teacher for the York Historical Society, modeled a 1860's ensemble of black velvet accented with an accessory again popular, a white lace collar.

"Avoid attic and basement storage," Tamara emphasizes. "Keep prized items like quilts on the main floor, preferably on an inner wall, if on display. Closets toward the inner part of the house are best for storage."

Since modern paper contains numerous acids, special acid-free tissue is available for use in wrapping garments for storage. Clean white cotton fabric, or even printed fabric if well-worn, such as old bedsheets, are also usable.

Ag Issues Addressed

Pat Sueck, Airville, told the ladies day out attendees they need to speak out to counter claims of radical environmental and holistic activities groups.

"We must speak out or we'll lose control, we must tell the 'good' story and get involved," said the PFA women's committee member from York County.

She noted that animal rights groups now comprise a $300 million industry, with radical groups responsible for some 90 terrorist acts of thefts, break-ins and vandalism.

Agriculture, said Sueck, now contributes 17 percent of the nation's Gross National Product, from two million farms, 97 percent of them family-operated. One in every six jobs is agriculture related.

Farmers should arm themselves with statistics on how vital a continued viable agriculture is to a world of hungry people: 5.5 million children in the U.S. go hungry and 6 million more are at risk; 41,000 children die daily around the world due to hunger; and the population of the world is increasing at the rate of 100 million annually.

Edith Lehman of Lebanon County displays a wool shawl that belong to her great grandmother, a farm woman.

Tamara Funk dresses her part for moderating the historic fashion show in a long, flowered day dress over a white shift, fastened with straight pins. She holds a dress from the early 1900s.

"We must speak out or we'll lose control, we must tell the 'good' story and get involved," said the PFA Women's Committee member from York County.

Vice-chairman of the state PFA women's committee, Ruth Weaver of Washington County, emphasized the need to continue lobbying at state and national legislative levels.

"It is the most important thing you women can be doing," she urged. "You'll be helping agriculture and you'll be helping America." Priorities of the women's committee, she said, are food safety, agriculture literacy, animal welfare, and farm safety.

Also featured on the ladies day out were Stewartstown farm woman and vocalist Nancy Marstellar and a presentation on herbs by Spoutwood Farms of Glen Rock.

Pat Sueck, York farm woman and PFA women's committee member, urged women attending the Ladies Day Out to get involved and speak out on critical agricultural issues.

Silk skirts, such as this floor length one of the 1890's, were of a fashionable fabric that is shredding over time, even in careful storage.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Which cover is the best? When a recipe says cover, what kind of cover should I use? Do all foods need covering?

I've been answering these questions for the 13 years that I've been writing "Microwave Minutes." They're still "good" questions and certainly worth reviewing for experienced and new microwave cooks.

This year, I can tell you about a new cover to add to the list of microwave covers. It's called Microwave Wrap, a non-stick cooking paper made by Reynolds. While it may go nationwide in the future, if you live in the Upper Midwest you may have already seen it in supermarkets and wondered how to use it, so I hope the following helps.

It's billed as revolutionary. What makes it revolutionary to me is that it works so well. It doesn't melt like some plastic wrap, doesn't get soggy or tear like waxed paper and doesn't stick like paper towels. It's a high density paper treated with an organic coating to make it grease and moisture resistant. It's approved by the FDA for food contact and is certified Kosher.

No one kind of cover is best for microwaving, but this comes very close. I really like it for covering foods like quiche, wrapping sandwiches and whole potatoes, micro-stir-frying, lining candy and bar cooking dishes, covering crispy chicken pieces and more. Making little cooking packets is a way to cook a no-mess individual meal (See Lemon Scallops en Papillote, and variations — below). It's also good for covering when you want to prevent splattering or for long simmering, where plastic wrap may melt.

I have found, however, that it lets moisture escape, so while it's good for all the uses I've mentioned above (where you don't want foods soggy or steamed), it isn't the best choice when you really want to steam foods, such as when cooking fresh vegetables.

Plastic wrap or a tight-fitting casserole lid is still best for steaming. Plastic wrap forms the tightest cover, so it holds in the most moisture and heat. It's best for steaming vegetables; cooking eggs; and precooking vegetable seasonings, like chopped onion and green pepper.

Plastic wrap or a tight lid helps tenderize, so is good for cooking casseroles, soups and stews that contain uncooked ingredients and for large meats or less-tender cuts.

Waxed paper is not a substitute for plastic wrap. Waxed paper holds in some heat and moisture and prevents splattering. It's generally used for micro-roasting whole poultry and cooking skinned chicken or hamburger patties. It's good for cooking casseroles containing milk or lots of sauce along with uncooked ingredients, such as escalloped potatoes or rice pudding. On fish, it gives a less-steamed, "fishy" taste than plastic wrap. Waxed paper is also good for reheating foods that should stay as crisp as possible, like oven-baked chicken.

Waxed paper does get limp and soggy after long cooking, so that's where Microwave Wrap would be a good substitute. Microwave Wrap also lets more steam escape, so is better for micro-baking and reheating crispy foods.

Paper towels have special uses, but again, Microwave Wrap, since it doesn't stick, could be substituted in any of the following. Bacon is generally cooked between paper towels, so fat is absorbed and splattering eliminated. (With Microwave Wrap, follow package directions.) An individual roll or sandwich is wrapped in a paper towel (or napkin) and a plateful of rolls or sandwiches are covered with a paper towel to prevent sogginess.

Sometimes no cover is needed. Puddings, white sauce, gravy, crispy "baked" skin-on chicken pieces, cakes and muffins are left uncovered—just like in conventional cooking. Whole vegetables in their skins, such as winter squash, potatoes and corn in its husk, need no extra covering during microwaving. But, if potatoes or squash are cut, the cut-edge should be tightly covered with plastic wrap. Husked corn should be tightly covered during cooking.

Today's recipes are from a 32-page cookbooklet, featuring Microwave Wrap. It gives 29 delicious recipes, full-color photos, step-by-step directions and some excellent quick cooking tips, such as avoiding messy clean-up, microwaving in a packet, heating perfect pancakes, cooking easy-to-handle potatoes and others. To order your copy, send $1 to cover postage and handling to: The Reynolds Wrap Kitchens, Microwave Speed Meals, P.O. Box C-32003, Dept. CS-86, Richmond VA 23261-2003.

Jalapeno Beef and Cheese Roll-Up

2 8-inch flour tortillas

4 1-ounce slices thinly sliced cooked roast beef

½ cup shredded Monterey Jack cheese with hot peppers

2 tablespoons milk thick and chunky salsa

Soften tortillas (See below). Place 2 roast beef slices on each tortilla. Sprinkle evenly with cheese. Spoon 1 tablespoon salsa evenly down center of each filled tortilla. Roll up tortillas, enclosing filling. Wrap each filled tortilla in a piece of Microwave Wrap (or waxed paper), twisting edges to seal. Microwave 2 tortilla roll-ups on High for 1¼ to 1½ minutes or until cheese melts. Makes 2 servings.

TO soften tortillas: Soften and heat before filling to avoid cracks and tears. Fold a sheet of Microwave Wrap in half; place tortillas inside. Fold open edges up to seal packer. Microwave one 8-inch tortilla on high for 10 to 30 seconds; 2 tortillas for 15 to 35 seconds; 4 tortillas for 45 seconds to 1¼ minutes.

Each roll-up: 330 calories, 27g protein, 15g fat, 21g carbohydrate, 295mg sodium, 80mg cholesterol.

Lemon Scallops en Papillote

1 10-ounce package asparagus cuts

1 cup thinly sliced carrots

¼ cup margarine or butter

2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 pound sea scallops, fresh or frozen

Dried dill weed

Lemon pepper or salt-free herb seasoning

Place asparagus and carrots in 1½ -quart microwavable casserole. Cover with Microwave Wrap (or plastic wrap, or tight lid). Microwave (High) 3½ to 5 minutes or just until asparagus is thawed (not hot). Drain and set aside. Melt margarine in a small microwavable dish by microwaving (High) 1 to 1½ minutes; stir in lemon juice and mix well. Set aside.

Fold 4 sheets (12x12-inch each) of Microwave Wrap in half. Stack papers atop each other. Starting at fold draw and cut a half heart shape; unfold. On each, arrange a fourth of vegetable mixture and a fourth of fresh or thawed scallops next to fold line; top with a fourth of margarine mixture. Sprinkle with dill weed and lemon pepper. Refold Microwave Wrap over scallop mixture. Starting from one end, fold a short length of the paper edges together, then fold over again. Continue folding until cut edges are completely sealed. Repeat for remaining packets. Place 2 packets on a microwavable plate. Microwave (High) 3½ to 6 minutes, rotating plate once. Let stand unopened 3 minutes. Repeat with remaining packets. Makes 4 servings.

Each serving: 234 calories, 22g protein, 13g fat, 10g carbohydrate, 372mg sodium, 37mg cholesterol.

TO THAW FROZEN SCALLOPS: Use a larger casserole for vegetables and add scallops. Cover and microwave (High) 5 to 8 minutes or just until thawed. Do not heat; stir after about 3 minutes and watch carefully towards end.

NOTE: You may make a square packet — similiar to the foil ones made for grilling individual meals — turning edges over several times to seal.

VARIATIONS: Use fresh or frozen uncooked shrimp, a thin 4-ounce skinless boneless chicken breast half or a 5-ounce fillet of fish and soft vegetables, such as shredded carrot, thinly sliced zucchini, fresh pea pods or thawed vegetables. Season as desired. Cook as above.

Hey! Folks

If your cows are slipping and falling, it ain't my fault because I have a machine called a Scabbler that will fix that concrete so your cows won't keep slipping all the time.

We've got service all around this section of the country, and I have a fellow just jumping to do your job mighty fast.

And that ain't all, our prices are right reasonable, and if you're a tightwad we'll let you do the job yourself if you've got over 500 square feet. It can save you right smart a money.

So call me on my nickel at 800-692-0123. If I'm not by the phone, some real live person will take your number, and I'll try to get back to you real soon. Usually somebody is awake in this outfit, so you just call any time day or night. But, please mind the Lord, and don't call on Sunday.

Just one more thing. We fellows make our living doing this kind of work, and we've got children to feed and bills. That's our side of it, but you've got such things too. A lot of people tell us that this Scabbling saves a whole lot more than it costs. So go ahead and do it. It'll put shoes on everybody's feet.

Be looking to hear from you folks right soon.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

The rush of dread that washed over me as I approached the pen lasted only momentarily.

Sadness quickly replaced it. I quickly reached in and lifted out Skunk, the big black and white cat, which crouched there on the straw.

But it was too late. Gus lay limp, his soft, gray-furred body still warm. Just as we were getting attached to the gentle, tame "Easter bunny" gift to our son, this tragic, accidental clash of two pets had ended his life.

I wanted to be angry with Skunk, but knew that would be wrong. Skunk, though he's affectionate and gentle, is a farm cat. He patrols the fields and barns for mice and rats. And cats are unable to differentiate between tame and wild in potential prey.

A wire run which attached to Gus's pen allowed us to move him about the yard to different spots, where he grazed on the fresh green grass and stretched out in the sunshine. In fact, Gus so preferred grass that he literally turned up his wiggly gray nose at lettuce. Skunk had found a loose spot in the wire and wood run and wiggled through it.

While Gus' stay with us was much too short, the little rabbit carved a niche in the corners of our hearts where we keep warm memories of pets that we've known — and loved — and lost.

Looking back over the years, we've loved quite a few pets of varying sorts.

Princess and Dusty always come to mind. This loveable mother-and-daughter pair of collie dogs saw our babies into toddlerhood, and helped me bid our oldest farewell the first day she stepped on the school bus. Not too long after that, Princess was killed when a car hit her.

Her daughter went into mourning in the springhouse, absolutely refused to eat or drink for several weeks, and died of obvious heartbreak.

That was a tough one for the kids to understand. It wasn't a whole lot easier for the grownups, either.

An accident similar to that of Gus' also took away Ali, our daughter's beloved and incredibly tame guinea pig. Ali (short for Alabama, which was her name when she was given to us) loved to roam the yard, running for cover if any danger threatened. Our cats and dogs knew her and let her alone. But a friend's dog, a dog accustomed to hunting groundhogs, never knew the difference when he hopped from her car one day and Ali happened to be out nibbling grass. No one felt worse about it than my good friend; but it was just an accident.

Lamb Chop was a - what else? - sheep which we bottle raised for a neighbor, a triplet barely alive when she arrived in our kitchen. Prayers and warm milk brought her through the crisis, and she grew into a great pet of the kids. A year later she had Scooter, a rambunctious youngster which eventually joined Grandpa's little flock of meadow-munchers when he took to ramming the kids. Lamp Chop fell prey to one of the mysterious maladies that sometimes affect sheep - and we were out of the shepherd business.

The teenage girl "horse" period we went through with our daughter brought us two equine "temps" one winter. A program in which summer camp trailride horses were farmed out to willing boarders through the off-season brought us Gaucho and his buddy whose name eludes me.

Gaucho I remember because he instinctively knew a non-horse person and inevitably found some way to wrap me around a fencepost. While our daughter missed them, this Mom had no regrets at sending them back to camp.

The "temps" were replaced with Jubee, an ex-barrel-racing mare that thrived on competing with the three-wheeler on runs through the hayfield. Jubee was tearfully sold when her owner needed college money; and we were also out of the horse business.

But we remain in the cow, cat, and dog business and will no doubt continue to love pets, despite the hurt when we lose one. After all, 'Tis better to have loved and lost, then never to have loved at all" doesn't only apply to people.

They're redesigning the pen for a pair of bunnies.

Win Year's Supply Of Ice Cream

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program (PDPP), Giant Foods, Inc., of Carlisle, and the Harrisburg Senators have teamed up to sponsor the "Ice Cream Home Run Inning" contest. Harrisburg area residents can win a year's supply of ice cream by entering the contest at participating Giant Food Stores.

Each week, drawings will be held from names collected at participating stores. Three names will be selected for each Senator game (a total of 140 games are scheduled). Then, the first three Harrisburg Senator's batting in the fourth inning will be competing for each respective contestant. If any one of the three batters hits a home run, their contestant may win a one year supply of ice cream.

For all names drawn, a consolation prize — one-half gallon of ice cream — will be awarded by Giant Food Stores, Inc. The contest begins on April 10, and will end no later than September 15.

The "Ice Cream Home Run Inning" contest is part of a radio advertising promotion with the Harrisburg Senators Baseball Club. Interested persons can enter the contest at in-store displays at any participating Giant Food Store in the Carlisle/Harrisburg/Lebanon area. Further information and contest rules will be posted at Giant's in-store displays.

Fans visiting Riverfront Stadium will also be able to win in the "Billboard Home Run" contest. If their game program bears a stamp on the PDPP and Giant advertisement on page 39 of the program, they will be eligible for a consolation prize or the grand prize.

In the "Billboard Home Run" contest, the grand prize will be awarded if a Harrisburg Senator ballplayer hits a homerun over the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program/Giant Foods Ice Cream Billboard in left center field. The contest will be conducted at home games only. The contestant will be eligible to win the grand prize only at the game mentioned on the program.

Limit one grand prize winner per household. No substitutions or transfer of prizes permitted unless otherwise indicated. The odds of winning a prize will depend upon the number of eligible entries received. By entering the contests, entrants consent to the use of their names and/or photographs without additional compensation, in any publicity carried out by the contest sponsors.

The contests are open to all United States residents. Employees of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program and Giant Food Stores, Inc., are not eligible. The contests are subject to all federal, state, and local laws and regulations. By participating, entrants agree to these rules and the decisions of the judges, which shall be final.

Further information about the contests is available by calling the PDPP at (717) 787-6903. A complete copy of the contest rules can be obtained by sending a self addressed and stamped envelope to the PDPP, 2301 N. Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA, 17110-9408.

It's the right time to apply lime

Lime application during the winter allows the limestone time to react and gives you the advantage of rich, pH-balanced soil for your spring planting. Winter ground conditions also reduce soil compaction and rutting during spreading.

Rhubarb Cooking For Every Taste

The rhubarb plant, sometimes referred to as pie plant, is classified as an herb and sometimes as a vegetable; however, for cookery it is classed with fruits.

Fresh, field, or hothouse rhubarb is available. When making your selection, get fresh, large, crisp, and straight stalks of red or cherry color. The condition of the leaves is a reliable guide in judging freshness.

For those who would like to expand their collection of rhubarb recipes, order Rhubarb Cooking for All Seasons. It has more than 150 recipes compiled by LaDonna Thompson. Send $6 to Rhubarb Cookbook, Box 392, Hopkins, MN 55343.

RHUBARB SAUCE

2 pints rhubarb, fresh or frozen
1 pint strawberries, mashed, fresh or frozen
2 cups water
1 6-ounce box strawberry Jell-O
1½ cups sugar

Chop rhubarb finely and measure. Cook the rhubarb in water until soft. Stir in Jell-O. Add sugar and strawberries. Serve cold, topped with whipped cream or add 1 more cup of water before cooled and serve over Angel Food Cake.

Contributor writes the sauce is delicious and is a good year-round dessert.

RHUBARB PIZZA

¼ cup sugar
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons shortening
1 egg, beaten with 2 tablespoons milk

Pat mixture into bottom and sides of pan. Place 3 cups diced rhubarb over crust. Sprinkle 3-ounce box of strawberry Jell-O over top.

Mix together and sprinkle over rhubarb and Jell-O:

½ cup sugar
½ cup flour
½ cup melted margarine

Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes.

RHUBARB CAKE

1½ cups brown sugar, packed
½ cup shortening
1 cup sour milk or buttermilk
1 egg
2 cups flour
2 cups diced rhubarb
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Cream brown sugar and shortening, then add egg. Sift together flour, salt, and soda. Alternately add small amounts of flour mixture and milk to egg mixture. Fold in diced rhubarb. Pour into greased 9x13-inch pan. Combine sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle on top of cake batter. Bake in 350 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Serve with whipped cream or ice cream.

FRENCH RHUBARB PIE

2 eggs
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
4 tablespoons flour
3 to 4 cups rhubarb, diced
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell

Topping:

¾ cup flour
½ cup brown sugar
⅓ cup butter, softened

Mix eggs, sugar, vanilla, and flour. Add rhubarb and pour into pie shell.

Mix flour, brown sugar, and butter to crumbs and sprinkle on pie. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes and continue baking at 350 degrees for 30 minutes or until set. May be served warm with milk or ice cream.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — M. Martin from Mount Joy would like a recipe for white mousse like Bonanza Restaurant serves in a Jell-O ring.

QUESTION — Mrs. James Ollinger of Lancaster would like to have a recipe for "Moravian Buns," sometimes called small cakes. They are round with brown sugar circle in center. She likes the kind made by Achenbach's.

QUESTION — Patricia Smith, Gore, Virginia, would like recipes for beef stew that includes a nice, thick, brown gravy, and can be canned; and for red pepper soup, which is thick and cheesy with tiny bits of red pepper. "It's delicious, but not too hot or bite-y," she writes.

QUESTION — Mary Miklarcis, of Thompson, Ohio, would like recipes for a Mock Pecan Pie that is made with pinto beans; a fruit cake made with Jack Daniels, and Washington Pie Squares that the bakeries used to sell for five cents during the Depression.

QUESTION — Mrs. David Fisher, Lewistown, is looking for ways to obtain sugar products from sugar beets.

QUESTION — Mabel Barkman, Three Springs, would like to know the exact amount of marshmallow creme to add to the pumpkin whoopie pie filling. The recipe was in the February 23 issue, but the contributor did not specify the amount.

QUESTION — Joan St. Germain of Attleboro, Ma. enjoyed the applesauce and pumpkin cakes that are canned in wide mouth canning jars (the recipes appeared in this paper). She asks if anyone has a recipe for quick breads that can be made in canning jars?

QUESTION — Mrs. Lewis Kofron of Claymont, Del. would like a recipe for salting mackerel to keep for several months.

QUESTION — Laurie Woodrick of Belle Mead, NJ would like to know if apple fritters fry best in solid shortening or what is best since she thinks oil is too absorbent and heavy.

QUESTION — Tina Forry would like a recipe for salsa to can and for salt dough pies.

QUESTION — Mrs. Jonas Troyer, Wyoming, Del., would like recipes for both lemon filling and peanut butter filling used in doughnuts.

QUESTION — Susan Unger of Berkeley Springs, W.Va., would like the name and address of a candy mold company where she can mail order candy molds.

QUESTION — Mrs. Arthur Yoder, Doylestown, would like a recipe for potato stuffing.

QUESTION — Claire Landis, Farmville, Va., is looking for a recipe for fried squash blossoms.

QUESTION — Joann Hensley, McGaheysville, would like Amish recipes, especially for Amish macaroni and Amish vegetable salad.

QUESTION — Margaret Shaud, Columbia, would like to know how to make goatmilk candy that tastes like taffy in vanilla, chocolate, and strawberry flavors.

QUESTION — Debra Shultz of Halifax would like a recipe for Tandy Cake, which is a heavy, thick, moist white-flavored cake with a peanut butter topping and chocolate icing on top. She has seen recipes for a sponge or chiffon cake batter but she wants the heavy, moist cake variation.

QUESTION — Mary Ann Ebersol of Bird-in-Hand would like to have recipes for peanut butter and mint topping for ice cream.

ANSWER — A reader requested a recipe for potato puffs or Fat Rascals. Thanks to J.B. of Dornsife for sending the recipe.

Fat Rascals

1 cup mashed potatoes
1 egg
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ cup flour
3 tablespoons milk
Salt to taste
1 tablespoon sugar

Mix together ingredients. Drop by tablespoons into hot oil in skillet and fry until lightly brown.

ANSWER — A fan from New Jersey requested a recipe for apple toad pie. Thanks to Frances Homa, Alpha, N.J., for sending the recipe that she said always comes out fine.

Apple Toad Pie

Peel and core enough apples to fill 9-inch pie pan. Sprinkle flour, sugar, and cinnamon in bottom of pie pan. Place apple halves with cut-side down in layers. When full, sprinkle more flour, sugar, and cinnamon on top. Bake until finished about 45 minutes. When cool, top with whipped cream.

ANSWER — Mrs. Allen Miller, Catawissa, would like the recipe for shoofly pie that doesn't cook out. Thanks to Miriam Hilsher of Elizabethtown for sending her favorite recipe.

Shoofly Pie

Crumbs:
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon shortening
¾ cup brown sugar

Mix well and set aside ½ cup for topping.

Bottom:
1 egg
1 cup table molasses
¾ cup hot water

Mix together and add to crumbs. Add:
1 teaspoon baking soda dissolved in ¼ cup hot water

Pour into unbaked 9 or 10-inch pie crust. Top with crumbs that have been set aside.

Bake at 375 degrees for 30 minutes. Yields 1 pie.

On a salt-free diet? Omit salt and add 1 teaspoon vanilla to bottom part.

On a low-cholesterol diet? Use 2 egg whites instead of 1 whole egg.

ANSWER — Kathy Keeny, Glen Rock, requested a good fruit cake recipe. Thanks to Christine Rudolph, New Oxford, for sending a recipe that she said is delicious.

Dark Fruit Cake

Preheat oven to 275 degrees. Grease an 8x8x3-inch fruit cake pan or several bread pans. Line with brown paper (wax paper may be used) and grease again. Combine:
1 pound seedless raisins
½ pound seeded raisins
½ pound currants
½ pound chopped dates
½ pound candied cherries (dry maraschino)
½ pound blanched almonds, halved
¼ pound pecans, halved

Blend or sift together:
1¾ cup wheat or white flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon ginger

Stir dry ingredients into fruit mixture. Cream:
1 cup butter
1¼ cup brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla

Beat until light and fluffy. Beat in gradually:
6 eggs
½ cup grape juice

Stir into flour and fruit mixture. Turn into prepared pan. Bake in preheated 275 degree oven for 2½ to 3 hours or until cake tests done with toothpick.

Best if cooled cake is wrapped in the brown paper in which it was baked. Stick into plastic bag. Refrigerate for one to two weeks to cure.

ANSWER — Greta Dise, Glen Rock, requested a recipe for dill pickles that stay hard and crisp like the ones that are purchased refrigerated in the groceries. Thanks to Mrs. M. Gatz of Bradford County who writes that she uses the recipe that appears on Mrs. Wages Pickle Mix.

Rhubarb

RHUBARB CRUNCH

Mix until crumbly:
1 cup flour, sifted
¾ cup uncooked oatmeal
1 cup brown sugar, packed
½ cup melted butter
1 teaspoon cinnamon

Cover with 4 cups diced rhubarb. Combine the following:
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine half of crumbs in a greased 9-inch baking pan. Add diced rhubarb. Combine second mixture and cook until thick and clear. Pour over rhubarb. Top with remaining crumbs. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour.

RHUBARB BARS

Filling:
3 cups cut-up rhubarb
1½ cups sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Crust and topping:
1½ cups flour
1½ cups oatmeal
1 cup shortening
1 cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ cup chopped nuts, optional
1 3-ounce package strawberry gelatin

Mix rhubarb, sugar, cornstarch, and water. Cook until thickened. Cool and add vanilla.

Mix flour, oatmeal, shortening, brown sugar, and baking soda together until crumbly. Add nuts. Pat about half into a 9x13-inch pan. Press down. Spread the cooled rhubarb mixture over crust and sprinkle with gelatin. Pat other half of crumbs on top. Bake in a 375 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until a light tan color and bubbly on edges.

Serve with whipped cream or ice cream, if desired.

RHUBARB IN PANCAKE BATTER

1 pound rhubarb
Rind of ½ lemon
5 ounces sugar
Fat
Mixture of cinnamon and sugar
4½ ounces flour
Pinch of salt
1 egg
1 pint milk

Peel and chop the rhubarb into small pieces and cook in ½ pint water with lemon rind and sugar. The pieces should remain whole. Drain. Make up thick batter of flour, salt, egg, and milk; coat rhubarb and fry in hot fat. Sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon mixture.

Cook's Question

ANSWER — Mrs. Pearl Griffith of Glen Moore needed a recipe for corn cob jelly. Thanks to Marie Geisinger, Edna Miller, Woodbury; Rhoda Conover, Gettysburg; Grace Glock, Fallston, Md., and Brenda Stant, Preston, Md., for sending recipes.

Corn Cob Jelly

12 bright red corn cobs
3 pints water
1 package Sure-Jel pectin
3 cups sugar

Wash cobs and break open into small pieces with a hammer. Put cobs in a large kettle. Add water and boil for 30 minutes. Drain off and strain the juice. This should make 3 cups of juice, but if it doesn't add more water and boil for 20 more minutes.

Measure the 3 cups of juice in a kettle and add the pectin, stirring to dissolve. Bring to a good boil and add 3 cups sugar. Boil until tests done, which is only a minute or two.

Do not need to add flavoring and coloring as it has its own — tastes a lot like apple jelly.

If cobs are kept until springtime, the cobs are very dry. Boil the cobs three times with 3 pints of water each time. Omit the pectin and bring the sugar and juice to a boil and you get flapjack syrup.

Contributor said that she uses field corn cobs.

Corn Cob Jelly

12 sweet corn cobs
4 cups water
4 cups sugar
1 box fruit pectin
Red food coloring

Mix cobs and water; boil for 10 minutes. Measure 3 cups liquid and strain through cloth. Put into saucepan. Add 1 box fruit pectin and bring mixture to a rolling boil. Add sugar and bring to a boil. Simmer for 3 mintues. Skim. Add 1 or 2 drops red food coloring for a pink color. Jelly will be clear and taste like honey. Pour into glasses and seal.

Grace Glock said that her mother has made this jelly for years, and that it is a big seller at church bazaars.

Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas
Lancaster Extension Home Economist

American lifestyles have changed dramatically within the last decade. These changes include the growing number of women working outside the home, the greater number of people living alone and lacking the desire to cook for themselves, the prevalence of less formal lifestyles, convenience for meeting rushed mealtime schedules and increased disposable incomes. These have brought about changes in eating pattems, food choices, methods of preparing food and the manner in which food is consumed.

All these changing meal patterns provide an opportunity for greater use of meat in convenience products, fast foods, single serving foods and the use of such convenience appliances as toaster ovens and microwave ovens. A recent National Livestock and Meat Board survey confirmed that convenience has become the major factor in consumer buying decisions. Foods and diet must meet the needs and preferences of today's family situation and lifestyle.

To fill the demand for convenience foods, many new products are appearing in the freezer case at supermarkets. Upscale gourmet frozen dinners and single serving entrees have the advantage of tailoring a meal to one's needs.

A steady diet of high processed frozen foods may restrict the range of nutrients in your food intake. To ensure healthy eating with frozen entrees or dinners, carefully read nutrition labeling, vary entrees and add foods to make up for nutritional shortcomings.

Frozen dinners tend to be high in sodium and fat, and low in fiber, calcium and vitamins A and C. Adding low-fat, low sodium freshly prepared foods high in the nutrients that frozen dinners lack can complement and provide for a well-balanced meal. Low-fat dairy foods and fresh fruits and vegetables are good additions.

Most frozen dinners carry nutrition and ingredient labeling. If you are at risk or concemed about the sodium or fat content, read nutrition labels to compare products. There are many on the market that meet the recommended levels for special low-fat, low-salt diets.

To get the most for your money, read the label. Look for products with a high proportion of meat. You will know it's a high proportion if it's listed first or second in the ingredient list. If gravy is listed as the first ingredient, then you are paying for more gravy than meat.

The purchase of frozen dinners may be a trade-off in cost, but they are a tremendous convenience. The growth of frozen foods and microwaves seems to be feeding off each other. One of the top five uses that people make of their microwave ovens is to heat frozen dinners. Currently there are microwave ovens in 80 percent of American households, and the level is rising. More than 50 percent of all work places make microwave ovens accessible. At home, the number of children fixing their own snacks and meals in the microwave continues to grow, as does the number of men using the microwave. All of this creates a huge market for new microwaveable foods.

ANSWER — A fan from New Jersey requests recipes for low fat and low cholesterol macaroni and cheese. Thanks to Helen Brinkley, Ft. Defiance, Va., for sending one.

Macaroni and Cheese

Boil the amount of macaroni you desire to make. Remove from heat; drain and wash with running water.

Put one layer of macaroni in bottom of teflon pan. Sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Grate the amount of Weight Watcher's cheese that you desire, and place evenly on top of the macaroni layer. Repeat these steps as needed. On the top layer, pour a small amount of ¼ percent milk evenly over the top layer. (The less milk, the better).

Bake at 350 degrees until the cheese is completely melted.

Turn oven on broil for 5 minutes or until the cheese browns on top to your likeness. Let stand 3 minutes before serving so that the cheese will not be stringy. Enjoy.

Furry, Feathered Friends Drive Some People Crazy

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The creek rose almost to the patio. The mosquitoes began to drive his family crazy. So Albert McJoynt decided he'd had enough.

He called in a trapper to get rid of the beavers that were making their home in his backyard.

"It pained me to do that. We love wildlife," said McJoynt. He moved into this wooded neighborhood near Washington, D.C., 12 years ago. "But when animals start destroying your house, you have to do something."

McJoynt is one of many people who complain that nature is squeezing a bit closer where they live than they'd like.

People living in Princeton, N.J., will decide soon whether to decrease the town's overgrown deer herd. The animals wander through neighborhoods, browsing on valuable bushes and trees. They've caused hundreds of automobile accidents.

Controlling mountain lions will be the subject of a symposium April 24-26 in Denver. The slopes surrounding some Western mountain communities are covered with cougars, some of which slink into back yards to stalk pets — and sometimes people. Earlier this year a mountain lion killed a jogger in Idaho Springs, Colo.

Wild animals going into neighborhoods usually aren't that scary, but they're becoming more common. Those who study wildlife said that the trend is a problem finding good housing for animals. And it'll get worse as people build more houses near the animals.

Every year the United States loses 1.5 million acres of natural land. Since the turn of the century, 90 percent of the nation's wetlands have been paved or drained.

Many bird and animal species have dwindled or disappeared. But Canada geese, white-tailed deer, beavers, coyotes, armadillos, and about a dozen other animals are setting up housekeeping in America's backyards and pocket parks.

"The most adaptable species establish themselves in the suburbs," Lowell W. Adams, a research biologist for the National Institute for Urban Wildlife, told National Geographic.

America has welcomed them. Hundreds of communities have set aside areas for wildlife. In the past three years, the wildlife institute has helped 65 organizations set up in-town animal refuges.

Individual homeowners have joined in. The National Wildlife Federation receives hundreds of requests a week for its pamphlet on creating a backyard wildlife habitat. Feeding wild birds has become a billion-dollar-a-year business.

So good is the suburban environment that some species fare better there than in the wild. One study found that Washington, D.C., has the country's densest known population of raccoons.

But success breeds its own problems. With plenty of food, water and cover to sustain them, animals flourish and multiply.

Cat dishes become coon dishes as a pair of raccoons make themselves at home in a suburban kitchen near Washington, D.C. One study concluded that the capital has the nation's densest raccoon population. But back yards in all parts of the country are attracting a wide variety of uninvited fourlegged guests, from armadillos to mountain lions. Photo by Annie Griffiths Belt, National Geolgraphic Society.

Fairfax County, Va., game warden Diane Cook releases a red fox from its cage into a wooden area some distance from the suburban neighborhood where it was captured. The fox was one of the growing number of wild animals that are moving into suburbia as natural lands steadily dimish. They aren't a'vays welcome. Photo by Veronica Morrison, National Geographic Society.

Colorado's mountain lion population, for example, has increased four-fold in 25 years. Princeton's deer herd is six times the size it was two decades ago. In some creeks and rivers outside Washington, growing beaver colonies have built dams 50 feet wide.

Burrowing armadillos have churned up lawns throughout the South. Geese and ducks have fouled community ponds in almost every state. Coyotes have rebounded widely, reviving their image as varmints by snatching pets. A child was killed by a coyote in Glendale, Calif., 10 years ago.

Close encounters inspire some tolerant reactions. A majority of Americans say they appreciate having wildlife within a mile of their homes.

Coexistence is the animal-control official's way of walking the tricky line between tolerant public opinion and frustrated homeowners who want animal pests removed immediately. Callers are told how to live around nuisance animals by using physical barriers or non-chemical repellents such as hot pepper sauce.

"Animal populations will always outgrow habitat," said Bobby R. Acord, chief of the U.S. Agriculture Department's animal-control division. "Communities must start looking ahead to how they'll handle it when it happens — and that may involve lethal control."

But as a final solution, even lethal control has its limitations, as Albert McJoynt learned in Alexandria.

When neighbor John Travers, an animal-rights advocate, heard that beavers were being killed in the creek, he vowed to put a stop to it.

He kept removing the killing traps until the trapper took him to court. When the court ordered Travers to desist, he slept by day so that he could spend nights by the creek, shunting the animals away from the traps with a long pole.

The feud finally ended when Travers trapped the last remaining beaver alive and transported it to a secret location. But Travers and McJoynt know that they'll probably tangle again.

"This is a prime beaver location. There'll be more," said Travers. "But killing them is not the way we're going to deal with it."

How To Microwave Fresh Meats, Poultry, Seafood That Looks, Tastes Great

At least 80% of hectic American householders know that microwave ovens are lifesavers when it comes to preparing foods quickly. But, for all its convenience, microwave cooking has tended to result in fresh meats, poultry or seafood that emerges dry, tough, and lacking in eye appeal.

With the introduction of a new product, Micro Shake, that's all changed for the better. Micro Shake makes the preparation of fresh, nutritious, economical foods as quick and convenient as reheating processed or frozen food. And, importantly, fresh meats, poultry, or seafood microwaved with Micro Shake tastes and looks great.

Micro Shake is available in eight flavors: Barbecue, Country Fried, Char Broil, Lemon Butter Dill, Hot 'n' Spicy, Sweet & Sour, Salt-Free Barbecue and Salt-Free Lemon Butter Dill.

Developed by Golden Dipt Company and Microwave Foods, Inc., of Malibu, Ca., Micro Shake is a unique blend of ingredients that busy cooks can use to microwave fresh meats so they have all the taste and appearance of traditional cooking methods. Micro Shake seasons food, and it seals in juices, browns and tenderizes so meats will not dry out or toughen. With Micro Shake, food also cooks more evenly, and it's economical to use.

Meats come out moist, tender, and brown from the microwave — so much so that many people can't believe they were microwaved.

If you have questions about Micro Shake, you can call the Golden Dipt Company, toll-free, at 1-800-325-0350 between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. central time, Monday through Friday. You can also call this number to find a nearby store that stocks the new product or to order Micro Shake if your supermarket does not yet stock it.

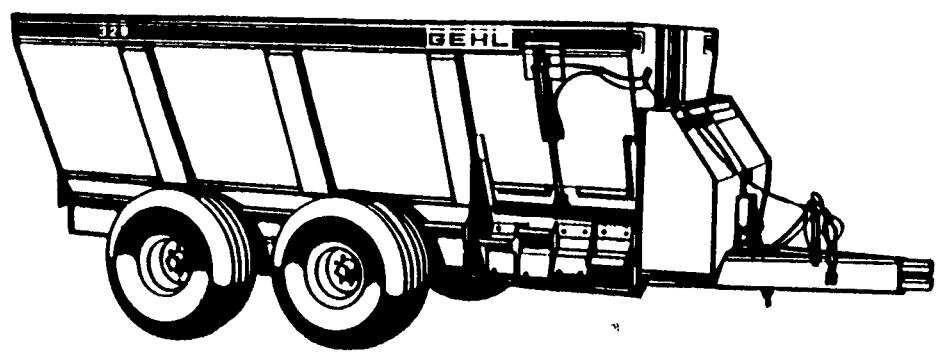
For jobs that aren't fit for a tractor

The Gehl 4510/4610 Skid Loaders are the machines you can count on to get the job done. The more you use a Gehl Skid Loader, the better you'll like the job-tough, time saving features: • Self-leveling lift action • Side mounted Load-Trak T-bar controls • Easy to view instrumentation • Roll-back ROPS for easy serviceability • High-output hydraulics for smooth operation of a wide range of attachments • And much more. See your Gehl Dealer today on how the 4510/4610 Skid Loaders can get the job done for you.



The one spreader for the two spreader farm

Spead liquids, semi-solids, solids, pen-packed, even frozen manure. A Gehl Scavenger® II manure spreader does the work of two spreaders for the price of one. It's built for efficiency, with a heavy-duty square-tube auger that works harder than conventional round augers. The auger powers up and down hydraulically to prevent bridging and cut through winter freeze-ups. Variflo front, right-hand discharge gives you complete application control.

Hershey School Integrates Farm Into Education Program

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Hands-on practical experiences are important aids in teaching concepts to children. At Milton Hershey School, students, kindergarten through twelfth grade, have the opportunity to integrate farm and land resource experiences as part of their total educational and residential program at the School. Activities such as vegetable gardening and fruit farming provide practical learning in plant growth, soil conservation, insect control, etc., and in assuming the responsibilities needed for garden care, as well as using critical thinking skills.

Milton Hershey School is a privately endowed residential school located in Hershey. The School seeks financially needy boys and girls of character and ability from diverse backgrounds and prepares them through education and support for successful, meaningful lives. All students selected for admission receive full scholarships which include room, board, education, clothing and medical and dental care.

The School was founded and endowed in 1909 by Milton and Catherine Hershey when four orphan boys were admitted to the School. Today over 1,150 boys and girls attend the School. They live on a central campus of approximately 3,200 acres. The campus includes 89 student homes, three separate and complete educational facilities, an array of recreational areas and complete support service facilities — in a rural setting amid the foothills of the blue mountains.

In addition, the School owns approximately 6,000 acres of farm land which surrounds the community of Hershey. The concept of using the farm lands for educational purposes is not new for Milton Hershey School. However, incorporating typical learning activities related to farm and land use into the educational curriculum is.

Norman Miller, manager of the Farm Program at Milton Hershey School, cites the learning opportunities for the School's students. "Milton Hershey School has the available resources to create linkage between our classrooms and agricultural environment to enhance environmental awareness and critical thinking among our students."

The program is designed to develop understanding of the interrelationships between vegetation, animals and humans. As part of class activities, students can study genetics, reproduction and growth of plants and animals and can relate it to their own growth.

HERSHEY — A calf has teeth only on the lower jaw, these Milton Hershey School students learn from Norm Miller, manager of the Farm Program at the school.

Acres Of Spring At Longwood Gardens

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Spring can be found around every corner at Longwood Gardens, where flowering trees and shrubs, beds of brilliant bulbs, and dozens of bubbling fountains offer an abundance of outdoor delights.

A stroll through the newly awakened gardens set on 1,050 acres reveals daffodils and other bulbs naturalized in the landscape. Tulips provide a colorful peak in mid- to late April, followed by brilliant azaleas and rhododendrons in May. Daily hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Longwood's horticulturists have been preparing for the spring season since last fall, when more than 200,000 bulbs were planted. A crew of seven spent five days drilling holes and planting bulbs to create drifts of varying colors and heights throughout the grounds.

Flower shows presented by outside organizations include a Federated Garden Clubs Standard Show on April 20-21; daffodils on April 26-27; rhododendrons on May 12; ikebana on May 18-19; and irises on May 26.

Longwood Gardens is located on U.S. Route 1 near Kennett Square, Pa., 30 miles west of Philadelphia in the historic Brandywine Valley. Daily hours for the outdoor gardens are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and the conservatories from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Gardens admission is $8 for adults, $2 for children ages 6-14, and free for children under age 6.

For a complete schedule of events, send a self-addressed stamped business envelope to Longwood Gardens, P.O. Box 501, Kennett Square, PA 19348. For further information, call (215) 388-6741.

A leisurely stroll through Acres of Spring at Longwood Gardens, Kennett Square, offers fanciful topiary, spectacular flowering trees such as these lilac-blossomed paulownias shown here, thousands of flowers, and sparkling fountains.

Protect Your Health When You Clean Your Home

WILKES-BARRE (Luzerne Co.) — There are many cleaning products lining the shelves today in the supermarkets.

Consumers need to select products based on effectiveness of cleaning, safety of use, and cost. Sometimes safety, however, is outweighed by how quickly the cleaning job gets done.

Manufacturers list the words caution, warning, and danger on labels of many household cleaning products.

Caution describes a product which is less harmful or toxic than those labeled with danger. Two tablespoons to a pint is a lethal dosage.

Products which have labels with the word warning need only one teaspoon to one tablespoon to be a toxic dosage. And products with danger listed on the label require only one drop to one teaspoon as a lethal dosage.

Other factors such as weight, age, and general health will also determine whether a product will cause death if ingested. A child will be much more susceptible than an adult.

Cleaning products can also be described as hazardous. Flammable, corrosive, caustic, poisonous, and irritant are also listed on the labels of some of our weekly cleaning products. Automotive products, household cleaners, paints and solvents, and pesticides are categories of hazardous household products.

Poisons from these cleaning solutions can enter our bodies in a number of ways. Toxins can be ingested by eating or drinking hazardous substances or contaminated food and water. Always be sure to keep food, drinks, or other things that enter your mouth away from the work area to avoid contamination.

Toxins can also be inhaled in the form of gases, vapors, and sprays. Good ventilation is essential when using hazardous products. If possible, work outside. If you work inside, use a fan to direct air away from the work area to the opened windows.

Toxins can be also absorbed through skin contact with hazardous substances. Hazardous products containing corrosives or irritants will injure the skin and then be slowly absorbed into the body tissues and bloodstream.

Read the label on cleaning products you normally use. Be informed of possible dangers associated with using commercial cleaning products.

For more information on hazardous chemicals in the home and substitutions you can make to reduce health risks when cleaning, call Penn State Cooperative Extension of Luzerne County at (717) 825-1701 or (717) 459-0736 ext. 701.

Sharon Schuster Shows, Tells Of Spring's Beauty

SHARON SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, MD — As a child in school, one of my favorite activities was Show and Tell time. I enjoyed seeing and hearing about what others had to share and likewise, enjoyed talking about my treasures. Now that I am a teacher, mother, and homemaker here on the farm, sharing ideas with friends is still one of my favorite activities. Thus, with pictures, I'd like to show spring's beauty, and I'd like to share ideas by telling you what I've discovered.

Ahhh, spring. Traditionally a time of renewal, spring is also the opportunity for Mother Nature to show her fickle side when it comes to the weather. At Easter time, lace-gloved fingers were outstretched from every tree, and little lady daffodils bent their heads low to the snow-covered ground under the weight of their sparkling white bonnets. This robin snow was one last wave of Ma Nature's snow white hanky as she took the polar express southward.

It seems that every year the daffodils brave a wintry time, only to emerge bright yellow, warming hearts with their promise of things yet to come. I have enjoyed the daffodils this year. The double-flowered variety that my grandmother set out along the cattle path and the knoll outside have spread to cover the entire hillside.

I came across a miniature daffodil two years ago at the "dime store," and set out three bunches. They have survived and are flourishing. They are truly miniature in size measuring only one half to one inch in dimensions of width and length.

The miniature azaleas are potted in odd glassware -- here in a goblet. Note their size as compared to the "normal" sized daffodils.

While I do check out what's new in the flower and garden shops, I often find the more unusual varieties of flowers at the "five and dime." This spring I discovered a miniature azalea. The eyecatching little beauties called "Tiny Dancer" flaunt a pale pink and a pink and white striated coloration.

I purchased several of the small wonders for myself and also gave several as gifts to friends. The little bushes were full of buds in February when I took them home. They fit very nicely in odd pieces of glassware such as a large goblet that I found in the pantry. They have been blooming continually in a sunny spot in the kitchen, and continue to be the topic of conversation by the many guests who have admired their delicate beauty.

The bright colors of spring flowers such as daffodils and the tulips that are now emerging, can be enjoyed long after their brief spring debut. It's not too early to begin making potpourri, incorporating the large, colorful petals of these spring flowers.

Once daffodils and tulips have reached their peak, whether they are outside or in a vase on the mantel, I snip the entire flower off of the stem just at the base. Individual petals may be salvaged from flowers that have started to show signs of browning. Daffodils lend themselves very nicely to whole flower drying. Tulips are best used when separated into individual petals.

The flowers and petals must be completely dry before storing or mixing into potpourri. They should be placed one layer deep with plenty of space between flowers to avoid the development of mold or mildew. It is also advisable to turn them over occasionally, just to be sure the air gets to all sides.

When arranged on a special crystal dish such as a cranberry server or a footed-cake plate in the dining room, or in a piece of country stoneware in the kitchen, the drying flowers make a lovely display, something different from the usual daffodils in a vase. You may decide that you like their vibrant colors so much, that you'll decide to keep the dried petals and flowers on display just where they are.

York County Contestants Prepare For Pageant

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

BAIR (York Co.) — A dairy princess and a little dairy miss will be named during the annual York County Dairy Princess Pageant, beginning at 8 p.m., April 27, at the York County 4-H Center.

Contestants for the dairy princess title are Penny Jordan, Brogue, and Annie Rauhauser, Dover. Each will be interviewed prior to the pageant by a panel of judges, plus given an interview and "fishbowl" question while on stage. The winner and alternate will serve as a spokespersons for York County's dairy industry and make numerous promotional appearances at school, club, community and agricultural activities. The princess will also represent York County at the state pageant, held during September at Harrisburg.

Penny Jordan, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jordan, Brogue R1. A junior at Red Lion Area High School, she is a member of the school's concert choir and recently participated in the group's appearance in Canada. She is also active with the youth group at the Chanceford Presbyterian Church. Penny owns three animals in the Jordans' 75-head milking herd and helps as needed with milking and feeding responsibilities on the family's Century Farm.

Annie Rauhauser, 17, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rauhauser, 3161 Admire Road, Dover, and a junior at Dover Area High School. President of the Central 4-H dairy club, she exhibits cattle in 4-H and open class competition and is a member of the York 4-H dairy judging team. Annie helps with daily milking and calf feeding chores, and owns 20 head of cattle. The Rauhauser family maintains a 100-head milking string on their Hidden Springs farm.

Rebecca Kilgore, Airville, and Michelle Walker, New Freedom, will vie for the title of little dairy miss. The little dairy miss and alternate will participate in selected local dairy promotional events.

Rebecca Kilgore, 8, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Kilgore, Airville R2. She is a third-grade student at Clearview Elementary School. Rebecca helps feeds the calves on the Kilgore family farm and exhibited a calf last season as a member of the Clover Bud 4-H beginners program. In addition to showing cows, she enjoys reading and swimming.

Michelle Walker, 8, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Walker, New Freedom R1. A second-grader at Friendship Elementary School, Michelle helps with calf feeding chores and post-dipping cows after milking. She exhibited a calf last year as a member of the 4-H Clover Bud program and also likes to sew, cross-stitch, and read.

Current reigning princess Angela Lang will make her farewell appearance at the pageant, along with special-guest former princesses selected since the program's inception in 1955. A Hanover-area barbershop quartet will entertain at the program, which is open to the general public.

Hold A Successful Garage Sale

ORANGE, NJ — Hundreds of thousands of "garage sales" will be held in the coming months. Many of the people holding these sales don't have a garage. So the "garage sales" are held in the front yard, back yard, basement, porch, breezeway or any place that merchandise can be displayed and potential customers accommodated.

We all know people who can't keep from stopping when they see a sign announcing a "sale." Just a small newspaper ad and some sign on fences and poles will bring you enough customers to make a retail store envious.

Consumer Education Research Center, a national nonprofit consumer group, has just published a book entitled, Holding Garage Sales for Fun and Profit" that is a must for those planning a "garage sale." It advises you whether your temperament, location and merchandise will produce a successful sale.

Holding a Garage Sale for Fun and Profit can be obtained by sending a $4 (plus $2 postage & handling) to CERC, 350 Scotland Rd., Orange, NJ 07050.

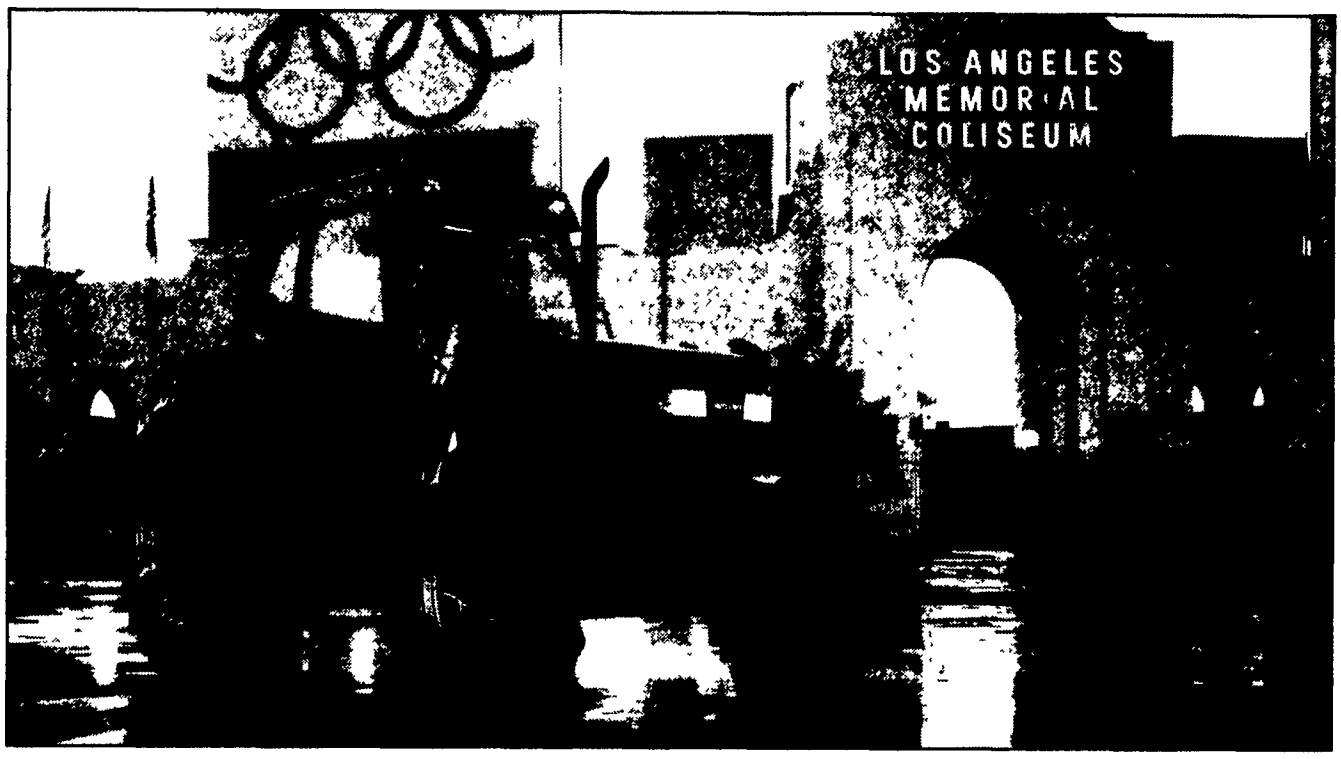
Best Values in New Equipment



If you were an athlete, this would be a gold medal.

Agility, endurance, performance ... the world's best. That's what you think of when someone mentions winning a gold medal. And it's what you get in Case International MAXXUM™ tractors at 77, 86 and 94 PTO horsepower (57, 64 and 70 kW).

Built to meet the needs of farmers like you. MAXXUM tractors stand out from the crowd with features farmers like you demand: Plenty of glass for an unobstructed view. A forward/reverse shuttle shift and optional powershift transmission to make you more productive. Optional creeper speeds for added versatility. Quiet, comfortable cabs to make long days go easier. Power and traction to handle more work than you've ever done with this size tractor. And that's not all.

MAXXUM

Protection from the industry's best warranty*. Every MAXXUM tractor includes the peace of mind that comes with a 5-year/5000-hour warranty. Protection that good tells you these tractors were built right. And if you trade while under warranty, the coverage is completely transferrable. Just think what that can do for resale value.

Performance that will win you over. You may not be a world-class athlete. But as a farmer, you need a tractor that delivers world-class performance day after day, season after season. A MAXXUM tractor. Ask your Case IH dealer to bring one out to your farm so you can give it a workout.

*Excluding tires, which are covered by their own manufacturers' warranties. A $200 deductible applies to each repair after the first year.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

It has been such a busy morning. The telephone rang several times while I was trying to change bed linens and get the washing started. One was a call from Maryland giving me a sale report for Lancaster Farming. Another was an electric company representative trying to make an appointment to sell us electric heat. A neighbor inquired when to plant the bulbs that I gave her and still another lady asked about a Bible Study Class.

Then the doorbell rang and a man brought me a copy of a bill from 1989 that his company forgot to bill. They mislaid the work order, he said. My garden is finally being rototilled and my peas will be planted much later than usual. I'm hoping that he will see all of my stakes as I have to leave for another appointment while he is still working.

My husband and I attended an all-day genealogical conference near Lancaster. There were many classes from which we could choose. We chose different lectures in order to cover more territory.

Many hand-outs were given to the over 200 people attending to help us trace our roots. For some reason I was so sleepy that I could barely stay awake to hear about reading German script and to learn of the traditions of families in northern and southern Germany. We were also told how to use the courthouse records.

Many, many books and booklets were displayed for sale. We bought several and now need to find the time to read them. Some people do research on cemeteries and list the family names of people buried there. Others publish indexes of Federal Census and tax records. Then there is always additional information turning up on families that we are interested in. It is a time consuming hobby and one that I am not yet ready to really delve into at this time -- maybe later.

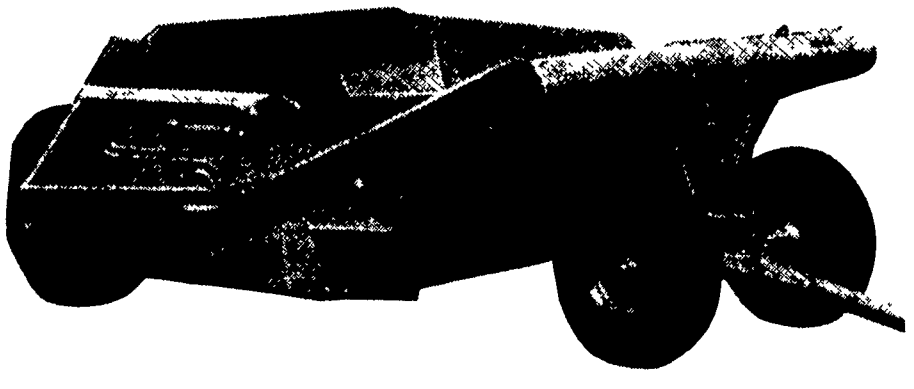
DO IT YOURSELF WITH A SOILMOVER



Automatic Soilmover

SCRAPE IT

With your tractor and a Soilmover, you can keep feedlots cleaner, handle manure easier . . . even build a complete run-off system or manure-handling facility.

LEVEL IT

The cheapest land you can buy is the land you save by eliminating low spots. There's a Soilmover with precision cut and controlled spread for best results. Laser capability provides pin-point accuracy. Soilmover makes your land its level best.

DAM IT

Create a dam as part of a run-off control program. Build or repair terraces and do it all with your tractor and a Soilmover. No one offers a more complete line of farm-size scrapers. Soilmover — the Problem Solvers.

BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best -
In Coating Film Thickness

To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)

1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster

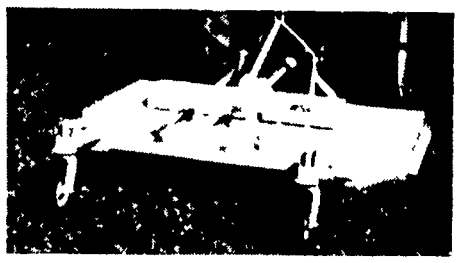
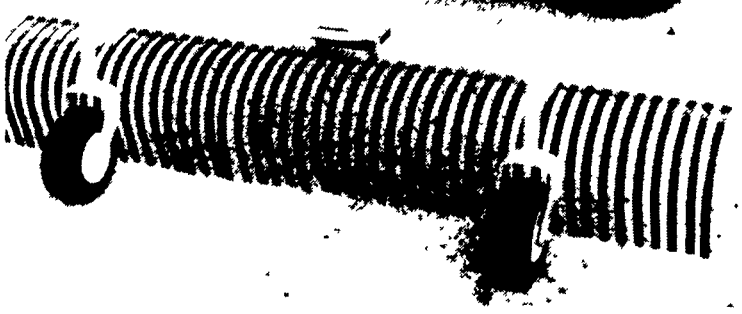
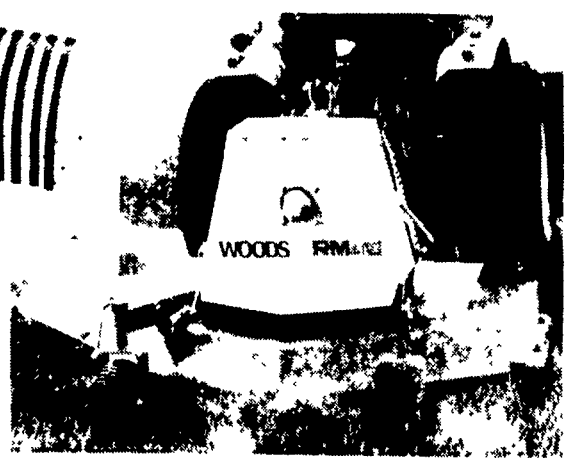
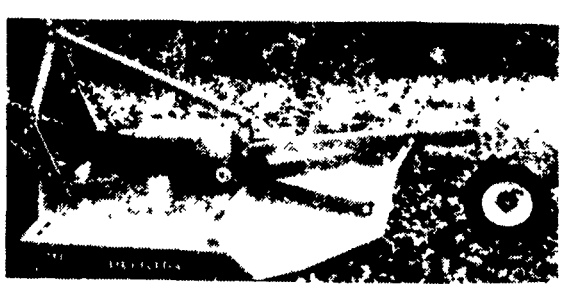
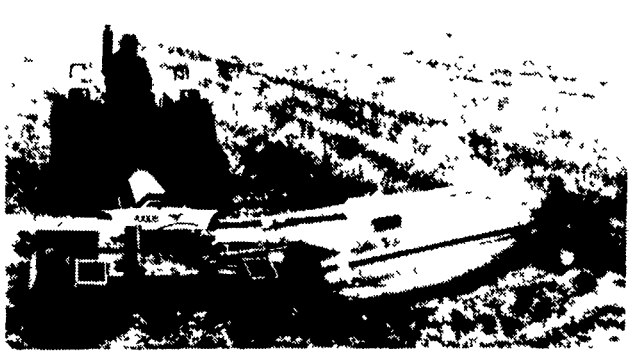
One tree doesn't make a Woods

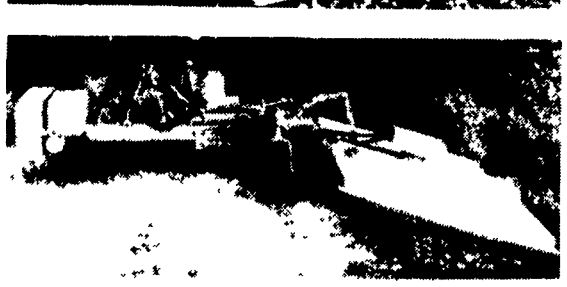


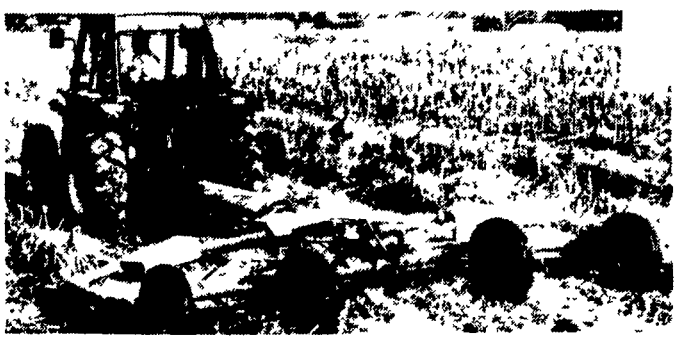












Nor does just one product. That's why when Woods introduced the world's first successful tractor powered rotary shredder back in 1947, they didn't rest on their laurels. Instead, they continued to apply outstanding engineering expertise producing equipment packed with performance, reliability and value. The results: a line-up of over 50 different products including mowers, cutters, rear scraper blades, backhoes and specialty machines. The best that money can buy.

WE'RE AT HOME ON YOUR RANGE

Kubota's B-Series and L-Series Tractors are right at home anywhere you perform general or weekend farming, light construction and landscaping. Kubota tractors are powerful, ranging from 10–49 PTO. They're versatile, too – with quick-attach implements that simplify mowing, scraping, tractor/loader/backhoe and tilling.

Select a compact yet powerful B-Series Kubota for HST transmission, power steering and optional Bi-Speed Turn. A mid-size L-Series Kubota offers a variety of transmissions including the new Ever-Clutch and advanced Glide Shift Transmission.

Kubota Tractor Corporation Markets a full line of tractors from 10 to 85 PTO horsepower through a nationwide network of nearly 1,000 dealers

THE SYMO-LIFE SOIL FERTILITY PROGRAM
Has More To Offer

Efficiency Is The Key To Profit!

We test your soil and make recommendations as to needed nutrients, based on:

- The capacity of your soil to produce
- The genetic production potential of your crop.
- The type of livestock you are feeding.

Produce More Nutrients Per Acre!

- Produces a more nutritious feed stuff with a better nutrient balance for your livestock.
- Realize a greater net return on your investment
- Program can be integrated with your present dry or liquid fertilizer
- Improved quantity yield/acre along with improved nutrient yield/acre.

Water Supply Outlook Dim

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Dry weather and light snowfall this winter have contributed to unfavorable forecasts for much of the West's water supply, according to a coordinated report issued recently by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

William Richards, chief of USDA's Soil Conservation Service, said even with recent storms, spring and summer streamflows will be below to well below average for most of the West.

The area of below to well-below average snowpacks continues to grow as a result of low February precipitation. Areas reporting snowpack conditions below 70 percent of average include California, Nevada, Oregon, southwestern Washington, southern Idaho, western Montana, southern and western Wyoming, central Utah, and central Colorado.

Richards noted that some areas of the West received above to well-above average amounts of precipitation during February. These include northwest Washington, north-central Montana, a small area on the Nevada/Oregon border, the southern border area between Arizona and New Mexico, east-central Arizona, southern California (around San Diego), and a few areas along the border between Wyoming and Montana.

Above to well-above average runoff is forecast in Alaska, the northern portion of the Columbia River Basin, the Verde River, Salt River, and Gila River watersheds in Arizona, and the Rio Grande and Rio Chama watersheds in New Mexico and southern Colorado.

The only Western states reporting above to well-above average amounts of stored water are New Mexico (180 percent of average), Washington (133 percent), and Colorado (126 percent).

Western states depend on snow melt for about 75 percent of their water supply. SCS and NOAA jointly analyze snow and precipitation data to forecast seasonal runoff in the West.

The state-by-state outlook:

ALASKA: Snowfall for the month was only .50 percent of average or less over a wide east-west belt across the interior of the state. Despite this, the region maintains a record to near-record heavy snowpack. The northern areas of the Susitna, Matanuska and Copper basins, and the eastern two-thirds of the Alaska Range have well-above average snowpack. The heavy snowbelt region extends throughout the Canadian portions of the Yukon River headwaters.

ARIZONA: February was a relatively dry month until the last day when a huge storm improved the water outlook. Precipitation of 1 to 3 inches was common, and some areas reported as much as 8 to 10 inches of moisture. Runoff was immediate and tremendous in volume. Reservoir levels rose rapidly.

CALIFORNIA: After three weeks in February without rain, a series of winter storms moved into California, bringing the heaviest rain and snow of the season. A few locations along the coast north of San Francisco and in the Feather River Basin reported more than 20 inches of precipitation in the first five days of March. The seasonal precipitation statewide increased by 20 percent to 45 percent of average. California streamflow volumes from October through the end of February continued to be the lowest recorded this century. Runoff volumes increased sharply during the storms of the first week of March. Streamflow volumes throughout the Sierra drainage basins have increased by 10 percent since the Feb. 1, from about 33 percent of average to 38 percent of average.

COLORADO: Below normal precipitation, coupled with above normal temperatures, have contributed to a decline in the state's snowpack and a decrease in forecasted streamflows across most of the state. Reservoir storage will continue to provide relief for some water users, as storage levels remain above average.

IDAHO: Many basins report the second lowest snowpack on record for March 1, and streamflow forecasts reflect the extremely dry conditions. Only basins in northern Idaho are expected to produce near average runoff this year. Water users in central and southern Idaho should be prepared for critically short water supplies this spring and summer.

MONTANA: Mountain precipitation was below to well-below average over most of the state during February. Snowpack conditions continued to deteriorate and are now below to well-below average over much of the state, except in northwest Montana where near to above-average snowpacks remain. Spring and summer streamflows are expected to be below to well-below average across much of Montana with streams in only northwest and north-central Montana forecast to be near or above average flows.

NEVADA: Water supply conditions for the Great Basin of Nevada and California are well below average and severe drought conditions continue. It appears demands for irrigation water may not be met fully and that in some areas extreme shortages will occur. February precipitation was well-below average in most basins. Seven major reservoirs average 6 percent of capacity and 11 percent of average. Streamflows in all basins are expected to be well below average.

NEW MEXICO: Snowfall during February was light and variable across the state. Most areas remain in the near-average to below-average range. Precipitation during February ranged from 19 percent to 220 percent of average for the month. Streamflow forecasts range from 74 percent of average in the northwest to 267 percent of average in the southwest. The dramatic increase in the forecast for the southwest is due to the leading edge of a major storm hitting that area on Feb. 28.

OREGON: Some streamflow forecasts are the lowest on record. February precipitation was generally much below average throughout the state. The reservoir storage situation improved slightly during the past month with 60 percent of average for the principal irrigation reservoirs. Eleven of those reservoirs are less than 50 percent of average and six of the reservoirs are less than 20 percent of average.

UTAH: The water supply outlook for spring and summer has deteriorated further from the bleak situation reported last month. Statewide, snowpack as of March 1 is 63 percent of average, mountain precipitation 71 percent of normal, and streamflow projections for this spring and summer average 55 percent of normal.

WASHINGTON: February precipitation was 93 percent of normal statewide, and varied from 50 percent of average in the Walla Walla basin to 134 percent in the Olympic basin. March 1 reservoir storage is generally good throughout the state, with reservoirs in the Yakima Basin at 133 percent of average and 87 percent of capacity. February streamflows varied from 275 percent of normal on the Similkameen River to 92 percent on the Grande Ronde River at Troy.

World Population Places Heavy Burden On Ag

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Increases in world population and per capita income in the next several decades will place a heavy burden on agriculture to produce sufficient supplies of food and fiber to satisfy demand.

But advances in conventional technology will be hard pressed to expand production enough to meet those needs.

That forecast is one of many proposed by University of Minnesota agricultural economist Dr. Vernon W. Ruttan, who will be the premier lecturer in the Penn State College of Agriculture Distinguished Lecture Series, April 22-24.

"The series is designed to bring to Penn State a world-class scientist to interact with our faculty, staff and students, and the community," said the college's dean, Lamartine F. Hood. "Dr. Ruttan is a highly respected agricultural economist, scientist, and educator who will bring significant prestige to the series."

Ruttan said the world is completing one of the most dramatic transitions in the history of agriculture. "Prior to this century, almost all the increase in food production was obtained by bringing new land into production," said Ruttan. "By the first decade of the next century, almost all increases in world food production must come from higher yields and more intensive cultivation of areas already used for agricultural production."

During the next 25 years, higher yields will be obtained primarily by advances in conventional technology, such as improvements in conventional plant and animal breeding; more intensive and efficient use of technical inputs, including chemical fertilizers and pesticides; and more effective animal nutrition.

But, said Ruttan, productivity gains from conventional sources are likely to come in smaller increments than in the past and will require closer cooperation between suppliers and users of new knowledge and technology.

Ruttan said as we move into the second decade of the 21st century, conventional technology will be inadequate to sustain the expected increase in food demand. But to take advantage of scientific advances in microbiology and biochemistry, we must reorganize the way we do agricultural research. That means creating incentives to attract more private sector resources and institutionalizing agricultural research in developing countries.

In addition, said Ruttan, agriculture must find ways to overcome various environmental constraints on growth. Ground and surface water contamination, global warming, and climate changes and soil erosion are among the challenges facing the agricultural sector.

Ruttan will address these and other topics in three lectures to be held in 101 Agncultural Sciences and Industries Building. At 8 p.m. on April 22, he will present "Constraints on Agricultural Development: Into the 21st Century." On April 23 at 8 p.m., he will discuss "Induced Technical and Institutional Innovation." His final lecture, at 11 a.m. on April 24, is titled "Ethical Responsibility in Agricultural Research." Admission is free.

Ag Health, Advisory Board Organizes

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. — The advisory board for the New York Center for Agricultural Medicine and Health (NYCAMH) recently held its organizational meeting and elected its first chairman.

Michael H. Donovan, general manager of the Syracuse-based Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative, will head the 12-member board for the next year.

"The overriding goal of both the advisory board and the staff of the center will be to make New York the safest state in the nation for our farm population," Donovan said.

He noted that farming has become one of the most dangerous occupations in the nation, with a death and injury rate "nearly four times greater" than that of other occupations.

"The Center has a lot of programs and exciting research in the works," Donovan said.

He said the center, under the direction of Dr. David Pratt, Dr. John May, and Administrator Janet Ivory, operates a farmer clinic at the Mary Imogene Bassett Hospital, spearheads nationally sponsored research, conducts a growing list of outreach programs for children and adults in rural areas, and plays a leading role in national health and safety conferences.

"That legislation," Donovan said, "capped a long list of recognition for what started out as the simple curiosity of two physicians over a flu-like illness afflicting farmers and quickly mushroomed into full-blown scientific research and educational programs. Today the center is a resource on rural medicine for physicians across the country."

Effective Nutritional Management Yields Greater Animal Health

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. — Effective nutrition management may yield a greater return to livestock producers in improved animal health and food product quality than any other aspect of a total herd health program, according to the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA).

As consumers place greater demands on producers to provide leaner, higher quality products, the role of nutrition becomes increasingly important in quality meat and milk production.

"Many people tend to focus on livestock weight gain alone, because it is easy to measure. However, today's veterinarians are emphasizing total physical condition, which can be measured by condition scoring animals," said George L. Crenshaw, DVM, Woodland, Calif.

Livestock producers have long recognized energy and protein needs as critical nutrition factors affecting overall animal health and weight gain, but veterinarians today are focusing on nutrient content as well in developing livestock nutrition management programs to minimize disease problems, improve body condition, and increase weight gains.

"As veterinarians, we try to bolster the immune system to protect animals from respiratory illnesses," said Thomas H. Noffsinger, DVM, Benkelman, NE. "Without proper nutrition, the immune system is not effective in protecting against these diseases."

Respiratory diseases are the most common disease problems among feedlot cattle, and the immune system must be fueled with energy, protein, and necessary trace minerals — zinc, copper, selenium, and iron — to successfully combat potential virus infections.

Crenshaw believes stronger emphasis on nutrition is needed at the cow/calf level. "If we can influence cow/calf oper- ators to implement correct trace mineral programs in growing calves, these animals will have a headstart on proper nutrition before they reach the feedlot," he said.

Recent studies reported by David P. Hutcheson, Ph.D., an animal nutritionist from the Texas Agricultural Experimental Station, Amarillo, Texas, indicate that trace minerals are critical to immune system responsiveness.

For example, Hutcheson reports that supplementing zinc in the diets of feeder calves exhibiting signs of stress improved their weight gains and reduced the number of treatment days per stressed calf. His data also indicate that supplemental zinc aids in the calf's ability to fight off disease.

"Feeder calves encounter numerous stressors during movement to feedlots for finishing. Of utmost importance are diets that will be consumed and furnish the essential nutrients," Hutcheson said.

Iron, selenium, and copper deficiencies also have been associated with depressed immune response in cattle.

"Nutrition is the greatest economic factor affecting profitability of livestock operations," said James E. Sears, DVM, Bridgeport, Neb. "Producers must carefully evaluate productivity of their feed dollars. If you cut back on nutrition in cutting costs, marginal nutrient deficiencies and imbalances may result in a weakening of animal immune systems. An increase in disease problems will cost livestock producers a lot more in the long run."

In addition, a variety of other, nonrespiratory illnesses may be prevented or treated by adding trace mineral supplements to livestock rations. For example:

- Zinc supplements in cattle rations may reduce foot rot.
- Selenium deficiencies have been linked to white muscle disease in horses, which results in muscle damage because of an accumulation of lactic acid in the muscle.
- Copper deficiencies may result in anemia and poor or no weight gains.

"The veterinarian's role differs from the nutritionist, who focuses on the conversion of food energy to growth and added fat," said Crenshaw. "The veterinarian's nutritional focus is to make sure animals receive appropriate protein, nutrients, and minerals to improve their health, minimize disease, and maximize performance."

Performance factors which can be improved through proper nutrition include fertility, milk production, body condition, and weight gains.

"Producers are wasting their nutritional dollars if they are not strategically planning nutrition and considering the factors affecting maintenance requirements of the animal, such as timing of the reproductive cycle," said Crenshaw.

Cow fertility suffers if the cow is undernourished; proper nutrition prior to breeding increases fertility. In addition, the energy requirements and nutritional needs of pregnant cows increase greatly. If these needs are not met, calf health and milk production may both suffer.

Animals raised in different regions of the country and under different conditions will have varying nutritional needs. There are many factors that influence nutritional needs, such as weaning, distance calves are shipped to the feedlot, weather, weight of the cattle, age, and sex.

"Different diets and management systems may be required for different groups of cattle," said Hutcheson.

Crenshaw recommends that producers thoroughly analyze their feedstuffs and strategically form diets that are most cost effective in providing for their livestock pattern of production.

"Producers should know the exact makeup of their feed and formulate the amounts and mixtures that will cost the least while providing the best mixture to meet livestock needs," he said.

Pesticide Disposal Station Reviewed

ATGLEN (Chester Co.)— Suggested changes to the bylaws of the Chester/Delaware Farmers' Association were presented to the board of directors at their monthly meeting held recently.

Tom Roth, Landenberg, chairman of the update committee, presented the changes. The changes were voted on by association members at their spring banquet, April 11, at the West Fallowfield Christian Day School, Atglen.

"The Farmers' Association, in cooperation with the Extension Service, has applied for assistance in establishing a pesticide disposal station," said Richard Breckbill, president. This would be a collection point where pesticide containers, and partially used and outdated pesticide materials would be accumulated. The materials would be picked up and taken to a disposal site. The collection, transportation, and disposal would be supervised by the Department of Environmental Resources (DER).

"A mushroom marketing order is nearly ready for adoption by mushroom growers," said Peter Alonzo, Jr., Kennett Square. "The objective is to encourage growers to participate in a nationwide advertising campaign to create consumer acceptance of mushrooms in meal planning."

"Spent mushroom compost has been found to be an excellent soil additive with valuable crop nutrients," said Alonzo. "Extensive laboratory testing by Penn State and others have found no pesticides or other toxic substances in the compost. It can be used on lawns and as a topdressing wherever additional humus is needed for luxuriant green growth."

Spring weather and planting season can bring on farm accidents. The board is making arrangements for first aid and CPR courses useful for farm families.

"U.S. Congressman Richard Schulze will reintroduce the bill on estate tax exemptions for property owners who place deed restrictions on environmentally sensitive property," said Robert Lange, Malvern. "Senator Chaffee (R.I.) will introduce similar legislation in the Senate." Lange has made several trips to Washington to confer with legislators and gain their support for the legislation. Such legislation, when passed, would help conserve farm land for future generations, Lange said.

Ed Cannon, Avondale, was elected as the regional coordinator between the Department of Environmental Resources and Farmers' Association members in Bucks, Chester/Delaware, and Montgomery counties. A meeting of District 3 regional coordinators will be held April 30 at DER headquarters.

Cannon, chairman of the local affairs committee, expressed concern over the ordinances being considered by various townships for the owning of large animals. "Failure to use common sense in determining animal populations could infringe on property ownership and work a hardship on farmers and 4-H members," he said.

"Participation in a PFA Farm Analysis Program can be of benefit to all farmers," said Harold Bryson, Oxford. "Not only can a farmer keep track of whether he is operating at a profit or a loss, he also has the records that will simplify his tax preparation paperwork." Bryson urged any farmer not now enrolled in the PFA Farm Analysis Program to get in touch with him at (717) 529-2809.

"We now have 684 members, 10 over our goal for the year," said Charles Wollaston, membership chairman, Toughkenamon. "We have 40 new members for this year."

"With a turnout of more than 200 visitors, Farm-City Day was enjoyed by visitors and hosts alike," said Linda Hicks, West Chester. Hicks, Chairman of the Farm-City program, has invited the hosts to attend the spring banquet.

A slide presentation of the Farm-City Day activities will be presented.

Robert Lange and Richard Breckbill attended a PFA speakers leadership seminar recently. They offer short programs to clubs, civic groups, and others wanting information concerning food safety, agricultural production, and other farm topics. Lange also is available to discuss the proposed changes in the Estate Planning bill.

Board Approves Farmland Preservation Plans

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board recently approved plans to save prime farmland in Dauphin, Perry, Monroe, Snyder, Mercer, Lebanon, and Susquehanna counties.

Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff, who chairs the board, said the action brings to 24 the total number of counties with approved preservation plans under the state's $100 million farmland protection program.

Under the program, farmers can sell their development rights based on appraisals of their farms. The price per acre for the easement is the difference between appraisals as farmland and as development land.

Funds are allocated to counties based on development pressure, agricultural production, and county appropriations for farmland protection.

In other board action, easement purchases were approved for four farms (three in Lancaster County and one in Berks County). The four easements will protect 426 acres of farmland.

Including the easement purchases approved by the board today, Pennsylvania now has 3,227 acres of prime farmland that is protected from development.

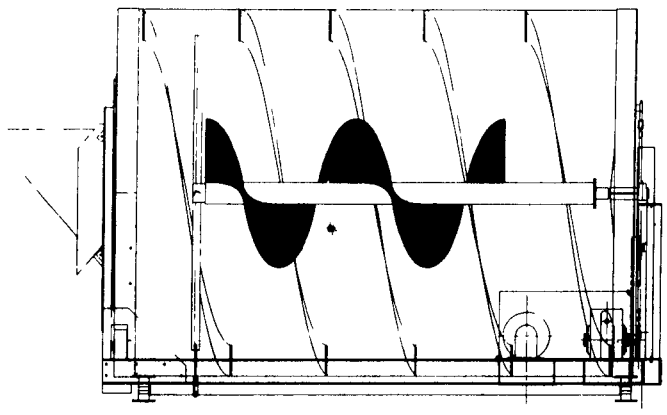
Patz ®



New Patz Mixer

- Unique central spiral circulator
- No bearings inside the mixer drum

Fewer working parts make the Patz Mixer reliable (only 3 grease fittings).

As the drum rotates, the central spiral circulator moves feed to the back of the mixer. At the same time, the fitting bolted to the drum in a spiral design moves the feed to the front as it mixes with a tumbling action.

Four sizes
Cor-Ten® steel mixer drum (®U.S. Steel Corp.)
Electronic scale or mechanical beam scale

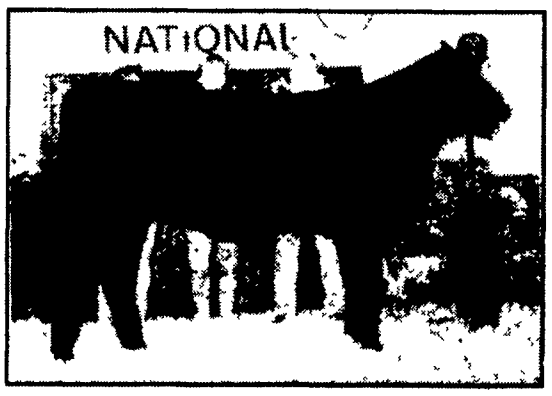
THE FINAL CHAPTER...

Mar Lee Angus — Complete Dispersal



Sunday, April 28, 1991
At the farm near Woodsboro, Maryland
Cattle Sell at 12:30 P.M.
Equipment Sells at 11 A.M.

Selling:

80 Producing Females - many with calves at side or bred to the popular TC Stockman and the ABS sire, R&J Maxima

MAR LEE AMANDA

The winningest female ever produced at the Mar Lee program, she was Junior Calf Champion of the 1989 Eastern National, 1989 Maryland State Fair and Reserve Calf Champion of the 1989 Maryland Breeders' Show, and Pennsylvania Breeders' Show. She completed her show career in 1990 by being named the Reserve Junior Champion of both the Maryland State Fair and the 1990 Eastern National. Sells bred to the many-time champion, Mar Lee Wildfire.

PLUS! Pregnant Recipients

Featuring the sale of the entire 1991 Mar Lee show herd.

This dispersion of the Mar Lee program is the culmination of over 45 years in the Angus business, and Dr. Lee Miller is one of the breed's most respected Angus breeders. The Mar Lee show team has consistently been one of the winningest herds across the eastern United States each year, and this sale provides the opportunity to purchase the foundation females which have made this reputable program famous.

Plan now to attend one of the exciting events that will be held during 1991!!

ARE YOUR VENTILATION FANS READY FOR SUMMER?

John H. Schwartz
Multi-County
Poultry Agent

The real warm weather we had the first week of April reminds us that summer will soon be here. With summer comes a period of hot days which taxes our poultry house ventilation systems.

In order to keep birds from dying from heat, we need to be moving the maximium amount of air possible.

Currently, Penn State is recommending a minimium of 1 cubic foot per minute (cfm) per pound of bird in environmentally controlled broiler houses and 6 cfm per bird in high-rise laying houses.

Now is the time to check your ventilation system to see if it will be adequate for this summer.

First, you need to determine if your total fan capacity will deliver the necessary air movement. To make this check, calculate the number of cfm you will need to move. For broilers, take the average weight per bird at time of marketing times the number of birds marketed. This will give you total cfm needed for broilers. For laying hens, multiply the number of hens in the house by 6 to find the number of cfm you need.

Next, determine the amount of cfm you are moving when all the fans are running. Take the cfm rating of each fan and add them together for the house. Your fan total should be at least what the bird requirement is. If it is not, you should consider replacing fans with larger ones or adding new fans.

When adding new fan capacity, make sure you have enough inlet opening to handle the additional cfm. When all fans are running, you should be able to maintain a static pressure reading of 0.05. If you have enough calculated fan capacity, then you need to make sure the fans are delivering the maximum amount of air possible.

Check to see if you have enough inlet opening. To do this, set your static pressure control gauge at 0.05. Then start turning one fan on at a time and observe if the inlets keep opening to maintain a static pressure of 0.05. If the static pressure rises above 0.05, then check the inlets to make sure they are clean and nothing is blocking the inlets. Check all sides of the house.

The next area is fan maintenance. Make sure all fans are running and the fan belts are tight. All dust should routinely removed from the fan shutters. Shutters not opening fully will greatly reduce the amount of air the fan is moving.

Recently, I checked fans at two different farms where fan shutters were not opening completely. At the broiler farm, by propping open the fan shutters, we gained 1,300 cfm per fan or 16 percent increase in air movement. On eleven 36-inch fans, this gain was equal to 1 additional fan. At the high rise laying house, we experienced a gain of 6,000 cfm per fan or 63 percent increase in air movement. This represented an increase from 3 cfm per bird to 5 cfm per bird.

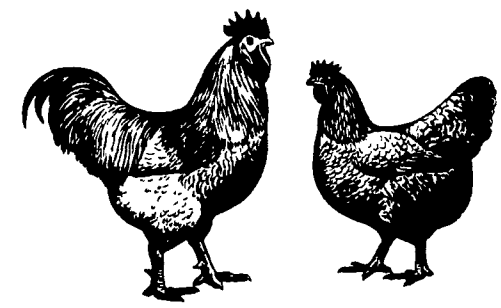
At many factories, the maintenance foreman is the number 2 person behind the plant manager. The maintenance foreman is responsible to make sure all equipment is properly maintained, operating, and performing at top efficiency. Many of our poultry farms need a maintenance foreman.

Cleaning and maintaining equipment is often not a very pleasant job. But to be a competitive and profitable business, this job must be performed. Cleaning fans and shutters are very important jobs to be done weekly during the summer. This task, done routinely, could save you from experiencing high mortality because of heat.

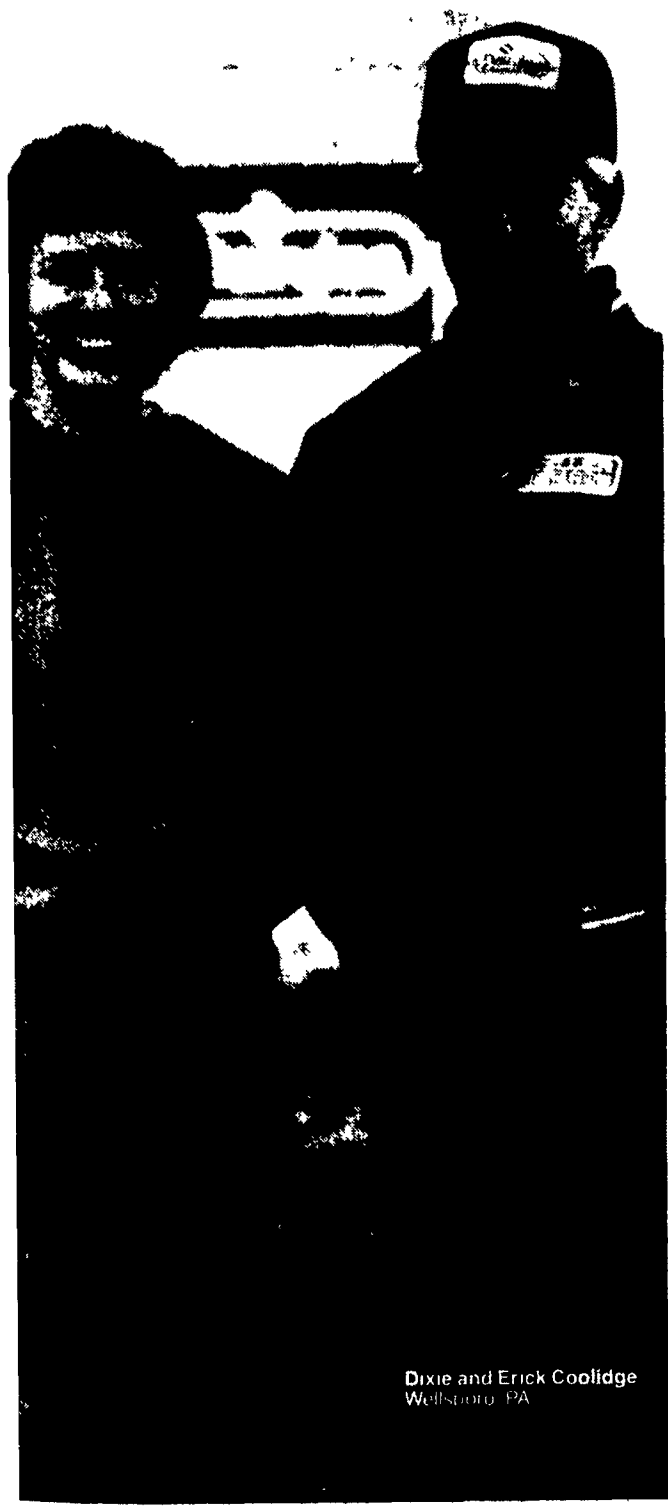
To move maximum air during the summer, you need to:

- Have all fans running 24 hours.
- Maintain a static pressure of 0.05.
- Make sure all fan shutters are completely open.
- Keep grass and weeds mowed around the poultry house.
- Make sure your standby generator is operational.

Remember, the heart of your ventilation system is the fans and air inlets. By keeping them clean and adjusted, you will reduce many problems associated with the hot days of summer. Start today, so that you will be ready for hot weather.



"MEMBERSHIP IN DAIRYLEA MEANS... MORE LEGISLATIVE REPRESENTATION!"



Dixie and Erick Coolidge
Wellsboro, PA

Now, more than ever, dairy farmers need strong leaders who can represent their interests on public policy issues. Because so many decisions affecting farm operations are being made off the farm - by federal, state and local governments - Dairylea Cooperative has made a whole-hearted commitment to actively represent its members' best interests.

In fact, Dairylea President Clyde Rutherford recently received the 1990 Cooperative Statesmanship Award in recognition of his national involvement and leadership role in policies important to the farming community.

This level of representation is among the many reasons that dairy farmers like Erick and Dixie Coolidge feel they are getting more by being members of Dairylea Cooperative.

Today, and as you build for the future, you need a reliable partner who can provide you with a competitive price for your milk, offer you programs and services that can make an impact on your bottom line, and be an effective voice on public policy issues. That partner is Dairylea Cooperative.

Among the many programs and services available to Dairylea Cooperative members are:

- Milk Check Direct Deposit
- Member Loan Program
- Energy Loan Program
- Farm Management Program
- Quality and Production Incentive Programs
- Top-rated Insurance Coverages
- Member Pension Plan
- Flexible Benefits Packages

Any way you look at it, membership in Dairylea Cooperative means more for you. Give us a call today!

WHEN HOGS GET SICK PART II

Dr. Richard Barczewski
Extension Agent
U. of Delaware

In my last column I discussed several factors that can result in illness in swine. Now I'd like to cover additional considerations in evaluating your herd's health.

To fight off potential disease organisms, your hogs must be in good physical condition. This requires proper feed, housing, and care.

You may not consider general management a way of preventing disease, but think how some simple factors affect your own health. Have you ever pushed yourself to work more hours than you are used to, not gotten enough sleep, and skipped meals? What was the outcome? Colds, flu, stress, headaches? You have limits, and pushing those limits results in problems.

The same can be true for your hogs, even though they aren't pushed beyond their capacity by working longer hours. A simple management criterion such as stocking rates can put extra stress on your animals, resulting in greater potential for a disease outbreak. This can occur in the nursery or the growing-finishing pens. When hogs are overcrowded, they tend to fight more for feed, water and even space to lie down.

Another factor, and one that accompanies overcrowding, is ventilation. Proper ventilation is essential for reducing the occurrence of respiratory diseases. Overcrowding of hogs puts undue stress on a ventilation system, forcing it to work at below-peak efficiency in relation to the number of hogs.

Buildings are designed to house a certain number of animals. Ventilation systems are designed to change the proper amount of air for the maximum number of hogs housed in the building. If the number of hogs exceeds the maximum for the building, the ventilation system cannot move enough air to maintain air quality, making a disease outbreak more likely.

Nutrition is another factor. A balanced ration for your hogs is imperative to their continued good health, but farms that lack adequate quality control in their feed-mixing facilities may not be meeting all of the pigs' basic nutritional needs. If rations vary much from the requirements of the hogs being fed, physiological stress may occur and result in disease.

Since the advent of vitamin and mineral premixes, the occurrence of nutritional deficiencies are not as common, but subtherapeutic deficiencies may result from poor feed-mixing equipment or improper feed-mixing procedures. When hogs don't get the proper nutrients in their diets, disease may be an outcome.

Consider your own operation for a minute. You carry out good herd management overall — feeding, housing, and ventilation — but still have herd health problems. Why? The fact is that sometimes, no matter how hard you work to keep in good shape, eat well and stay protected from the elements, you still get sick. The same holds true for hogs.

Illnesses can be the result of an opportunist bacterium or virus that gains entrance to your farm in a host of ways. What do you do if you are faced with a herd health problem that you cannot identify? Hog producers in most states, Delaware and Maryland included, are fortunate to have diagnostic labs available to help them sort out these problems.

When your animals die and you don't know why, you can send them to labs for a postmortem examination to discover the cause. If you are fortunate to have a farm veterinarian, you may prefer she or he do this for you on your farm.

When you are left scratching your head about a disease problem, get help. Many disease organisms can wreak havoc in a hog operation if left unchecked, so seek help from your veterinarian or consult with the nearest diagnostic laboratory. If lab personnel are able to isolate a causative agent, they can also run a sensitivity test to tell you which antibiotics will be the most effective against the organism.

Broadcast Partners Selects CEO

DES MOINES, Iowa — Broadcast Partners has announced that Thomas F. Crowley, a seed industry executive, has been selected for the position of president/chief executive officer.

Broadcast Partners is a joint venture among three companies — Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. Farmland Industries, Inc., and the Illinois Agricultural Association, Inc.

Broadcast Partners will deliver a satellite-based information service — FarmDayta (TM) — to the nation's agricultural producers and also act as a communication service for agricultural suppliers. Some of the services will feature futures prices, options, ag news, market commentary, government statistics and reports, market charts, cash prices, weather maps and proprietary information from advisory services and ag companies who supply seeds, fertilizer, chemcials, equipment, feed, etc.

Crowley has more than 20 years of general management and financial management experience, having previously worked for Edward J. Funk & Sons, Inc. of Kentland, Indiana as executive vice president and chief operating officer. Prior to joining Funk & Sons, Crowley held the position of vice president of business affairs for St. Joseph's College in Renssalaer, Ind.

For more information, contact Broadcast Partners, 11275 Aurora Avenue, Des Moines, IA 50322, (515) 254-2000.

York FmHA Accepts Nominations

YORK (York Co.) — The Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is accepting nominations for county committee elections for York County.

This notice is issued to inform eligible voters of the right to nominate candidates by petition. Copies of the petition and instructions on its completion can be obtained from your local FmHA office.

Persons nominated should have an interest in a farm as an owner, tenant, or sharecropper within the county or area in which activities of the county or area committee are carried out. They must be citizens of the Unites States or aliens lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, and be will qualified for committee work.

Spouses of those persons who meet the eligibility criteria are also eligible for nomination for election to the county committee. Nominations must be received in the York, FmHA office, 124 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402 no later than May 17, 1991.

Meyers Implements Achieves High Sales

GREEN CASTLE (FRanklin Co.) — Meyers Implements Inc. was recently recognized as achieving the eighth highest sales volume in 1990 for Meyer Mfg. Corp. of Dorchester, Wis. It was the second year in a row that Meyers Implements made the Top 10 Dealers List in the U.S. They were presented a plaque and rewarded with a dinner at Nick's Airport Inn, Hagerstown, Md. Meyer Mfg. is a leader in manufacturing forage boxes, bale throw boxes, wagon gears, feeder wagons, manure spreaders, and mineral feeders.

Ease Material Handling Chores By Selecting The Right Skid Loader

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Ever get that feeling that you're spending more and more of your time moving things around the farm?

You're not alone, according to Mike Shotzberger, sales manager at ABC Groff, Inc.

"More and more of our customers are telling us that materials handling is one of their most time-consuming activities," Shotzberger said.

Shotzberger and experts at Ford New Holland began tallying up the materials moving chores a dairyman with 50 cows will face in an average year.

"We were amazed at how quickly the tonnage mounts up," Shotzberger said. "Hay, silage, grain, bedding, and manure at a 50-head operation easily adds up to handling more than 2,000 tons of materials a year."

That's almost 40 tons a week that has to be moved from place to place around the farm. And, said Shotzberger, about 70 percent of this hauling is done right around the central farmstead. Most of it is moved in and around the barn and other main buildings.

In fact, Shotzberger said, materials handling may even surpass field work in the amount of time spent getting it done. It is this kind of information that has led ABC Groff to create a special materials handling group within the organization to deal with the growing interest in farm materials handling.

"The skid steer loader has become almost as important as the tractor in many farming operations," he said. And, with the wide variety of attachments now available, skid steer units can tackle many farm operations more economically and quicker than the tractor.

Selecting the right skid steer loaders, however, often can become confusing because of various methods of describing a loader's capabilities. Knowing a few facts can save you a lot of time and trouble, Shotzberger said.

"Ford New Holland has a great guide to help you become more familiar with skid steer loader basics. It helps you compare apples with apples when you start looking at what's available," he said.

He said, for example, that some manufacturer's catalogs refer to "load rating" or "lift capacity" in describing a loader's capacity. However, there is only one official definition, which should be used in all comparisons.

"Operating Load (SAE) is what the buyer should insist on having for comparison," Shotzberger said. "This is based on the well-defined SAE J8 18a recommended practice."

Shotzberger said the farmer should keep in mind the standard equipment on the loader before purchasing it. He said there is often confusion in this area, and farmers should make certain they get a clear picture of what they are paying for.

These are just some of many tips you'll find in "How to Select the Right Skid Steer Loader for You." A free copy is available at the dealership, or by writing to Materials Handling Department, ABC Groff, 112 S. Railroad Avenue, New Holland, PA 17557.

Sollenberger Silos Recognizes Master Builders

Each earned a Gold Award, which requires a minimum of 1,000 feet of silo wall and 1,000 cubic yards of poured concrete.

Other award winners were Art Dougherty, Fannettsburg; George Wood Jr., Fannettsburg; Ronald Grove, Newburg; Randall Clippinger, Hustontown; Brian Barr, Greencastle; Walt Dougherty, Fannettsburg; Garrett Hill, Fannettsburg; Willie Peppernick, Willow Hill; and Dale Sollenberger, Willow Hill.

Sollenberger Silos Corp. has five crews building silos for the 1991 season to store farmers' hay, small grains, silage, and high-moisture grains. Crews are also busy constructing manure tanks, industrial silos, and precast products such as feed bunks, cattle guards, and bunker silos.

Weaver was one of 15 silo builders recognized for outstanding accomplishments during 1990. He was the leading builder with 1,872 feet of silo wall and 2,905 cubic yards of poured concrete.

Weaver and his crew started the 1991 season by completing a 30 x 120 foot silo in Tennessee.

Newspaper Bedding Is Catching On

YORK (York Co.) — Increased interest in recycling has renewed interest in using old newspapers for animal bedding.

Newsprint makes up an estimated 10 percent of the waste volume in Pennsylvania landfills. It also offers livestock, dairy, and horse farmers an efficient and economical bedding alternative. Thousands of farmers are now using paper and are very pleased with its performance.

Compared to other bedding materials, chopped newspaper performs well. The absorption rate of newsprint is 10 times faster than straw, and four times faster than dry sawdust. Farmers report drier stall beds and pens when newspaper bedding is used. Some even claim a reduction in odors and dust compared to other types of bedding.

Methods for converting newspaper into bedding are quite variable. Most farmers in southcentral Pennsylvania using newspaper are chopping bundles or bags in "whole sheet" form with a bedding chopper designed for hay, straw, or newspaper.

Other methods include forage choppers, wood chippers, hay grinders, and hammermills. Newspaper tends to "chop hard." Therefore it requires more power and causes more wear on equipment. Some manufacturers have made improvements to their machines to accommodate paper better.

Newspaper also mixes well with other bedding materials. The "formula" of the mixture depends on personal preference. Some farmers simply bed the animal one time with newspaper and the next time with straw, hay, or sawdust. They claim the paper provides added moisture absorption to their previous bedding material.

Cornell Receives Tractor For Research

ITHACA, N.Y. — Students and instructors at Cornell University received a new learning tool from farm equipment manufacturer J I Case.

Case donated a Case International MAXXUM™ tractor to be used by the university's department of fruit and vegetable science to study vegetable varieties, herbicides, fertilizers, irrigation, and cultural practices.

Steve McKay, vegetable crop farm manager, received the keys to the 77-hp tractor at the Cornell research facilities from Mark Bonson, product specialist (now area sales manager), and Tobey Morison, area sales manager, from the Case Eastern Region office.

The tractor was prepared for delivery by Lucas Cortland, Inc., the Case International dealership at Cortland, N.Y. Sales manager Stan Conley and others at the dealership donated shop services, time, and expenses in cooperation with Case to modify the Model 5120 and transfer it to the university.

The donated tractor will be employed in several areas of the department's extensive vegetable crop program, which includes two vegetable research farms.

"The tractor's flexible forward gears and creeper function will make it especially useful in cultivating and harvesting the small research plots," said Elmer Ewing, chairman of the department of fruit and vegetable science.

The tractor has the necessary horsepower and traction to pull a bed shaper that is used in raised vegetable bed research. The university is studying the effects of raised beds on soil compaction, root growth, soil moisture, and vegetable quality and yield.

In sustainable agriculture studies, the tractor will be used for precision tillage and cover-crop mulch applications.

Tractors also were given to Purdue University, West Layfayette, Ind.; the University of Wisconsin, Madison; and California State University, Fresno. MAXXUM product manager Dave DeSutter explained these universities were selected because of their excellent agricultural departments, and specific teaching and research programs that help farmers and the agricultural industry.

"We believe in supporting agricultural teaching and research because, in the long run, the students trained and discoveries found benefit the whole agricultural industry — from farmers to farm equipment manufacturers," DeSutter said.

The donated tractors were preproduction units used to fine-tune the MAXXUM series line before it was available to farmers in late 1989.

Bedford Slates Sheep Show

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Bedford Co. will be holding its first Sheep and Wool Field Day on Saturday, May 18, at the Bedford Fairgrounds.

The day will feature exhibits, demonstrations, and contests that revolve around lamb and wool. Admission to the field day is free.

Included will be the fleece show and fleece-to-shawl, sheep dog, and spinning and wool dyeing demonstrations. In addition, contests will be held, including the lamb cookout, Lamb-O-Lympics, shearing, spinning, sheep judging, and poster contests.

A Market Lamb Sale will take place at 5 p.m. at the hog barn show arena on the fairgrounds, with 20-25 top quality lambs for sale.

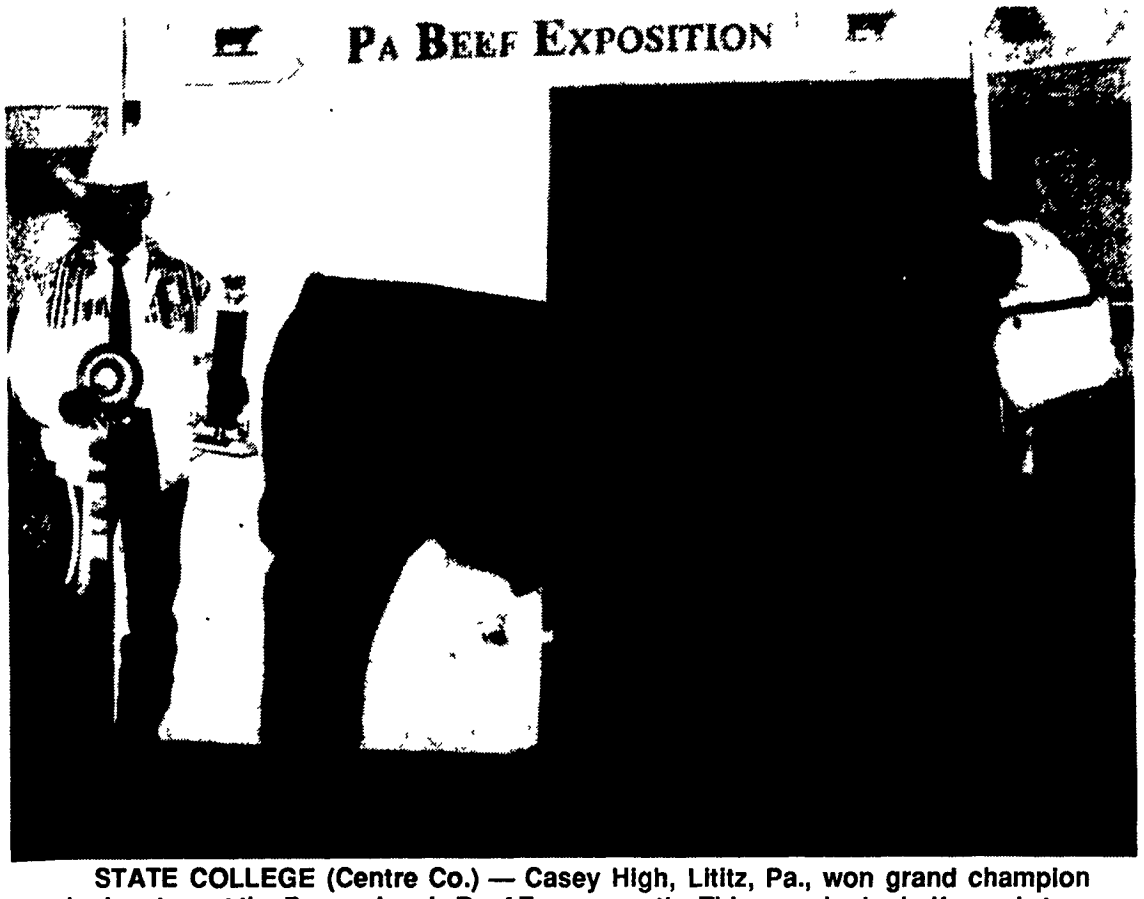
High Wins Junior Steer Show



STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Casey High, Lititz, Pa., won grand champion junior steer at the Pennsylvania Beef Expo recently. This year, junior heifer and steer shows were added to the list of activities, which included a cow-calf symposium, trade show, performance-tested bull sale, breed female sales, and other activities. For more about the Expo, see the story which ran on the front page of Lancaster Farming on April 6. Photo by Patty Lambert, High Trail Farm.

Penn State Dairy Expo Set

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The 66th Penn State Dairy Exposition will be held Saturday, April 27 in the Ag Arena at University Park. The Expo begins at 8:30 a.m.

Sponsored by Penn State's Dairy Science Club, the day-long event gives students practical experience fitting and showing university dairy cattle.

More than 60 students drew their cows by lottery last month and have spent the last few weeks preparing their animals for the competition.

"The Dairy Expo is a fun opportunity to learn more about the dairy industry and agriculture in general," said expo chairman Vinton Smith, a junior in dairy and animal science from Greenville.

The morning's schedule includes amateur showing and fitting classes for all major Pennsylvania dairy breeds. The afternoon will feature special events such as milk chugging, calf dressing and celebrity cow-milking, as well as collegiate, alumni, and professional showing contests. The show champions will be crowned at about 3 p.m.

This year's expo is dedicated to Dieter Krieg, editor and publisher of "Farmshine," a weekly dairy newspaper. Krieg, a Penn State dairy science graduate, was chosen in recognition of his support of the commonwealth's dairy industry and Penn State's dairy programs.

John Burket will receive the Young Dairyman's Award at the Expo. The Dairy Science Club gives the annual award to a recent Penn State graduate who has made important contributions to the dairy industry and Penn State's dairy programs. Burket, who runs a dairy farm in East Freedom, graduated from Penn State in 1987.

All of this year's student managers are dairy and animal science majors. Scott Snyder, a senior from Volant, is show manager. Tom McCauley, a sophomore from Elizabethtown and last year's fitting and showing champion, is assistant show manager. Marjorie Shearer, a junior from Port Royal, is special events chairperson. Angela Bollinger, a junior from Newmanstown, is banquet chairperson.

Penn State's Ag Arena is at the corner of Porter Road and Park Avenue Extension across from Beaver Stadium. Refreshments will be available at the expo and parking in adjacent lots is free.

A banquet to recognize Expo participants, the dedicatee, the young dairyman, and the student managers will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the Johnston Dining Hall in East Halls. Tickets for the banquet cost $13 and are available from Larry Muller or Dale Olver at (814) 863-4205.

Americans Support Alternative Fuels

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A recent survey of Americans in six major cities across the country has found overwhelming public support for the inclusion of alternative fuels — such as ethanol — as part of the comprehensive national energy strategy being considered by the President and the Congress.

Of particular note is the fact that a majority of those polled would utilize alternative fuels even if available through only a voluntary national energy policy.

The purpose of the survey, conducted by the public relations firm of Howard Rubenstein and Associates, was to ascertain public opinion regarding the President's National Energy Strategy and the inclusion of alternative, renewable fuels in such a policy.

The timing of this survey is particularly appropriate in light of recent trends showing that oil prices are, once again, adjusting downward and that the flow of oil imports into this country are returning to pre-Persian Gulf crisis levels.

The results of this recent survey show that an overwhelming majority, both nationally and in each of the six cities, believe that the U.S. government should actively promote the development of alternative energy sources such as ethanol as a replacement to imported oil.

Among those polled, the following percentages of affirmative responses were recorded:

	Yes	No
NATIONAL	83%	6%
CLEVELAND, OH	78%	6%
MEMPHIS, TN	72%	2%
LONG ISLAND, NY	84%	10%
EL PASO, TX	92%	4%
INDIANAPOLIS, IN	84%	4%
ELIZABETH, NJ	88%	4%
TACOMA, WA	86%	8%

Current debate over our future energy policy has revealed growing bipartisan support for establishing a national goal in which a percentage of our transportation energy needs would be met by alternative fuels.

For example, a bill introduced by Senators Jim Jeffords (R-VT) and Tim Wirth (D-Co) requires that 10 percent of the nation's motor fuel be derived from domestically produced non-petroleum sources by 1998, and 30 percent by the year 2010. This requirement could be met through the increased use of alternatives in gasoline blends, in ethers, and in alternative-fueled fleet vehicles. A similar provision has been included in a comprehensive energy proposal introduced by Minority Leader Bob Michael and Congressman Norm Lent.

To gauge public opinion on this issue, respondents in this survey were asked if they would be in favor of seeing a percentage of the current U.S. gasoline supply replaced by alternative energy sources, mainly blended renewable fuels such as ethanol.

The affirmative responses were dramatically overwhelming:

	Yes	No
NATIONAL	85%	15%
CLEVELAND, OH	74%	26%
MEMPHIS, TN	84%	16%
LONG ISLAND, NY	90%	10%
EL PASO, TX	92%	8%
INDIANAPOLIS, IN	76%	24%
ELIZABETH, NJ	92%	8%
TACOMA, WA	91%	9%

To determine what are considered acceptable percentages of alternative fuels replacement, those polled were asked what they believed would be a realistic percentage for such a policy. The percentage options ranged from 1 percent to more than 50 percent.

The interviewers found that there was great willingness on the part of the people surveyed to do what they could to ease U.S. dependence on imported oil. Eighty-five percent believe that a percentage of the current U.S. gasoline supply should be replaced by the an alternative fuel such as ethanol. When asked for a realistic percentage for such a replacement, more than 50 percent believed that between 10 percent and 25 percent would be realistic.

In order to measure the depth of commitment Americans have toward an increased use of alternative fuels to reduce our dependence on foreign oil, the respondents were asked whether they would be willing to use alternative blended fuels, such as ethanol, as part of a National Energy Policy. Of those polled, 84 percent said they would willingly participate in such a program.

Tractor Certification For Youth Set

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — Farmers who expect to hire anyone under 16 years of age to work on a farm should be aware of the child labor requirements in agriculture under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Under child labor provisions of the Act, it is unlawful for an employer to hire anyone under 16 years of age to operate a tractor of over 20 PTO horsepower, or connecting or disconnecting an implement or any of its parts to or from such a tractor.

Also, illegal according to the regulation would be the operating or assisting to operate most tractor powered or self-powered equipment. Some livestock, lumbering, storage, and pesticide work is classified hazardous and illegal. Youth employed by parent or guardian are exempt.

Some may question the legal importance of the training, since there haven't been any court cases in Pennsylvania. However, if a serious accident involving an uncertified youth occurs, the resulting investigations could be very uncomfortable for the employer.

Fines to an employer may be $1,000 first offense, and more than $10,000 or up to six months imprisonment or both for a second offense. Youth 14 and 15 years of age may be legally hired if they become certified through a tractor certification program. The certification indicates that the bearer has completed safety instructions — it is not an operators license.

A certification program will be available starting at 7 p.m. on April 30 at the Extension Office at 701 South Fourth Street, Towanda. If a youth 14 or 15 years of age plans to work on a farm this summer or if a farmer plans to hire a person of this age, they may become certified by completing this course.

There will be four evening sessions starting at 7 p.m. on April 30, May 2, 7, and 9 and a morning session starting at 9 a.m. on May 11, during which a driving test will be given. Youth 13 years of age will be accepted but will not receive their certification until their 14th birthday. There will be a charge of $3.00 to cover the cost of study materials.

Ammonium Sulfate Boosts Tank Mix Performance

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. — Growers planning to tank mix Beacon and Banvel herbicides for postemergence weed control in corn may get better weed control by adding ammonium sulfate fertilizer to the tank mix.

That's according to Michigan State University Ph.D candidate Steve Hart.

In Hart's greenhouse experiments, control of shattercane declined sharply — by about 15 percent — when Beacon was tank mixed with Banvel. But adding a small amount of ammonium sulfate restored Beacon's performance.

Normally, the shattercane plant will absorb 25-30 percent of Beacon applied alone. But absorption drops to only about 15 percent when it was applied with Banvel, Hart said. But when ammonium sulfate was added, absorption jumped to 35 percent — about 1/3 better.

"Our research with Beacon tank mixes and ammonium sulfate is preliminary," Hart said. "We haven't pinpointed the cause of the control reduction or exactly how ammonium sulfate helps overcome it. With this experience, we've shown that a potential problem exists — and a way to overcome it."

According to Ciba-Geigy herbicide research manager Joe Peek, ammonium sulfate solutions are being tested as an adjuvant for the Beacon/Banvel tank mix. Beacon is currently labeled for use with liquid nitrogen. Specific labeling and mixing instructions for ammonium sulfate may come in 1992, said Peek.

Adding Ammonium Sulfate Is Becoming Common

Adding ammonium sulfate fertilizer to herbicide solutions has been one of the most successful strategies to boost the performance of many postemergence herbicides and tank mixes.

More than one dozen herbicides and herbicide tank mix labels include specific instructions for using ammonium sulfate.

The herbicides include Fallow Master, Honcho, Landmaster, Landmaster II, Landmaster BW, Roundup and Roundup RT, manufactured by Monsanto Co.; Poast and Poast Plus, manufactured by BASF Corp.; Pursuit, manufactured by American Cyanamid Co.; and Classic and Pinnacle, manufactured by Du Pont.

"Smaller particles dissolve more readily and eliminate the potential for sprayer nozzle clogging," said Zane Blevins, marketing manager with Allied.

"We bag our spray grade of SULF-N 45 ammonium sulfate at the production site, which means that we can guarantee the applicator a pure product," said Blevins.

In the past, some dealers sold bulk fertilizer in small, previously used containers, Some of these contained trace amounts of ag chemical residues and dirt, which led to application and performance problems.

"With a pre-bagged product, we can keep our quality high and avoid problems for everyone," said Blevins.

The choice of surfactant, or crop oil concentrate, depends on which herbicide is being used. When creating the fertilizer and herbicide combinations, Blevins stresses the need to follow the label directions suggested by the herbicide manufacturer to ensure the best performance.

Junior Angus Show Set For July

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — The largest junior beef breed show in the country will take place July 16-20 at the Wisconsin State Fair Park in Milwaukee.

The event is the 23rd National Junior Angus Show and Showmanship Contest and will host exhibitors from some 40 states and more than 600 head of Angus cattle.

Erskine Cash, Centre Hall, Pa., will judge divisions for bred-and-owned heifers, bred-and-owned bulls, cow-calf pairs, and owned heifers. There will be an "on-hoof" steer show judged by Harlan Ritchie, East Lansing, Mich. There will also be a separate carcass contest for the steers. All carcass contest entries must be exhibited in the live steer show.

Every exhibitor at the national show must be a junior, regular or life member of the American Angus Association, and be 9 years old by January 1, 1991 and not yet 21 years of age by that date.

Finals of the 25th National Junior Angus Showmanship Contest will be held in conjunction with the national show. Around 70 contestants from 36 states and Canada are expected to compete for the prestigious title of "Top Showman." The judges for the contest are Ray Apple, Crestwood, Ky.; Mark Duffel, Aldie, Va.; and Allen Robinson, Wellsville, Mo.

The annual meeting of the National Junior Angus Association (NJAA) will be conducted during the show with the election of six new directors to the National Junior Angus Board.

A special highlight at this year's show will be the introduction of a new team sales competition. For this competition, three-member teams will sell a heifer to a mock potential buyer while a panel of three judges watch and score the team.

For more information on the 23rd National Junior Angus Show and Showmanship Contest, contact the Junior Activities Department of the American Angus Association, 3201 Frederick Blvd., St. Joseph, MO 64506.

Md. Pork Banquet Recognizes Producers

EDGEWATER, Md. — Ricky Bauer, of Dayton, Md., handed out the awards at the 1991 Maryland Pork Producers Association annual banquet. Bauer was elected president of the association at the banquet.

Howard Meredith, Jr. of Wye Mills, Md. received the Junior Award for his production efforts as part of his FFA swine project.

"Meredith's desire to produce a quality lean pig have brought him into the same arena as some of Maryland's finest breeders," said Ramsay.

Roberta Weber, Howard County Cooperative Extension agent, was the recipient of the Roy Porter Memorial Award for a nonproducer.

The James R. Ferguson Award for feeder pig excellence was awarded to Dennis Nagel of Federalsburg for sending outstanding pigs to the Maryland Pork Producers Association Special Feeder Pig Sale consistently throughout the year. Producers sending pigs to the special sale must undergo an annual veterinary inspection and pseudorabies blood testing to qualify to sell pigs at the sale.

Richard Weaver of Finksburg, Md. was the recipient of the Producer Award. Bert expressed the association's thanks to Weaver for the commitment he had made as president.

"How Dick managed to run the MPPA program with all the federal restriction, be a full-time educator, part-time hog and grain farmer, and do a good job of all of them is beyond comprehension," said Ramsay.

The 1990 Pork Expo trophy for the champion hog evaluated on the rail was awarded to Franklin Feeser. His hog produced the greatest percentage of lean meat of all the animals tested.

Rick Pasco from the National Pork Producers Council's Washington D.C. office was the main speaker and discussed important federal issues. "Of major concern to producers are food safety and labeling issues," said Pasco. "To get grass roots involvement, NPPC has developed the Capitol Connection Program. It links producers to congressional members so that farmers can explain how federal issues affect the constituents back home."

Grangers Look Forward To Week

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Chester County Grangers are looking forward to celebrating Grange Week April 21-27, 1991.

The county commissioners will issue a proclamation and members will publicize the programs and policies of the Grange, the only rural family fraternity in the world.

Also known as the Order of Patrons of Husbandry, the Grange is a nonsectarian and nonpartisan organization that lobbies on behalf of rural America in Harrisburg and Washington. In addition, members can take advantage of such benefits as medical insurance, auto insurance, food exchange, credit union, prescription plan, etc.

Local units, called subordinates, carry on service projects to benefit their respective communities and sponsor dinners, flea markets, hoagie sales, and other events to raise money for these projects.

A highlight of Grange Week will be the annual Legislative Banquet to be held at Cochranville Fire Hall on Saturday, April 27 at 6:30 p.m.

The speaker will be George B. Wolff, a Lebanon County Granger who, as a member of the State Grange Legislative Committee, helps to set State Grange legislative policy and confers with representatives and senators on pending legislation.

The All-New American Series from White Farm Equipment

Dependable and rugged, White's all-new American Series has power for the field. Powered by a Cummins 4-cylinder engine, both 60 and 80 hp models really get you through the field... at an operating cost that leaves more for your bottom line.

And the American Series is available in your choice of four historic colors: Oliver Green, Minneapolis-Moline Gold, Cockshutt Red and White Farm Silver.

We've equipped the American Series with standard features that give you the best of the "utility" and "row crop" worlds.

- Cast iron main frame
- 6-speed transmission
- Adjustable 3-point hitch

And you can choose from options that give you even more big tractor performance.

- Posi-trac full power front axle
- Electronic 3-speed power shift
- 2nd and 3rd remote detent valves

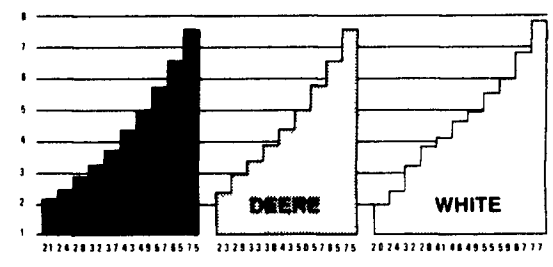
The Evolution of the New Workhorse

It has been said that if you don't make dust, you eat it. The new Workhorse from White is an evolution of dust-raising power and rugged dependability. The competition has some catching up to do.



The Workhorse Power Team

Workhorse couples the power of the Cummins Diesel Engine with our field-proven 18-speed transmission with 3 speed Powershift. This Power Team produces a whooping 42% increase in torque measured at the drive wheels of the 170 and 195 models. At base shipping weight, the Workhorse 145 will pull a higher percentage of weight without adding extra cast iron. That minimizes soil compaction. Plus, it delivers nearly 10% greater fuel efficiency than other tractors in its class. That means you can save as much as 1 gallon of fuel per hour.

The Transmission That's Faster in the Field

With a new Workhorse you can work faster and more efficiently because it delivers up to ⅓ more speeds than the competition in the 3.8 to 7.7 mph range. That is where the field work is done.

By traveling just ⅓ mph faster pulling a 12 row planter, you can cover as much as 9 additional acres in a 10 hour day.

Maryland Lists Top March Herds

The March 1991 DHI information for Maryland dairy herds is listed by herd name, county, total number of cows in the herd, and the average production per cow on a 3.5% Fat Corrected Milk (FCM) basis for all milking cows in the herd. The herd must consist of at least 10 cows averaging 60 lbs. or more of 3.5% FCM per cow per day. All of the herds are on official DHI or DHIR test.

Also listed are the top ten herds in Maryland for the Brown Swiss, Guernseys and Jerseys, and the top seven herds for Ayrshires.

N.J. Pesticide Association Honors Smith

TRENTON, N.J. — The Pesticide Association of New Jersey recently presented its Distinguished Service Award for outstanding service to agriculture to Norman J. Smith.

Born and raised in New York, Smith entered Cornell University in 1946 and received his bachelor of science degree from the New York State College of Agriculture in 1949.

At the forefront of the agricultural chemical era, Smith taught farmers how to use selective weed killers, new fungicides, and insecticides which helped reduce crop losses and improve yields.

Before commercial weed sprayers were manufactured, Smith helped more than 150 farmers build their own weed sprayers which were used quite successfully. In 1953, he received the first county agent award at the Northeast Weed Control Conference.

In 1959, Smith took sabbatical leave and obtained a master's degree from Michigan State University in nine months. In 1962 he received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

In addition to his numerous awards, Smith wrote a book titled "Picture Clues to Lawn Troubles," which earned him a citation from Epsilon Sigma Phi, the extension fraternity.

Other major accomplishments of Smith include building the first plastic greenhouse in the United States and helping set up drip irrigation in many countries throughout the world. In 1978, he helped an Iranian engineer install 450 acres of drip irrigation.

According to Smith, new knowledge in vegetable production is now worldwide and is not confined to the U.S. Because of Smith's extensive knowledge of plastics, he became president of the National Agricultural Plastics Association and the International Plastics Association, serving from 1976-1979.

Rutgers University promoted Smith to Distinguished Professor in 1979. In 1981, he received the Gold Medal Award from the Philadelphia Society for the Advancement of Agriculture. The Cumberland County Board of Agriculture calls Smith "a man who devoted the majority of his life and energies to the advancement of the vegetable industry," specifically citing his 15-year contribution to N.J. agriculture.

Conservation Committee Forms To Help Farmers

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Calling this the most crucial phase of the soil conservation movement, representatives from three federal agencies and two conservation groups have formed a special committee to help farmers comply with the soil conservation provisions of the Farm Bill.

This Conservation Tillage Educational Planning Group has recently created a series of 14 fact sheets on conservation tillage.

The Farm Bill legislation requires some one million farmers across the country to implement an approved soil conservation plan by December 31, 1994 in order to remain eligible for farm program benefits. More than 75 percent of these plans call for the use of conservation tillage.

To help farmers meet the conservation compliance deadline, representatives from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), U.S. Department of Agriculture Soil Conservation Service (SCS), U.S. Department of Agriculture Cooperative Extension (CE), the Conservation Technology Information Center (CTIC), and the Midwest Plan Service have volunteered their time to the group.

According to co-chairman Dr. Elbert Dickey, extension agricultural engineer with the University of Nebraska, the group was established to "help Extension, SCS, and agribusiness improve their knowledge of conservation tillage and ultimately transfer that knowledge to farmers who are adopting conservation tillage."

The first fact sheet series covers many aspects of conservation tillage farming, including tillage and residue management, ridge-till farming, no-till farming, fertility requirements, and more.

"By involving many different branches of the USDA, we are better able to prepare educational materials that cover all aspects of conservation tillage," said Pat McGrane, SCS public affairs specialist in Nebraska and a founder of the group.

"The fact sheets can be used as written, or Extension agents, SCS personnel, and ag dealers may want to customize these fact sheets according to their own local conditions," said Dickey.

Copies of the fact sheets, printed on recycled paper with soy ink, are available by contacting the CTIC and requesting an order form. Write to: CTIC, 1220 Potter Drive, Room 170, West Lafayette, IN 47906-1334. Quantities of the fact sheets are available at $.03 per piece. There is a minimum charge of $3 per order.

PLY-FOIL is a very efficient form of insulation. In application after application it has proven to be extremely effective at controlling heat gain/loss, thus significantly reducing heating and cooling costs. PLY-FOIL Insulation uses an aluminum foil to reflect up to 97% of the radiant heat.

PLY-FOIL BENEFITS

PLY-FOIL products are clean, lightweight, and non-toxic; are unaffected by changes in humidity; do not shrink; and once installed require no maintenance. They do not promote the growth of fungi or bacteria, and provide no nesting support for rodent or insect pests. PLY-FOIL, which has a Class A/Class 1 fire rating, meets the fire and smoke safety requirements of most federal, state and local building codes.

Corn Rootworm A Serious Concern

CEDAR RAPIDS, IA — Up until a few years ago, most Pennsylvania corn growers were only concerned with the northern corn rootworm, but in recent years the threat of severe damage from western corn rootworm has created new pest control challenges.

The influx of western corn rootworm has spread steadily, now covering most of Pennsylvania. But population levels alone don't tell the whole story. According to Dr. Dennis Calvin, assistant professor of entomology, Penn State University, the western species is about twice as damaging as the northern.

"The thresholds that we use are about half for the western compared to those used for northern corn rootworm. Westerns tend to hatch out a bit earlier in the season and get a head start. They also tend to be more competitive than the northerns and displace them in the areas where the two coexist. The western corn rootworms also have a higher reproductive rate than the northern, so they build their populations up more rapidly and can cause more of a problem," Calvin said.

"When the western corn rootworm entered this new geographic area, several other factors influenced its fast growth and spread, Calvin said. "When a pest migrates into a new habitat, it takes awhile for its natural enemies to follow it, so you don't get much help from natural control agents.

"In addition to that, it's typically the female corn rootworms that migrate, so you have a bigger population laying eggs in the field. A population that may not seem very high can result in a lot of eggs being deposited in those new areas, since 70 to 80 percent of that population is female. Those areas can suffer substantial outbreaks the following spring. Mild winter weather, which favors overwintering of the eggs, can add to the population explosion," he said.

Fields left untreated for rootworms can end up with severe root damage. Goosenecking or lodging is the result, making harvest very difficult.

The western corn rootworm is about twice as damaging as the northern corn rootworm, according to Dr. Dennis Calvin, assistant professor of entomology at Pennsylvania State University.

Yield Loss Potential Is High

Yield losses in fields with heavy stress can easily result in 30 to 35 bushels per acre loss from rootworm feeding, Calvin said. In 1990, some fields that were heavily infested suffered total losses because of the timing of the infestation and the degree of stress that occurred.

Growers like Rick Schlosberg of Newtown Square, Pa., know they just can't afford those kind of losses. Schlosberg has a cash grain operation in Delaware and Chester counties that includes 900 acres of corn.

"Rootworm damage affects both yield and efficiency of harvesting. If you have corn that is lodged or down on the ground, you're most likely not going to be able to harvest it. So of course, you're going to have yield losses and harvesting can be a nightmare.

"A couple years ago we had a heavy windstorm in the fall and I had corn go down almost flat because the root system was so weakened from the rootworms. I tried and tried to harvest that corn and I just couldn't get it. So I knew then that an insecticide was definitely called for if I was going to plant corn after corn," he said.

Insecticide Compatibility A Concern

When it came time to select an insecticide, Schlosberg considered both efficacy and safety.

"Prior to using Lorsban, I had used both Counter and Furadan. Then I decided to use Lorshban, which is not a restricted-use pesticide."

Schlosberg said he didn't have to sacrifice efficacy to get a compatible product. "Since I started using Lorsban three years ago, I've had no rootworm or cutworm problems. For continuous corn I use an insecticide every year. I'll also use it in corn that follows a hay crop where I might run into problems with sod webworms or grubs. Since I no-till most of my corn, I find that Lorsban does a nice job under those conditions.

"I think you can satisfy getting a good yield and managing the environment by selecting the proper material," he said.

Faced with the challenge of balancing effective control with environmental concerns, growers have to develop a sound management program for western corn rootworm as well as other common corn pests.

Management Program Begins With Scouting

Penn State's Calvin believes the first step in such a program is scouting. "By the time a grower notices the injury from corn rootworm in the field, it's too late to do anything that year. They need to scout the fields in late summer to make the decision whether or not they need to treat the following spring.

"First of all, growers need to identify which rootworm pest they are dealing with. The western corn rootworm is about one quarter of an inch long, green in color with three black stripes down the back. The northerns are basically the same shape and size but are solid green in color," he said.

"Check to see whether the females are actively laying eggs. If their abdomens are plump and you can squeeze some eggs out of them, that indicates they're laying eggs in that field.

"Remember to scout randomly around the field in several locations because rootworms, like many other insects, tend to aggregate in particular spots.

"In areas where corn looks stunted or stalks are goosenecked, growers should pull up the corn and examine roots for damage," Calvin said. "The roots are important because that's how the plant acquires the nutrients and the

Extraordinary Challenge Will Be Used

DES MOINES, Iowa. — The National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) is very encouraged that U.S. Trade Ambassador Carla Hills has chosen to use the extraordinary challenge procedure to provide a fair hearing in the Canadian pork case.

Hills accepted NPPC's request on March 29. Her decision marks the first use of the extraordinary challenge procedure that was established under the U.S./Canada Free Trade Agreement (FTA).

NPPC requested the extraordinary challenge review on March 11. The extraordinary challenge committee will determine whether a binational panel, established under the FTA, acted inappropriately when it forced the International Trade Commission (ITC) to reverse its two previous opinions that imports of subsidized Canadian pork product threaten to injure the U.S. pork industry. If the ITC's adverse decision is left standing, the United States will have to remove the countervailing duty on Canadian fresh, chilled, and frozen pork that it imposed in September 1989.

"Ambassador Hills' call for an extraordinary challenge is a call for a fair hearing," said NPPC President John Hardin. "We are pleased that she and more than 90 members of Congress recognized that an independent committee should look into the binational panel's actions. This decision is a good sign for all of U.S. agriculture because it shows that the U.S. government will exercise its rights under trade agreements to promote fair trade along with free trade."

The U.S. Trade Representative's Office requested the extraordinary challenge because of the merit of the concerns, Ambassador Hills said. "On careful review of interagency analysis and the opinion of the ITC, I believe that there are legitimate issues in this case for review by an extraordinary challenge committee under the standards set out in the FTA."

The extraordinary challenge process was created under the FTA for use on cases when a panel departs from a fundamental rule of procedure or exceeds its authority. An extraordinary challenge committee will be formed by mid-April and will announce its decision 30 days later. The committee could overturn the panel's ruling, or make the panel correct its errors and allow the ITC to look at the case again.

"U.S. pork producers are longstanding advocates of free trade. Our support is stronger than ever for approval of fast-track negotiating authority on the Uruguay Round of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade," Hardin said. "The pork product countervailing duty fits well with this thinking because it keeps the door open for fair trade between our countries as it offsets the imbalance created by Canadian subsidies. The duty level is high when Canadian pork subsidies are high and is lowered as Canadian subsidies are reduced."

Rootworms are a real concern for Larry Miley, farm manager for Overlook Road Farm in Downington, Pa. He says yield can be reduced drastically if rootworms aren't controlled properly.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Corn Rootworm

water it needs to grow. If you've got a restricted root system, then the plant can't draw those out of the soil as effectively. You can get some significant yield reductions from the loss of root systems."

Economic thresholds vary by rootworm species and whether the corn is first-year or continuous. With northern corn rootworm in first-year corn, the threshold is two beetles per plant, he said. For second-year corn or beyond, it's three. For the western corn rootworm, the threshold is one beetle in first-year corn and 1.5 for second-year corn or beyond.

Research indicates that across Pennsylvania about 25 to 30 percent of the corn fields benefit from a rootworm insecticide, Calvin said. However in areas where the western corn rootworm has invaded within the last three years, from 50 to 90 percent of the fields may have potentially damaging corn rootworm levels.

"If less than 70 percent of the fields in an area exceed economic levels, scouting can save money over the long run. At levels greater than 70 percent, your best bet is to apply an insecticide at planting," Calvin said.

At-Plant Application Protects Yeilds

In theory, scouting is a sound practice. but, many growers find it difficult to find time to scout thoroughly. For some growers who have had a history of corn pests like rootworm and cutworm, the most effective approach has been to simply apply the insecticide at planting time.

Larry Miley, farm manager for Overlook Road Farm in Downington, Pa., says he applied Lorsban insecticide on his entire 700 acres of corn in 1990. "I try to rotate crops as much as possible, but we're growing so much more corn, we can't rotate every year.

"We have a lot of pressure from rootworms, and if we let it go, the crop will really lean down. You can lose 40 percent of your yield pretty easily if you don't do anything to stop it.

"Yield and profitability go together, and the profit margin has become smaller and smaller," he said. "If you don't get the yield, you're not going to make any money. What you plant, how you plant it, your erosion control, cover crops, and pest control all play a part if you want to make a profit," he said.

Although the bottom line is the primary goal, Miley acknowledges that he too has environmental concerns.

DON'T BUY ANY TYPE OF INSULATION UNTIL YOU READ THIS IMPORTANT MESSAGE!

Now you can update and insulate your buildings with lifetime Pure Aluminum Foil Reflective Insulation. It has been designed for poultry and livestock buildings, metal buildings, hog farms, veal houses, horse and cattle barns, cold storage houses, egg rooms, etc. Why not have a cleaner and healthier environment and never have to reinsulate again. Our Pure Aluminum Foil Reflective Insulation will last forever.

Old style standard types of insulation merely slow down your heat loss and deteriorate rapidly. They were not designed for agricultural use. Our Pure Aluminum Foil Reflective Insulation stops your heat loss COLD and will last forever.

We have done business with many people (384 accounts) in the farming and agricultural business, and most of them all tell us the same thing. Whenever moisture or condensation strikes standard types of insulation they lose all of their "R" values, the rats and mice love it, it is very dangerous in a fire because of the toxic gases omitted and it just does not hold up very long. Our reflective aluminum foil insulation will last a lifetime and will continue to reflect heat back in the direction that it came, thereby keeping all buildings cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter.

Why keep throwing your hard earned money away on cheap and inferior types of insulation when you can buy the best for just a little bit more and never have to replace it again. Doesn't it make good sense to do the job right the first time and end your insulation problems once and for all?

WHY SHOULD YOU CONSIDER BUYING PURE ALUMINUM FOIL REFLECTIVE INSULATION:

1. It completely eliminates condensation in all metal buildings.
2. Specially coated outer surfaces can stand high pressure cleaning.
3. Resistant to stains, mildew, chemicals and animal waste.

Wet brewers grain is more than a good feed. It's a good business ingredient.

Each day, up to 100,000 U.S. dairy cows feed on rations containing wet brewers grain. That's because their owners know it minimizes feed costs while it maximizes production.

Wet brewers grain is a high-protein feed ingredient. It's always fresh, because it's delivered directly to your dairy. It fits into most programs, is easy to handle, and easy to store.

Call us today. One of our professional feed consultants will help you work wet brewers grain into your ration, so you can make it a profitable ingredient for your business.

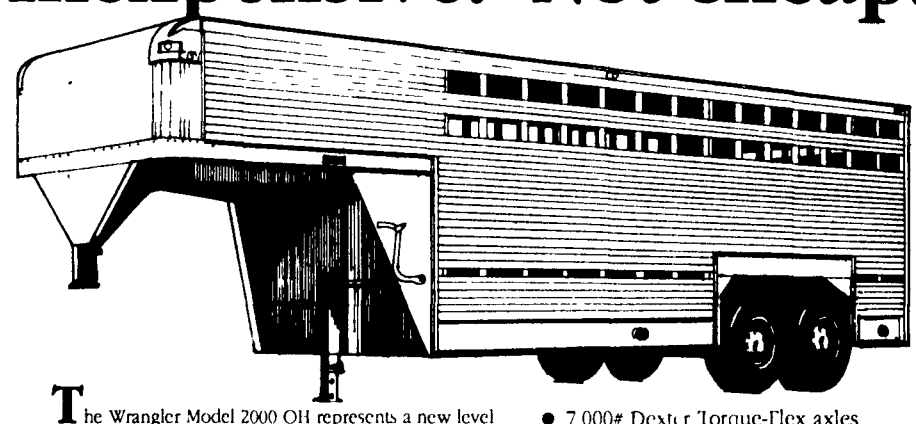
Introducing The Wrangler 2000-OH Inexpensive. Not cheap.



The Wrangler Model 2000 OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers

Its standard specifications, top quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models But the new 2000 OH is less expensive By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top value gooseneck

Unlike other 'budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000 OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality Consider these features, standard on the new Wrangler 2000 OH

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications
- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

Special introductory pricing.
All this and more for under $9,000.*

* Introductory price of a standard 20 model as illustrated Freight taxes title dealer prep not included

MASTER MIX

SILO-BOOSTER

Why should you use Master Mix SILO BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 24 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage innoculant yet developed.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

Alfalfa Ensiled With And Without SILO-BOOSTER Conducted At The University Of Minnesota West Central Experiment Station Morris, Minnesota Summary Of Haylage Crops

DRY MATTER RECOVERY (1)	CONTROL	SILO-BOOSTER
Amount D.M. Ensiled, lb.	26,228	30,418
Amount D.M. Removed, lb.	24,432	30,278
Recovery, %	93.2	99.5

(1) Individual loads of fresh forage were weighed before ensiling; after storage, silos were emptied completely at one time.

Composition and pH of Stored Alfalfa Ensiled With and Without SILO BOOSTER.

	CONTROL	SILO-BOOSTER
Dry Matter, %	50.66	54.98
pH	6.33	5.82
Crude Protein, %	23.64	23.45
Ammonia Nitrogen	19.76	14.80
ADIN-N. % of total N	5.76	5.58
ADF, % of D.M.	31.74	30.23
NFD, % of D.M.	42.44	41.88
Lactic Acid, % of D.M.	1.00	.87
Acetic Acid, % of D.M.	72	.52
Propionic Acid, % of D.M.	.018	.007
Butyric Acid, % of D.M.	.119	.027

Dry matter recovery data from these conventional silos demonstrates a 6.3% difference in feedable alfalfa silage. For each 100 tons of silage, there would be an additional 6.3 tons of silage available for feeding. This is equivalent to 3.5 tons of 90% dry matter hay worth approximately $350.00. This is a $3.50 return for each $1.00 investment in SILO BOOSTER from a reduction in fermentation losses alone.

Master Mix® CENTRAL SOYA

APPLICATION: 1 Lb. of SILO-BOOSTER per ton of Forage.
Try New BIO-POWER Soluble mixed with water.
Add Feed Value To This Year's Silage By Reducing Costly Fermentation Losses

Time To Plant Soybeans

Robert E. Leiby
David L. Dunbar
Lehigh Co. Extension

Determine lime and fertilizer needs by soil test. Soybeans in rotation can utilize fertilizer applied to the previous crop; however, this does not eliminate the need for a sound fertility program.

Maintain pH between 6.0 and 6.5. Apply fertilizer before seeding or band at least two inches to the side of seed at planting. Do not drill fertilizer with the seed or use "pop-up" fertilizer.

Soybeans that have been properly inoculated with nitrogen-fixing bacteria rarely respond to nitrogen fertilization. If pH is below 6.0, and will not be corrected with lime, apply molybdenum as a seed treatment at planting. This will help insure proper nitrogen fixation.

If the previous year's crop was not soybeans, inoculate seed with fresh, viable, nitrogen-fixing bacteria immediately before planting. Triple the inoculant rate if soybeans have not been grown previously in the field.

Double-crop beans should be planted in approximately 14-inch rows or as close as your equipment allows. With double-crop beans, rows wider than 15 inches are not desirable.

Optimum populations are approximately 150,000 plants per acre for full-season beans and 200,000 plants per acre from double-cropped beans. See the "Penn State Agronomy Guide" to determine the number of seeds to plant per foot of row.

Calibrate planters carefully. One extra seed per foot of row adds approximately 75,000 additional seeds per acre when seven-inch rows are used. The potential soybean yield will not be affected greatly by reduced population. However, lower pod height may increase harvest losses.

Also, reduced populations provide less competition to weeds and weed control may not be as effective. If plant populations are too high, lodging may increase. Use a corn planter with soybean seed plates or a grain drill. Herbicide choice is critical for soybeans planted in narrow rows or solid plantings that cannot be cultivated.

The optimum date for planting soybeans is very similar to that for corn. However, since delayed planting reduces corn yield much more than soybean yield, corn should be planted first. Once corn planting is finished, do not delay soybean planting.

Plant soybeans 1 to 1.5 inches deep. Do not plant in dry soil. If a soil crust forms before beans emerge, break it with a rotary hoe or spike-tooth harrow. Harrow very shallowly.

Sheep Field Day

The Delaware Valley College of Science and Agriculture in Doylestown will be the site of an educational event for sheep farmers on Saturday, May 4 (rain or shine). Check-in will begin at 9:30 a.m. The program will feature the following topics:

- Does the IRS consider your farm a hobby or a business?
- Using farm business records.
- Will there be farms in your township in the 21st century?
- Performance evaluation/a selection tool.
- New sheep management technology.
- Caring for newborn lambs.
- Intensive pasture management.

The registration fee is $10 per adult and $7 per person 18 years and under. The fee includes lunch at the college dining hall. Registration deadline is Friday, April 26. Phone (215) 391-9840 to request a registration form and program agenda.

An ASCS Deadline

Mike Macker, county executive director for the Lehigh County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, reminds farmers that April 26 is the final date for enrollment in the 1991 wheat and feed grain programs.

The 1991 programs guarantee producers target price protection and price support loans. Producers will be required to reduce their wheat base by 15 percent and their corn base by 7.5 percent for program participation.

For 1991, because there is no cross compliance requirement, producers will be able to enroll one program crop and still exceed their base with another program crop. The 1991 program also offers additional flexibility in its planting requirements.

County producers are urged to visit the ASCS office before April 26 to learn more about the benefits of the program.

Bee Visits Affect Fruit Quality And Quantity

An apple flower is exposed to between 54 and 88 potential bee visits in its lifetime. A flower must be visited by a bee 68 times to produce fruit with a high number of seeds.

Apple seeds are the final product of pollination and fertilization, and they produce hormones which promote fruit development. More bee visits mean more seeds and better fruit quality.

Massachusetts researchers showed a significant increase in fruit calcium with increasing seed numbers in apples. They concluded that low seed numbers contribute to low calcium concentrations and to calcium-related disorders during and following storage.

Pollination is not only critical for fruit set but also for the production of quality apples. Also, recent work on pears has shown that increased bee visitation to pear blossoms produces larger pears.

Pollination practices leading to increased bee visitation are beneficial both for fruit set and fruit quality.

Lack of adequate pollination results in small or misshapen fruits and low yields. Nothing ensures adequate pollination better than owning bees or renting colonies from a reliable beekeeper.

The number of colonies needed will vary with location, attractiveness of crop, density of flowers, length of blooming period, colony strength, and competitive plants in the area. The rule of thumb is to start with one colony per acre. Areas well populated with wild bees and honey bees will not need as many colonies. Package bees and small hives are inferior to strong, overwintered colonies.

Competing blossoms, such as dandelions, mustard, and wild radish attract bees away from fruit tree blossoms. They should be controlled by mowing, cultivation, or herbicides.

Changes In Agricultural Input/Support Factors

A report recently published by the USDA's Economic Research Service describes the agricultural input industries during the 20-year period of 1966-86:

- Total U.S. fertilizer use rose from 32 million tons in the mid-1960s to a peak of 54 million tons in 1981, but then dropped to 44 million tons in the mid-1980s. Nitrogen is the dominant purchased nutrient.
- Pesticide sales to farmers rose from $0.9 billion in 1966 to $3.5 billion in 1986, after adjusting for inflation. Farmer use of pesticides rose from 353 million to 475 million pounds annually.
- The food and fiber sector accounts for 10-15 percent of all U.S. energy consumption, with farms using 3-4 percent.
- Farmers' outstanding debt (excluding operator household and crop loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation) rose from $36 billion in 1965 to $193 billion in 1983, then fell to $143 billion in 1987.

Bull Sale Draws Huge Crowd

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Meat Animal Evaluation Center's 18th Annual Performance-Tested Bull Sale recently drew a huge crowd of nearly 1,200 people.

Sixty performance-tested bulls grossed $108,650, averaging $1,811 per animal. The sale was one of the many events featured at this year's second annual Beef Expo.

The Bull sale got off to a running start with its top indexing Simmental bull. This C & B Incumbent son, consigned by Laurel Valley Farms of Ligonier, set a new test station record for average daily gain (ADG), maintaining 5.51 pounds per day for the entire 112-day testing period.

The bull brought its owner $4,100 and the trophy for the top indexing bull. The trophy, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattleman's Association, is presented to the bull fartherest above the average index within the bull's particular breed.

The second highest selling Simmental was Penn State's D. S. Pollfleck son. This moderately framed, muscular bull sold to Maple Avenue Farms of Earlsville, N.Y., for $3,150.

The top-selling Angus bull was also the top-indexing black bull. Indian Creek Farm's Manhatten of Indian Creek son acquired the highest adjusted 365-day weight of any bull of any breed with a weight of 1,524 pounds. William Cowden of Burgettstown, Pa., paid $2,700 for the animal.

The second highest selling Angus bull was a Hoff's Hi-Spade S.C. 491 son from Ridge Crest Angus of Womelsdorf, Pa. The bull sold to Watchtower Farms of Wallkill, N.Y., for $2,400.

The entire group of Angus bulls sold very consistently, with 16 Angus tallying an average selling price of $1,928.

An outstanding group of Polled Herefords started off with the top-indexing Polled Hereford returning the top price of the day. This G. K. Turning Point son from Paul Slayton of Schellsburg, Pa., sold to Calvin Saylor of Rocky Ridge, Md., for $6,500.

The second highest indexing Hereford also was very popular, selling to a new breeder, Lee Durondetta of Olanta, Pa. This RB Stamina son from Michael Egleston of Elkland, Pa., brought its owner $3,500. The 19 Polled Herefords garnered the top breed average selling price of the day with a great average of $1,987.

In the Charolais division, the top-indexing bull returned the second highest price, with the dehorned HBR Performer son from Glenn Turk, Warren, Pa., selling to Hempt Bros. of Camp Hill, Pa., for $1,650. Raymond Bratton consigned the top-selling Charolais bull again this year. His BCF High Tech son sold for $2,100, with Cooper Charolais Farm of Windham, Maine, offering the winning bid.

The top-indexing Chiangus, consigned by Nittany Farm, and the top Salers bull, owned by Lyn-Lee Farm, both of State College, Pa., both sold to Double M Farms of Millersburg, Pa. for $2,000 and $1,500, respectively.

Teachers, Students Attend Water Seminar

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — More than 100 teachers and students from high schools in Lebanon, Lancaster, Berks, and Schuylkill counties recently participated in a hands-on water quality seminar, held at Franklin and Marshall College.

The seminar, entitled "Water: Its Use, Abuse, and Disposal in our Homes," was sponsored by the Lebanon, Lancaster and Berks Conservation districts and the Chesapeake Bay Education office.

Participants polluted laboratory water samples with by-products of everyday human existence, and then tried to clean it up. The results were eye-opening, as individuals learned what it takes to clean the water. Individuals also learned about the toxicity of products we put down drains every day.

The day concluded with a town meeting where participants debated the affects of a proposed fictional dam on a local and regional watershed.

Farmers Association Honors Members

YORK (York Co.) — The Kennard-Dale Young Farmers Association has awarded its outstanding community service award to Mr. and Mrs. John Marsteller Jr. at the 25th annual banquet.

A savings bond was presented by Harry Aitkens Jr., assistant treasurer and branch manager of the York Bank, to the Marstellers on behalf of the York Bank in recognition of their contribution to the community.

The Marstellers are members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church and Eureka Fire Company. John Marsteller Jr., a former president of the Kennard-Dale Young Farmers, is a member of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and the Pennsylvania Soybean Association.

Beef Industry Enters Partnership With McDonald's

CHICAGO, IL — The beef industry will be a partner in the national introduction of a new low-fat ground beef product it helped develop.

In separate actions, the executive committees of the Beef Industry Council and the Beef Board have voted to participate in national roll-out of McDonald's new McLean Deluxe™ sandwich.

The Beef Industry Council, a federation of state beef councils, will invest $1 million from funds collected prior to the nationally legislated dollar checkoff to incorporate a lean beef message into the national roll-out of this new product.

The BIC investment, made at the urging of state beef councils, will be used to tell consumers how beef fits modern, healthful lifestyles through McLean Deluxe™ promotion materials, including newspaper advertising aimed at thought leaders; point-of-purchase materials, such as tray liners, which reach 18 million consumers every day; crew posters; drive-through headers; and other materials.

"Producers initially invested checkoff dollars in the development of this low-fat ground beef technology," said BIC Chairman Francis Gregerson, a Longmont, Colo., dairyman and cattle feeder. "McDonald's was the first company to take our technology, add its own touch, and then introduce it nationally. As producers, we are proud of what we have been able to do and we want to let consumers across the country know it. We feel being a partner with the largest single merchandiser of beef in the world during the multi-million-dollar introduction of a new product is an excellent way to leverage our limited funds."

The Beef Board Executive Committee and USDA earlier had approved the use of the beef checkoff logo — the familiar red check — by McDonald's on materials it uses to promote the McLean Deluxe™. But the committee upheld existing Beef Board policy of not supporting branded promotion with checkoff dollars.

"Checkoff dollars give us the ability to research the product, to develop new products, to promote the desirability of beef and to create a positive marketing climate for all those who sell beef, whether they put a brand on it or not," said Glen Klippenstein, Beef Board chairman and Missouri cattleman. "Our job is to make it easy for front-line marketers — be they McDonald's, Safeway, or any local burger barn — to sell our product and satisfy their customers."

McDonald's CEO Ed Rensi spoke to both groups during the annual meeting of the National Live Stock and Meat Board here. During a speech to the Meat Board, Rensi said, "We at McDonald's are going to continue to sell real food for real people. But I urge you to be partners in this as well. It's your future, and our future, at stake. No one sitting in the cheap seats ever won a game; this game is won on the playing field and this game has serious consequences."

There will be mutual benefits from the national roll-out, according to Rensi, "When we collectively pull this off, McDonald's is going to sell a lot more hamburgers and you're definitely going to be able to sell a lot more meat because of that 'halo' effect of McLean Deluxe™.

World Soil Quality Topic Of Conference

EMMAUS (Lehigh Co.) — Twenty-five of the world's leading soil scientists will gather for a three-day conference this summer to discuss the current state of the world's soil, and begin development of a long-term monitoring system on the health of soil around the globe.

The three-day conference, "Assessment and Monitoring of Soil Quality," will begin July 11. It will be held at the Rodale Institute, sponsor of the program, in Kutztown, Pennsylvania.

Participants in the conference will include noteworthy figures from scientific institutes, foundations, research organizations, and governmient agencies from many different countries and continents.

Each will present original research or participate in panel discussions examining the state of the world's soil.

The purpose of the gathering is to "develop a soil index that will enable us to gauge the viability of soil in different regions of the world," said John Haberern, president of Rodale Institute and organizer of the conference. "This index will alert public and private leaders about potential danger to soil quality and hopefully help them formulate policies to protect soil being jeopardized by natural or man-made hazards."

Among the topics to be addressed include characterization of soil quality; the changing physical and biological properties of soil; food nutrient levels; soil degradation and its regeneration; criteria for sustainable agriculture; and the impact of soil management on food quality.

"Maintaining, and in some instances improving, the health of the world's soil will be one of the great challenges facing us as we enter the next century," said Haberern. "The environmental risk of damaging and potentially losing what today is healthy soil is enormous."

He said that erosion is now causing the loss of the world's topsoil at a rate of seven percent each decade. In the U.S., seven bushels of topsoil are washed down the Mississippi River for every bushel of corn grown in Iowa.

Individuals interested in obtaining more information about the conference should contact the Rodale Institute.

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Introductory Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and caries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.
* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450 00
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

RICHARDTON

MODEL 750 MULTI-PURPOSE DUMP WAGON

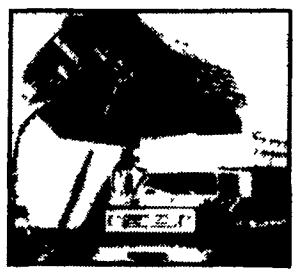
30,000 lb. lift capacity

SAVE: Labor • Time • Equipment



Get a step ahead at harvest with fast, reliable Richardton Dump Wagons that handle big loads under all field conditions.

More sizes, more options, more strength, more uses, and less maintenance - that's what makes Richardton wagons so popular with silage, haylage, corn, vegetable and grain growers.

Additional features include:

- One valve hydraulics to operate the lift, stabilizer and lock cylinders
- Offset hitch to allow for different row crop spacings
- Galvanized roof with expanded metal insert for straight through air flow and mechanical positive action roof opener

Harvest A Variety Of Crops

- Silage • Haylage
- Chaff • Straw • Tomatoes
- Cucumbers • Sweet Corn
- Seed Corn • Ear Corn
- Peas • Beans • Carrots
- Sugar Beets • Grain

Powerhouse savings on Case IH Reman Engines

For IH 414, 436 and 466 Tractor and Combine Premium Basic Engines

Give your tractor or combine "like-new" power with an absolute minimum of downtime with a Case IH Premium Basic Reman Engine. You won't have to wait for – or worry about – rebuilding and you'll save about one third over the cost of a new engine.

Don't confuse remanufactured engines with an engine that's just rebuilt. Where a rebuilder replaces a defective part and then reassembles using the remaining parts, Case IH reman assures you that every component is tested and refurbished or replaced.

Every reman engine is completely disassembled and cleaned of oil, grease and carbon. Then the individual components undergo extensive inspection and testing – with all substandard parts rejected.

Components that do meet our rigid specifications are reassembled by technicians who specialize in remanufacturing engines. All soft plugs, threaded plugs, seals, rod bolts, piston rings and piston pins are replaced with brand new parts. Finally, the completed engine is lubricated and tested to assure it meets or exceeds Case IH specifications.

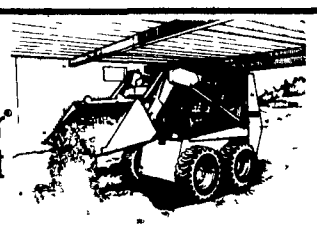
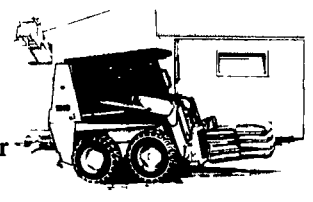
The time is right. Buy a Case 1835C or 1840 Uni-Loader® skid steer and get an $800 factory rebate.





Purchase a new Case 1835C or 1840 Uni-Loader skid steer between April 1 and June 30, 1991, and you will receive an $800 rebate.

The gasoline-fueled, 44-net horsepower (32.8 kW) Case 1835C Uni-Loader is a perfect chore machine for construction, forestry, industrial and agricultural applications. Its compact size, 1200-pound (544 kg) rated operating load and fast-cycling, responsive hydraulics combine to produce a machine that out-performs the competition.

The 1840 with its proven and powerful Case 4-390 diesel engine, delivers 50 net horsepower (37.3 kW). The machine has a 1350-pound (612 kg) rated operating load, a leader in its size class. The 1840 — a rugged machine with proven productive superiority.

Both the 1835C and 1840 offer roll-out ROPS, which provide easy access to components when servicing. Operator-friendly low-effort two-lever hand controls allow for maneuvering, raising and dumping simultaneously. Case couplers on both machines make attachment changes a snap.

See your Case dealer today to arrange for your $800 factory rebate on a new 1835C or 1840 Uni-Loader.

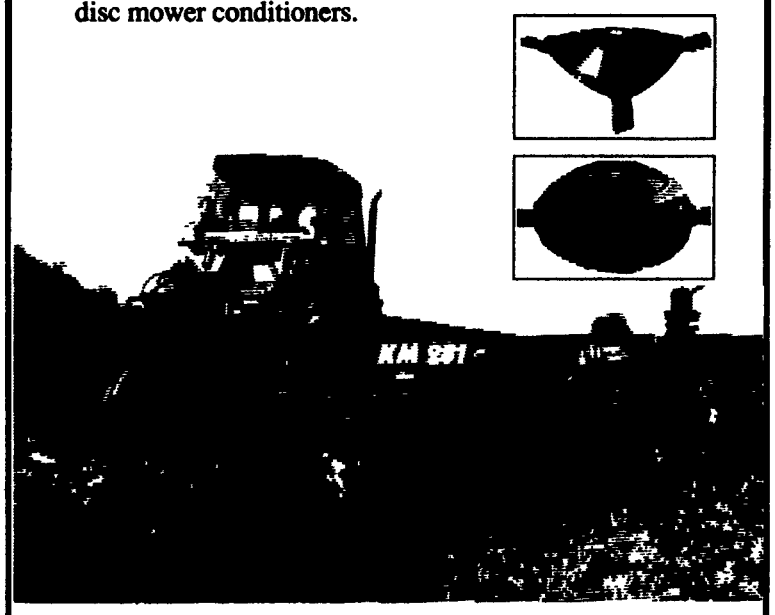
GET THE EXTRA EDGE

Put a Vicon three-bladed disc mower conditioner through wet, heavy, tangled crops. Then compare the difference.

With almost double the number of cuts per minute over two-bladed disc competitors, and six times the cuts per minute over sicklebar systems, it's easy to understand the clean, fast NO PLUG performance of Vicon KM disc mower conditioners.



Add the extra suction created by Vicon's unique triangular discs, the full swivel hitch that lets you cut square corners on the move, and gentle, full width conditioning, and you're looking at a high capacity machine that puts productivity in a whole new dimension. Four models cut from 7' to 10'6" widths.

And the price is right at

BIG JIM®

Silage Handling System

The advantages of bottom delivery... without the high cost or complications

Uniform filling

Forage blown into the center of the silo through the fill chute (standard equipment) is distributed uniformly to the silo wall and compacted by the 16-in diameter auger This gets more feed into a given silo, reducing storage cost per ton.

Whenever feed reaches the wall, an advance switch moves the auger forward clockwise a few inches for delivery and compaction of the next strip of feed If filling is interrupted, the auger "waits" for more forage to be delivered This even distribution minimizes air pockets, center core and wall pressures, to retain feed value

As the silo is filled, the machine raises automatically as needed A steel cylinder, 30 in long and 19 in in diameter, is suspended under the center of the machine. This cylinder creates the center discharge hole in the middle of the silage as the machine is raised The Big Jim® system easily handles the nonstop filling capacity of big blowers, for fast, convenient, positive filling

Quick change-over

1. TURN UNIT OFF
To convert from filling to feeding (or vice versa) in minutes, you climb only to silage level up a CLEAN CHUTE First turn the dial to OFF on the control panel located at the motor end of the machine. This safety feature gives you control of the machine

3. OPEN TRAP DOOR
Unlatch door in the top of the steel hole-forming cylinder and let the door hang down so silage can drop down the center hole into the bottom conveyor During filling the trap door is closed so forage does not fall into the unloading hole formed in the silage

2. SHIFT LEVER
Move lever handle toward the center discharge hole This forces the auger toward the silo wall for proper unloading especially for removal of frozen silage from the wall by the chipper wheel For filling move the shift lever handle toward the wall so the hole-former hangs straight

4. TURN TO FEED
Turn the dial to FEED" to reverse the auger and you're ready to feed out in just minutes after filling Quick change over makes it easy to use your feeding system without interruption during silo filling seasons And with a clean chute imagine not getting silage dust down your neck!

Fast feeding

Massive auger reverses to carry feed to the center hole. Feed pours through the open trap door in the hole-forming cylinder, and falls by gravity onto the double-chain conveyor housed in the concrete tunnel below. This unloading eliminates a blower and its power needs, so only a 7½ H.P. motor is needed for 20-ft. and 24-ft. silos, (30-ft silos require a 10 H.P., 3-Phase motor) The big-capacity conveyor gives you the benefits of bottom discharge without the expense. Adaptable in height and distance, the conveyor can deliver directly into a mixer or into the conveyor of your feeding system This system is unmatched for simplicity of design, ease of operation and fast feeding capacity in 20-ft, 24-ft. and 30-ft. silos.

"FORAGE, AS HAYLAGE, IS THE MOST ECONOMICAL, NUTRITIOUS AND PHYSIOLOGICALLY HEALTHY FEED THAT CAN BE FED TO THE DAIRY COW."

The combination of tower silos and haylage is ideal when supplying high quality rations to dairy cows.

THE TOWER SILO IS THE BEST STORAGE SYSTEM AVAILABLE TO TAKE FULL ADVANTAGE OF ALL THE BENEFITS THAT HAYLAGE OFFERS TO THE DAIRYMAN.

When possible, it is much more logical to take advantage of the vertical dimension of the tower silo when storing large tonnages of haylage than to spread the forage over large horizontal areas. Extensive horizontal areas used by bags and trenches are frequently too far away for an efficient operation. Tower silos properly located are readily accessible for filling and easily dispense haylage directly into mixing and feeding equipment for the dairy herd.

The poured concrete SOLLENBERGER SILO, either top or bottom unloading, with its solid 6" concrete wall, is the choice of dairymen who desire to have a system with low maintenance and the ability to keep their feed in the best possible condition. The solid concrete wall minimizes losses due to heat and oxygen; the two main culprits when it comes to storage losses.

FRESH COWS STALLING OUT???

Now There Is Something You Can Do About It!!!

Purina Freshener Pak Starts Cows Right.

Fresh cows go off of feed for a number of reasons: freshening problems, mastitis, forage changes, too much grain, ketosis and just plain stress. That's why Purina has come out with a product designed with this key problem in mind.

Dairy Freshener Pak is designed to not only stimulate your fresh cow's appetite, but it also helps her maintain a proper immune response.

HERE IS WHY

Niacin - This slows fat metabolism and fights ketosis.
